In the middle of the night I got the feeling that you may be right, that I did do a summary of the existing literature review (that Job, you approved) . I'll have to look for it on Monday (unless I go into the office over the weekend, which is possible). I may be hallucinating, but if not, I'll just present it at the meeting rather than try to get it to them ahead of time. Tova

Just wondering if you had any word from Rokita. Also, I wanted to let you know that I think disinviting members of the working group would be a very unwise and frankly embarrassing way of dealing with the

Cindy --

Can you please check the accuracy of these figures -- which you recall we gave to the EAC a month or so ago -- to ensure that they are up-to-date?

I believe we have had several public events that have taken place since we gave them the Public Fraud List a few weeks ago.

Subject Re: Today's Teleconference

The teleconference is on. However, I am still one person down for the meeting and I am not comfortable. This will have to be discussed since from the start it was agreed that the WG would be equal and if I lost a person Tova would have to loose one. Further and most importantly, I don't yet have a hotel so my attendance is still up in the air. Finally, the agenda is not what we discussed and gives far too much time for areas that can be covered in a short time. Not listed are all of the questions that Tova's proposed agenda had. All in all, it needs to be redone.

4:00 eastern on Tuesday is fine however, given the financial restrictions that you indicated would be in place for use of my car (I would actually loose money coming to DC) and given the cost of hotels at this time (I can't afford to front these costs and wait for months to be repaid), etc, it would take a miracle for this working group meeting to take place in person. It is looking like the only way it will get done is by teleconference. I also share Tova's concern about the unknown nature of Mr. Perez.

What do you suggest I do with the list of Working Group members. I need to get the Fed Ex packages out by the end of the day, and have not heard back from Ginsberg. Do you want me to list a vacancy, or list Norcross with a note that he cannot attend? If we find a substitute, we can always provide an updated list next Thursday. --- Peggy

Subject Voting Fraud-Voter Intimidation Working Group

Dear Mr. Ginsberg:

This is to confirm my call to your office this morning inviting you to be a member of and attend the upcoming meeting of the U.S. Election Assistance Commission's (EAC) Working Group on Voting Fraud-Voter Intimidation. The meeting is scheduled to take place from 1:00 PM to 5:30 PM on Thursday, May 18th, 2006 at the offices of the U.S. Election Assistance Commission (EAC), 1225 New York Avenue, NW, 11th Floor, Washington, DC.

Section 241 of the Help America Vote Act of 2002 (HAVA) requires EAC to conduct research on election administration issues. Among the tasks listed in the statute are the development of:

- nationwide statistics and methods of identifying, deterring, and investigating voting fraud in elections for Federal office [section 241(b)(6)]; and
- methods of identifying, deterring, and investigating methods of voter intimidation [section 241(b)(7)].

EAC's Board of Advisors recommended that the agency make research on these matters a high priority. Subsequently, the Commission contracted with two consultants (Job Serebrov and Tova Wang) to:

- develop a comprehensive description of what constitutes voting fraud and voter intimidation in the context of Federal elections;
- perform background research (including Federal and State administrative and case law review), identify current activities of key government agencies, civic and advocacy organizations regarding these topics, and deliver a summary of this research and all source documentation;
- establish a project working group, in consultation with EAC, composed of key individuals and representatives of organizations knowledgeable about the topics of voting fraud and voter intimidation;
- provide the description of what constitutes voting fraud and voter intimidation, and the results of the preliminary research to the working group, and convene the working group to discuss potential avenues for future EAC research on this topic; and
- produce a report to EAC summarizing the findings of the preliminary research effort and working group deliberations that includes recommendations for future research, if any;

We strive to include bipartisan representation on the Working Group associated with this project. You were recommended for this project by our Republican consultant, Job Serebrov. Your ideas for possible EAC activities related to this topic will help the agency as it plans future actions to meet its HAVA responsibilities.

If you can find the time in your busy schedule to participate, I will have an information packet delivered to your office by COB, Monday, May 15. Please let me know if you are available. Thank you.

The non-election officials on the Working Group currently include:

- Barry Weinberg, whom you know
- Barbara Arnwine, Lawyers Committee for Civil Rights Under Law (organization associated with the Voting Rights Project and Election Protection)
- Bob Bauer, Perkins Coie, DC (Democrat attorney)
- Mark "Thor" Hearne, Lathrop & Gage, St Louis, MO (Republican attorney)

I am trying to recruit one other Republican attorney, Patrick Rogers, Modrall, Sperling, Roehl, Harris and Sisk, NM, who was recommended by our Republican consultant. He would replace an original member who is no longer available.

I know that Barbara has associated at conferences and in legislative efforts with Wade Henderson, Leadership Conference on Civil Rights. Craig:

This meeting is being held to obtain input from our eight-member Working Group for the project. The group is composed of election lawyers, election officials, and a representative of an advocacy group, all of whom have an interest and some expertise in the identification and/or prosecution of voting fraud and voter intimidation. The group was chosen so that we would have an equal number of folks on each side of the political spectrum, plus some nonpartisan members.

After our consultants review the results of their preliminary research (interviews, literature review, case law), we will ask the Working Group to brainstorm possible next steps for EAC. Our consultants will write a report summarizing the proposals that come out of this meeting. The report will go to the Commissioners, who will decide what they want to do, funds available, and what priority to assigned to the effort(s).

Your participation in this part of the process is extremely important, so I am very happy that you can find time for us that afternoon. I'll get an agenda and other information to you next week. --- Peggy

Peg - -

I have read over the materials you sent to me and viewed the pieces on the CD.

I have only one correction:

I did not say that offenders who receive target letters routinely request - - or routinely receive - - audiences here at DOJHQ. That is very rare. Instead, what usually happens is that once a subject for an election fraud investigation is advised that he or she is going to be charged that person usually enters into plea negotiations and ultimately pleads guilty. Very few federal election fraud cases go to trial. When a subject does request a HQ interview or a HW hearing, it would be held in the first instance by myself. But again, Peg, that is rare.

Also, while the occurrences of prosecutions of isolated instances of felons and alien voters and double voters has increased, we still aggressively and I believe quite successfully pursue systematic schemes to corrupt the electoral process, as the cases we brought recently out of Knott and Pike Counties in Kentucky, those we brought out of Lincoln and Logan Counties in West Virginia, and those we brought in New Hampshire growing out of the jamming of get0-out-the-vote phone bank lines attest.

I think they are panicking because they are preparing to travel tomorrow and may not have time to submit a revised version. They also are resisting changes to their interview summaries because the summaries represent what they think they heard. I was there at the interview and I heard what you said. I'm not sure that either of them heard everything (including the nuances) because so much of the information was new to them and it was one of their earlier interviews. I'm sorry I did not catch the defects before the summary went out.

My first concern is ensuring that the Working Group has the correct information. Then, we can deal with what version, if any, goes in the final report. Do you want me to excerpt the corrections from your email and submit them to the Working Group? --- Peggy

Peg --

I have read over the materials you sent to me and viewed the pieces on the CD.

I have only one correction:

I did not say that offenders who receive target letters routinely request -- or routinely receive -- audiences here at DOJHQ. That is very rare. Instead, what usually happens is that once a subject for an election fraud investigation is advised that he or she is going to be charged that person usually enters into plea negotiations and ultimately pleads guilty. Very few federal election fraud cases go to trial. When a subject does request a HQ interview or a HW hearing, it would be held in the first instance by myself. But again, Peg, that is rare.

Also, while the occurrences of prosecutions of isolated instances of felons and alien voters and double voters has increased, we still aggressively and I believe quite successfully pursue systematic schemes to corrupt the electoral process, as the cases we brought recently out of Knott and Pike Counties in Kentucky, those we brought out of Lincoln and Logan Counties in West Virginia, and those we brought in New Hampshire growing out of the jamming of get0-out-the-vote phone bank lines attest.

The first item is not as big a deal as the second one: the processes under which subjects of investigations come to Jesus is not as important as the overall assessment of our law enforcement achievements. But stressing the isolated test cases we brought - - and will continue to bring - - to deter things like felon voting, alien voting and double voting, which not mentioning such significant achievements as the five case PROJECTS mentioned in my last e-mail - - misrepresents what we are doing and the deterrent message we are trying to communicate.

I appreciate that these two young people may have found themselves in a Brave New World when they came over here. It showed in their questioning. But the fact that criminal law enforcement is not at all similar to preventative legal relief (as under the Voting Rights Act) or civil relief (as election contest litigation) is I guess more of a problem than I at first foresaw. My real concern is that the civil rights groups - - with whom we over here have an amazing amount of common grounds - - will take the singling out of the felon and alien voter cases as evincing a malevolent aggression on their constituencies. That is not the case. We are only enforcing the law.

Subject Request to interview AUSAs

Peg --

At the Advisory Board meeting we had last week, your two contractors asked to interview the over-100 AUSAs who are serving as District Election Officers in connection with the Fraud study.

This request needs to be addressed to Natalie Voris of EOUSA per the message from here that follows.

If the contractors require additional information in connection with the Fraud Study, and should EOUSA not be able to satisfy their needs n they can communicate with me on criminal issues and Cameron Quinn on Civil Rights issues.

I will be here when you arrive later today at the Board of Advisors meeting when you arrive to talk to us at 4:30.

Ms. Voris' message follows:

Per the USAM, all requests for interviews/surveys/research projects that involve USAOs must be approved by EOUSA. I am pasting the provision below - the contact name needs to be updated. Requests should come to me, as the Acting Counsel to the Director.

Thanks,
Natalie

Thank you for this, Peg.

The third bullet point is one I embrace fully. We lack the statutory tool to do the job. Hopefully, that can be remedied through legislation. But as things stand today large loopholes in the federal legal matrix addressing electoral abuse and fraud exist - - particularly when such abuses occur in elections where there were no federal candidates on the ballot.

Here is the content of the email attachment:

Existing Research Analysis

There are many reports and books that describe anecdotes and draw broad conclusions from a large array of incidents. There is little research that is truly systematic or scientific. The most systematic look at fraud is the report written by Lori Minnite. The most systematic look at voter intimidation is the report by Laughlin McDonald. Books written about this subject seem to all have a political bias and a pre-existing agenda that makes them somewhat less valuable.

Researchers agree that measuring something like the incidence of fraud and intimidation in a scientifically legitimate way is extremely difficult from a methodological perspective and would require resources beyond the means of most social and political scientists. As a result, there is much more written on this topic by advocacy groups than social scientists. It is hoped that this gap will be filled in the "second phase" of this EAC project.

Moreover, reports and books make allegations but, perhaps by their nature, have little follow up. As a result, it is difficult to know when something has remained in the stage of being an allegation and gone no further, or progressed to the point of being investigated or prosecuted or in any other way proven to be valid by an independent, neutral entity. This is true, for example, with respect to allegations of voter intimidation by civil rights organizations, and, with respect to fraud, John Fund's frequently cited book. Again, this is something that it is hoped will be addressed in the "second phase" of this EAC project by doing follow up research on allegations made in reports, books and newspaper articles.

Other items of note:

- There is as much evidence, and as much concern, about structural forms of disenfranchisement as about intentional abuse of the system. These include felon disenfranchisement, poor maintenance of databases and identification requirements.
- There is tremendous disagreement about the extent to which polling place fraud, e.g. double voting, intentional felon voting, noncitizen voting, is a serious problem. On balance, more researchers find it to be less of a problem than is commonly described in the political debate, but some reports say it is a major problem, albeit hard to identify.
- There is substantial concern across the board about absentee balloting and the opportunity it presents for fraud.
- Federal law governing election fraud and intimidation is varied and complex and yet may nonetheless be insufficient or subject to too many limitations to be as effective as it might be.
- Deceptive practices, e.g. targeted flyers and phone calls providing misinformation, were a major problem in 2004.

019342

- Voter intimidation continues to be focused on minority communities, although the American Center for Voting Rights uniquely alleges it is focused on Republicans.

Subject RE: Report on Voting Fraud-Voter Intimidation Research

Peg - -

This is a complicated issue largely because of two things: 1) there is a lot of ambiguity out there as to what constitutes "intimidation." To the civil rights community, "intimidation" means anything that makes voting uncomfortable or less than automatic. To us in the criminal law enforcement "intimidation" means threats of economic or physical nature made to force or prevent voting. Only the latter involve aggravating factors that warrant putting offenders in jail, and the statutes that address "intimidation" from a criminal perspective are thus limited. We have never had many "intimidation" criminal cases. For one thing, in this modern post voting rights era, there is not a lot of physical/economic duress out there in the voting context - - at least not that I have seen. For another, where it does occur it is very hard to investigate and detect as victims who have been physically or economically intimidated are not likely to come to the FBI.

The bottom line is that we take matters that do present predication for physical or economically based "intimidation" very seriously, AND that we are being extremely proactive in trying to find ways to prosecute matters involving voter suppression as in the Tobin cases in New Hampshire where the local GOP tried to jam telephone lines for a GOTV effort run by the Dems. But even there - - the usual "suppression" matter involves flyers that are passed around giving out misleading information about an election, and we have investigated every one of those that came to our attention last election cycle. We were not able to identify the person(s) responsible for printing the misleading flyers in any of these. But we sure as heck tried.

Craig:

I'm putting the finishing touches on a status report to the EAC Standards Board and EAC Board of Advisors on our Voting Fraud-Voter Intimidation research project. For the most part, I am using our consultants summaries for the report, but one bullet under the interview summaries is giving me heartburn. It is the bullet that references the decrease in DOJ voter intimidation actions. It is one of the places in which our consultants had indicated that your office is focussing on prosecuting individuals. I have reworded it and would like your feedback on the revision:

Several people indicate - including representatives from DOJ -- that for various reasons, the Department of Justice is bringing fewer voter intimidation and suppression cases now, and has increased its focus on matters such as noncitizen voting, double voting, and felon voting. While the Voting Section of the Civil Rights Division focuses on systemic patterns of malfeasance, the Election Crimes Branch of the Public Integrity Section has increased prosecutions of individual instances of felon, alien, and double voting while also maintaining an aggressive pursuit of systematic schemes to corrupt the electoral process.

Please suggest any changes that you think would further clarify the current approach. --- Peggy

Tova:

We can certainly discuss this at the Working Group meeting. (The draft definition had already been sent out by the time I read your message.) There may be other VRA provisions that should be considered as well, such as the prohibition on removing the names of certain registrants, who were registered by federal examiners, without obtaining prior approval of the Justice Department.

After I received your email, I asked Barry Weinberg to review the draft definition and consider if we have left off examples of Voting Rights Act violations that would qualify as election fraud. Barry, during his 25 years with DOJ, led aggressive action against attempts to place police at the polls to intimidate voters, challenges targeting minorities, failure to provide election materials and assistance in languages other than English (in covered jurisdictions), etc. His input should prove helpful. --- Peggy

Would you please take a look at the attached? I combined both of your definitions, reformatted the list, removed a reference to the fraud having to have an actual impact on the election results (because fraud can be prosecuted without proving that it actually changed the results of the election), and taken out a couple of vague examples (e.g.; reference to failing to enforce state laws --- because there may be legitimate reasons for not doing so).

I have made contact with Ben Ginsberg's office and am waiting to hear if he accepts our invitation to join the working group. --- Peggy

We have more in common with them than I had originally assumed, thanks to the write-ups of their interviews. We need to promote what we have in common not try to score political points. But I will try to correct the records as long as you will agree you heard what I said the way I know I said it!

The first item is not as big a deal as the second one: the processes under which subjects of investigations come to Jesus is not as important as the overall assessment of our law enforcement achievements. But stressing the isolated test cases we brought - - and will continue to bring - - to deter things like felon voting, alien voting and double voting, which not mentioning such significant achievements as the five case PROJECTS mentioned in my last e-mail - - misrepresents what we are doing and the deterrent message we are trying to communicate.

I appreciate that these two young people may have found themselves in a Brave New World when they came over here. It showed in their questioning. But the fact that criminal law enforcement is not at all similar to preventative legal relief (as under the Voting Rights Act) or civil relief (as election contest litigation) is I guess more of a problem than I at first foresaw. My real concern is that the civil rights groups - - with whom we over here have an amazing amount of common grounds - - will take the singling out of the felon and alien voter cases as evincing a malevolent aggression on their constituencies. That is not the case. We are only enforcing the law.

I think they are panicking because they are preparing to travel tomorrow and may not have time to submit a revised version. They also are resisting changes to their interview summaries because the summaries represent what they think they heard. I was there at the interview and I heard what you said. I'm not sure that either of them heard everything (including the nuances) because so much of the information was new to them and it was one of their earlier interviews. I'm sorry I did not catch the defects before the summary went out.

My first concern is ensuring that the Working Group has the correct information. Then, we can deal with what version, if any, goes in the final report. Do you want me to excerpt the corrections from your email and submit them to the Working Group? --- Peggy

Peg - -

I have read over the materials you sent to me and viewed the pieces on the CD.

I have only one correction:

I did not say that offenders who receive target letters routinely request - - or routinely receive - - audiences here at DOJHQ. That is very rare. Instead, what usually happens is that once a subject for an election fraud investigation is advised that he or she is going to be charged that person usually enters into plea negotiations and ultimately pleads guilty. Very few federal election fraud cases go to trial. When a subject does request a HQ interview or a HW hearing, it would be held in the first instance by myself. But again, Peg, that is rare.

Also, while the occurrences of prosecutions of isolated instances of felons and alien voters and double voters has increased, we still aggressively and I believe quite successfully pursue systematic schemes to corrupt the electoral process, as the cases we brought recently out of Knott and Pike Counties in Kentucky, those we brought out of Lincoln and Logan Counties in West Virginia, and those we brought in New Hampshire growing out of the jamming of get0-out-the-vote phone bank lines attest.

Craig:

I'm putting the finishing touches on a status report to the EAC Standards Board and EAC Board of Advisors on our Voting Fraud-Voter Intimidation research project. For the most part, I am using our consultants summaries for the report, but one bullet under the interview summaries is giving me heartburn. It is the bullet that references the decrease in DOJ voter intimidation actions. It is one of the places in which our consultants had indicated that your office is focussing on prosecuting individuals. I have reworded it and would like your feedback on the revision:

Several people indicate - including representatives from DOJ -- that for various reasons, the Department of Justice is bringing fewer voter intimidation and suppression cases now, and has increased its focus on matters such as noncitizen voting, double voting, and felon voting. While the Voting

Section of the Civil Rights Division focuses on systemic patterns of malfeasance, the Election Crimes Branch of the Public Integrity Section has increased prosecutions of individual instances of felon, alien, and double voting while also maintaining an aggressive pursuit of systematic schemes to corrupt the electoral process.

Please suggest any changes that you think would further clarify the current approach. --- Peggy

What is the information you need when you say:
The consultants jointly selected experts from ???

We chose the interviewees by first coming up with a list of the categories of types of people we wanted to interview. Then we each filled those categories with a certain number of people, equally. The ultimate categories were academics, advocates, elections officials, lawyers and judges.

Is that what you need?

Peg - -

I have read over the materials you sent to me and viewed the pieces on the CD.

I have only one correction:

I did not say that offenders who receive target letters routinely request - - or routinely receive - - audiences here at DOJHQ. That is very rare. Instead, what usually happens is that once a subject for an election fraud investigation is advised that he or she is going to be charged that person usually enters into plea negotiations and ultimately pleads guilty. Very few federal election fraud cases go to trial. When a subject does request a HQ interview or a HW hearing, it would be held in the first instance by myself. But again, Peg, that is rare.

Also, while the occurrences of prosecutions of isolated instances of felons and alien voters and double voters has increased, we still aggressively and I believe quite successfully pursue systematic schemes to corrupt the electoral process, as the cases we brought recently out of Knott and Pike Counties in Kentucky, those we brought out of Lincoln and Logan Counties in West Virginia, and those we brought in

New Hampshire growing out of the jamming of get0-out-the-vote phone bank lines attest.

Subject Re: Voting Fraud-Voter Intimidation Working Group

Here is the content of the email attachment:

Existing Research Analysis

There are many reports and books that describe anecdotes and draw broad conclusions from a large array of incidents. There is little research that is truly systematic or scientific. The most systematic look at fraud is the report written by Lori Minnite. The most systematic look at voter intimidation is the report by Laughlin McDonald. Books written about this subject seem to all have a political bias and a pre-existing agenda that makes them somewhat less valuable.

Researchers agree that measuring something like the incidence of fraud and intimidation in a scientifically legitimate way is extremely difficult from a methodological perspective and would require resources beyond the means of most social and political scientists. As a result, there is much more written on this topic by advocacy groups than social scientists. It is hoped that this gap will be filled in the "second phase" of this EAC project.

Moreover, reports and books make allegations but, perhaps by their nature, have little follow up. As a result, it is difficult to know when something has remained in the stage of being an allegation and gone no further, or progressed to the point of being investigated or prosecuted or in any other way proven to be valid by an independent, neutral entity. This is true, for example, with respect to allegations of voter intimidation by civil rights organizations, and, with respect to fraud, John Fund's frequently cited book. Again, this is something that it is hoped will be addressed in the "second phase" of this EAC project by doing follow up research on allegations made in reports, books and newspaper articles.

Other items of note:

- There is as much evidence, and as much concern, about structural forms of disenfranchisement as about intentional abuse of the system. These include felon disenfranchisement, poor maintenance of databases and identification requirements.
- There is tremendous disagreement about the extent to which polling place fraud, e.g. double voting, intentional felon voting, noncitizen voting, is a serious problem. On balance, more researchers find it to be less of a problem than is commonly described in the political debate, but some reports say it is a major problem, albeit hard to identify.
- There is substantial concern across the board about absentee balloting and the opportunity it presents for fraud.
- Federal law governing election fraud and intimidation is varied and complex and yet may nonetheless be insufficient or subject to too many limitations to be as effective as it might be.
- Deceptive practices, e.g. targeted flyers and phone calls providing misinformation, were a major problem in 2004.
- Voter intimidation continues to be focused on minority communities, although the American Center for Voting Rights uniquely alleges it is focused on Republicans.

Subject RE: Your Materials

Let me try to do it, Peg. Again what I do not want to see occur is for the LCCR to start attacking us. We have more in common with them than I had originally assumed, thanks to the write-ups of their interviews. We need to promote what we have in common not try to score political points. But I will try to correct the records as long as you will agree you heard what I said the way I know I said it!

Subject RE: Your Materials

The first item is not as big a deal as the second one: the processes under which subjects of investigations come to Jesus is not as important as the overall assessment of our law enforcement achievements. But stressing the isolated test cases we brought - - and will continue to bring - - to deter things like felon voting, alien voting and double voting, which not mentioning such significant achievements as the five case PROJECTS mentioned in my last e-mail - - misrepresents what we are doing and the deterrent message we are trying to communicate.

I appreciate that these two young people may have found themselves in a Brave New World when they came over here. It showed in their questioning. But the fact that criminal law enforcement is not at all similar to preventative legal relief (as under the Voting Rights Act) or civil relief (as election contest litigation) is I guess more of a problem than I at first foresaw. My real concern is that the civil rights groups - - with whom we over here have an amazing amount of common grounds - - will take the singling out of the felon and alien voter cases as evincing a malevolent aggression on their constituencies. That is not the case. We are only enforcing the law.

I think they are panicking because they are preparing to travel tomorrow and may not have time to submit a revised version. They also are resisting changes to their interview summaries because the summaries represent what they think they heard. I was there at the interview and I heard what you said. I'm not sure that either of them heard everything (including the nuances) because so much of the information was new to them and it was one of their earlier interviews. I'm sorry I did not catch the defects before the summary went out.

My first concern is ensuring that the Working Group has the correct information. Then, we can deal with what version, if any, goes in the final report. Do you want me to excerpt the corrections from your email and submit them to the Working Group? --- Peggy

I have read over the materials you sent to me and viewed the pieces on the CD.

I have only one correction:

I did not say that offenders who receive target letters routinely request - - or routinely receive - - audiences here at DOJHQ. That is very rare. Instead, what usually happens is that once a subject for an election fraud investigation is advised that he or she is going to be charged that person usually enters into plea negotiations and ultimately pleads guilty. Very few federal election fraud cases go to trial. When a subject does request a HQ interview or a HW hearing, it would be held in the first instance by myself. But again, Peg, that is rare.

Also, while the occurrences of prosecutions of isolated instances of felons and alien voters and double voters has increased, we still aggressively and I believe quite successfully pursue systematic schemes to corrupt the electoral process, as the cases we brought recently out of Knott and Pike Counties in Kentucky, those we brought out of Lincoln and Logan Counties in West Virginia, and those we brought in New Hampshire growing out of the jamming of get-out-the-vote phone bank lines attest.

I think he can just raise these points at the meeting, no? I'm sure many we interviewed would say we misquoted them on something. This is what both Job and I remember him saying. I think it would be unfair for him to change/amend his interview without giving the same opportunity to the other interviewees.

Subject Report on Voting Fraud-Voter Intimidation Research

Craig:

I'm putting the finishing touches on a status report to the EAC Standards Board and EAC Board of Advisors on our Voting Fraud-Voter Intimidation research project. For the most part, I am using our consultants summaries for the report, but one bullet under the interview summaries is giving me heartburn. It is the bullet that references the decrease in DOJ voter intimidation actions. It is one of the places in which our consultants had indicated that your office is focussing on prosecuting individuals. I have reworded it and would like your feedback on the revision:

Several people indicate - including representatives from DOJ -- that for various reasons, the Department of Justice is bringing fewer voter intimidation and suppression cases now, and has increased its focus on matters such as noncitizen voting, double voting, and felon voting. While the Voting Section of the Civil Rights Division focuses on systemic patterns of malfeasance, the Election Crimes Branch of the Public Integrity Section has increased prosecutions of individual instances of felon, alien, and double voting while also maintaining an aggressive pursuit of systematic schemes to corrupt the electoral process.

Please suggest any changes that you think would further clarify the current approach. --- Peggy

I sent him an email to find out when he is home from work. Perhaps lunch time or early evening will work for him. I plan to include him in all correspondence regarding the final report and do expect him to contribute. He has already responded that he might be able to add to the draft recommendations you submitted (which would have to be reviewed by you), so let's see. As of this morning, I still don't have the transcript. --- Peggy

Hi Peg,

How do you recommend dealing with this? I have this feeling like he's trying to create a situation where I will have to write it myself. Thanks. Tova

I plan to review Tova's recommendations this weekend and work on my own as well as expanding the explanation of the case section.

Please see what your financial officer did with regards to my travel.

Thank you,

Hi Job,

Peg tells me that we should now be getting the transcript early next week. Regardless, we should talk about the organization and distribution of work on the final report and try to finally get it done. Would it be possible for you to do a call before you leave for work in the morning, say 8 am your time, on Wednesday? If not, could you do 6 pm your time on Wednesday? Thanks.

Any sign of the transcript? Will the other members of the working group get a copy? I have had questions from several about it.

Any sign of the transcript? Will the other members of the working group get a copy? I have had questions from several about it.

If you want to talk I can do so this Friday at 6 pm your time.

I can't predict when I get home but it is between 5:30 and 6:30 my time. I know that is generally too late to have a teleconference.

I plan to review Tova's recommendations this weekend and work on my own as well as expanding the explanation of the case section.

Please see what your financial officer did with regards to my travel.

Thank you,

Job

What time do you arrive home from work? Perhaps we could talk then?

full reimbursement on the grounds that your actual total travel costs are less than the estimated total travel costs if you had flown to DC, stayed in our more expensive hotels, and received the higher per diem for 3 days (instead of 1). I have not yet received a response from her and she has been out of the office much of this week, so I don't know what she decided to do. --- Peggy

In the transcript, there is one serious mistake that must be changed immediately. On page 5 it indicates that I helped review and draft changes to the election code of Libya. It should be Namibia not Libya. The reason this is so serious if it stands is that at the time I reviewed Namibia's Code it was illegal for Americans to deal with Libya. I need to know that this has been corrected any ALL parties who have seen the transcript notified.

Hi Tom, Is anything going to be done to correct the record in the news reporting in USA Today and now numerous other media that this status report presented to the board of standards by Peg in May is NOT the report we submitted in July? I'm getting questions and don't know how to answer them. I feel compelled to tell people who ask that this is not our report. Our report still has not been released. Thanks.

Julie:

Just a reminder that we have a telephone conference for the vote fraud group at 4:00 today. You were going to see if you could talk to Commissioner Davidson before that time so I could know what the possibilities are for serving as her executive assistant. If this is even possible and if the Commission is willing to raise the salaries of the executive assistants, her time table could affect the vote fraud project time table.

Subject work plan

Hi Karen and Tom,

As we discussed yesterday, attached is a preliminary work plan/division of labor for your review. Please let us know if this is sufficient for the present and if you have any comments or questions.

In terms of hours dedicated to the project, Job and Tova are able to commit to 15-20 hours per week assuming that includes reimbursed periodic travel. Steve can do approximately 2 hours per week. We have tentatively scheduled to meet at your offices in DC, if that is convenient for you, on September 20. We will be able to confirm that within the next day or so.

All of us are very eager to get started on this important work as soon as possible. However, because we also have other work related responsibilities, we are a bit reluctant to do so before having an opportunity to review our contracts. We look forward to receiving them so we can get going right away.

Thanks so much. Speak to you soon.

Tova, Job and Steve

Subject Your Materials

Peg - -

I have read over the materials you sent to me and viewed the pieces on the CD.

I have only one correction:

I did not say that offenders who receive target letters routinely request - - or routinely receive - - audiences here at DOJHQ. That is very rare. Instead, what usually happens is that once a subject for an election fraud investigation is advised that he or she is going to be charged that person usually enters into plea negotiations and ultimately pleads guilty. Very few federal election fraud cases go to trial. When a subject does request a HQ interview or a HW hearing, it would be held in the first instance by myself. But again, Peg, that is rare.

Also, while the occurrences of prosecutions of isolated instances of felons and alien voters and double voters has increased, we still aggressively and I believe quite successfully pursue systematic schemes to corrupt the electoral process, as the cases we brought recently out of Knott and Pike Counties in Kentucky, those we brought out of Lincoln and Logan Counties in West Virginia, and those we brought in

I have read over the materials you sent to me and viewed the pieces on the CD.

I have only one correction:

I did not say that offenders who receive target letters routinely request -- or routinely receive -- audiences here at DOJHQ. That is very rare. Instead, what usually happens is that once a subject for an election fraud investigation is advised that he or she is going to be charged that person usually enters into plea negotiations and ultimately pleads guilty. Very few federal election fraud cases go to trial. When a subject does request a HQ interview or a HW hearing, it would be held in the first instance by myself. But again, Peg, that is rare.

Also, while the occurrences of prosecutions of isolated instances of felons and alien voters and double voters has increased, we still aggressively and I believe quite successfully pursue systematic schemes to corrupt the electoral process, as the cases we brought recently out of Knott and Pike Counties in Kentucky, those we brought out of Lincoln and Logan Counties in West Virginia, and those we brought in New Hampshire growing out of the jamming of get-out-the-vote phone bank lines attest.

Subject Re: Voting Fraud-Voter Intimidation Working Group

Here is the content of the email attachment:

Existing Research Analysis

There are many reports and books that describe anecdotes and draw broad conclusions from a large array of incidents. There is little research that is truly systematic or scientific. The most systematic look at fraud is the report written by Lori Minnite. The most systematic look at voter intimidation is the report by Laughlin McDonald. Books written about this subject seem to all have a political bias and a pre-existing agenda that makes them somewhat less valuable.

Researchers agree that measuring something like the incidence of fraud and intimidation in a scientifically legitimate way is extremely difficult from a methodological perspective and would require resources beyond the means of most social and political scientists. As a result, there is much more written on this topic by advocacy groups than social scientists. It is hoped that this gap will be filled in the "second phase" of this EAC project.

Moreover, reports and books make allegations but, perhaps by their nature, have little follow up. As a result, it is difficult to know when something has remained in the stage of being an allegation and gone no further, or progressed to the point of being investigated or prosecuted or in any other way proven to be valid by an independent, neutral entity. This is true, for example, with respect to allegations of voter intimidation by civil rights organizations, and, with respect to fraud, John Fund's frequently cited book. Again, this is something that it is hoped will be addressed in the "second phase" of this EAC project by doing follow up research on allegations made in reports, books and newspaper articles.

Other items of note:

- There is as much evidence, and as much concern, about structural forms of disenfranchisement as about intentional abuse of the system. These include felon disenfranchisement, poor maintenance of databases and identification requirements.
- There is tremendous disagreement about the extent to which polling place fraud, e.g. double voting, intentional felon voting, noncitizen voting, is a serious problem. On balance, more researchers find it to be less of a problem than is commonly described in the political debate, but some reports say it is a major problem, albeit hard to identify.
- There is substantial concern across the board about absentee balloting and the opportunity it presents for fraud.
- Federal law governing election fraud and intimidation is varied and complex and yet may nonetheless be insufficient or subject to too many limitations to be as effective as it might be.
- Deceptive practices, e.g. targeted flyers and phone calls providing misinformation, were a major problem in 2004.
- Voter intimidation continues to be focused on minority communities, although the American Center for Voting Rights uniquely alleges it is focused on Republicans.

Let me try to do it, Peg. Again what I do not want to see occur is for the LCCR to start attacking us. We have more in common with them than I had originally assumed, thanks to the write-ups of their interviews. We need to promote what we have in common not try to score political points. But I will try to correct the records as long as you will agree you heard what I said the way I know I said it!

Subject RE: Your Materials

The first item is not as big a deal as the second one: the processes under which subjects of investigations come to Jesus is not as important as the overall assessment of our law enforcement achievements. But stressing the isolated test cases we brought - - and will continue to bring - - to deter things like felon voting, alien voting and double voting, which not mentioning such significant achievements as the five case PROJECTS mentioned in my last e-mail - - misrepresents what we are doing and the deterrent message we are trying to communicate.

I appreciate that these two young people may have found themselves in a Brave New World when they came over here. It showed in their questioning. But the fact that criminal law enforcement is not at all similar to preventative legal relief (as under the Voting Rights Act) or civil relief (as election contest litigation) is I guess more of a problem than I at first foresaw. My real concern is that the civil rights groups - - with whom we over here have an amazing amount of common grounds - - will take the singling out of the felon and alien voter cases as evincing a malevolent aggression on their constituencies. That is not the case. We are only enforcing the law.

I think they are panicking because they are preparing to travel tomorrow and may not have time to submit a revised version. They also are resisting changes to their interview summaries because the summaries represent what they think they heard. I was there at the interview and I heard what you said. I'm not sure that either of them heard everything (including the nuances) because so much of the information was new to them and it was one of their earlier interviews. I'm sorry I did not catch the defects before the summary went out.

My first concern is ensuring that the Working Group has the correct information. Then, we can deal with what version, if any, goes in the final report. Do you want me to excerpt the corrections from your email and submit them to the Working Group? --- Peggy

I did not say that offenders who receive target letters routinely request - - or routinely receive - - audiences here at DOJHQ. That is very rare. I think he can just raise these points at the meeting, no? I'm sure many we interviewed would say we misquoted them on something. This is what both Job and I remember him saying. I think it would be unfair for him to change/amend his interview without giving the same opportunity to the other interviewees.

Subject Don't Believe Everything You Read

Tova and Job:

I am home recuperating, but see that in my absence, a USA Today article has gotten everyone stirred up. The report to which the article refers is only the status report on the voting fraud-voter intimidation research project that was delivered to our Standards Board and Board of Advisors last spring. I provided a copy of this document to both of you. but have attached another copy for your information. This document is subject to public release because it was presented at a public meeting.

Due to internal resource allocation problems, your final report has not yet been reviewed by the Commissioners. It is considered a working document (not subject to public release) until it has completed the review process and the Commissioners have agreed to release it. There has been no attempt by the Commission to hold up the report. I bear responsibility for any delays in moving it along. Please be reassured that we would not release your report without letting you know.

Peg:

We saw both the USA Today article and a similar thing was reported on Rush Limbaugh's show naming both of us. I had a talk this morning with folks at the EAC. I told them at this point there needs to be a press release sent out by the Chairman saying just what you stated. This is the only way to rehabilitate the work we did, the Chairman's credibility, and our reputations. I also fear that if this is not done the EAC will begin to receive calls from Congressman and Senators regarding the "report" and its effect on voter ID requirements.

Peg, up to now Tova and I have refused to speak with the press at all out of respect for the EAC and its mission. We both stand by our work and its conclusions. We both also feel that if a statement (as well phrased as you did in this e-mail clarifying the issue) is not forthcoming from the Chairman then I will have to correct this error with the Press. I explained this in my conversation this morning with the EAC.

Tova and I worked hard to produce a correct, accurate and truthful report. I could care less that the results are not what the more conservative members of my Party wanted. Neither one of us was willing to conform results for political expediency. I think its important for me to note that I was very impressed with Tova's members of the Working Group and I can't say enough about Tova's partnership effort in this endeavor. While neither one of us really care about outside opinions, we do care that the Chairman was quoted or misquoted in a way that would disparage our year-long effort and all of the tax payer money that went into it. For this reason, we believe that a press release clarifying the situation is necessary from either the Chairman or from me.

Regards,

Job

Yes. I asked her if she wanted me to delete the Voter Fraud Project files on my computer or whether I should keep them. She said to download them to a disk and send them to her at the EAC. These files are just duplicates of what you have plus the text of some of the articles. What do you want me to do? I will not be able to do anything until after the election on Tuesday in any case because I am so involved in Asa Hutchinson's campaign.

Hope you are feeling better.

This meeting is being held to obtain input from our eight-member Working Group for the project. The group is composed of election lawyers, election officials, and a representative of an advocacy group, all of whom have an interest and some expertise in the identification and/or prosecution of voting fraud and voter intimidation. The group was chosen so that we would have an equal number of folks on each side of the political spectrum, plus some nonpartisan members.

After our consultants review the results of their preliminary research (interviews, literature review, case law), we will ask the Working Group to brainstorm possible next steps for EAC. Our consultants will write a report summarizing the proposals that come out of this meeting. The report will go to the Commissioners, who will decide what they want to do, funds available, and what priority to assigned to the effort(s).

Your participation in this part of the process is extremely important, so I am very happy that you can find time for us that afternoon. I'll get an agenda and other information to you next week. --- Peggy

I am looking at the afternoon of 5/18 for the meeting, due to scheduling conflicts of Working Group members. There remain two members from whom we have not yet received confirmations of their schedule (with some, it is like pulling teeth), but right now 5/18 still looks like the best day. We may have to hold the meeting over here to make it easier for Commissioners to drop in.

My problem is that agency staff is booked most of the week of 5/21. Monday through Wednesday are taken up with meetings of the Standards Board Executive Committee, the full Standards Board, and the Board of Advisors. Thursday, we have EAC's public meeting. Also, I will lose one of my two consultants in June, so I'm trying to wrap up this project (and get the final report from the consultants) by the end of May.

We don't have to do dinner. I recognize that you have spent a lot of time and energy to make this project work, and I don't want to put you out. (You have done a lot under difficult circumstances.) Though we will be bushed, we may want to have a short meeting right after the Working Group disperses --- or we could do a teleconference the following Monday afternoon (before I head into three more days of meetings). --- Peggy

I have Cynthia Mitchell in here with me now.

She says that the figures you listed in your attachment are your analysis of our product, and that therefore we cannot re-evaluate them.

I do not see anything in these raw numbers that impacts adversely any privacy or privilege issues.

We can update the public list and send that to you, if you'd prefer. That would allow you to represent that the numbers are current up through now. But if you would prefer, you can use what you have as long as it is represented as complete only through January, 2006.

Let us know your desires - - -

I would love to have an updated list for our research files. For purposes of getting this information out to our participants, I will note that the consultants' summary is based upon information provided as of January 2006. Thanks.

Do you expect to be at your office tomorrow afternoon? I can walk over with the information packet we will have put together for the Working Group. --- Peggy

Peggy - -

I have Cynthia Mitchell in here with me now.

She says that the figures you listed in your attachment are your analysis of our product, and that therefore we cannot re-evaluate them.

I do not see anything in these raw numbers that impacts adversely any privacy or privilege issues.

We can update the public list and send that to you, if you'd prefer. That would allow you to represent that the numbers are current up through now. But if you would prefer, you can use what you have as long as it is represented as complete only through January, 2006.

Let us know your desires - - -

4:00 eastern on Tuesday is fine however, given the financial restrictions that you indicated would be in place for use of my car (I would actually loose money coming to DC) and given the cost of hotels at this time (I can't afford to front these costs and wait for months to be repaid), etc, it would take a miracle for this working group meeting to take place in person. It is looking like the only way it will get done is by teleconference. I also share Tova's concern about the unknown nature of Mr. Perez.

Craig:

This meeting is being held to obtain input from our eight-member Working Group for the project. The group is composed of election lawyers, election officials, and a representative of an advocacy group, all of whom have an interest and some expertise in the identification and/or prosecution of voting fraud and voter intimidation. The group was chosen so that we would have an equal number of folks on each side of the political spectrum, plus some nonpartisan members.

After our consultants review the results of their preliminary research (interviews, literature review, case law), we will ask the Working Group to brainstorm possible next steps for EAC. Our consultants will write a report summarizing the proposals that come out of this meeting. The report will go to the Commissioners, who will decide what they want to do, funds available, and what priority to assigned to the effort(s).

Your participation in this part of the process is extremely important, so I am very happy that you can find time for us that afternoon. I'll get an agenda and other information to you next week. --- Peggy

Hi, Folks:

Teleconference

Are both of you available for a teleconference next Tuesday afternoon at about 4 PM EST? If this does not work for you, please suggest another date and/or time. I would like to discuss our preparations for the Working Group meeting.

Working Group Members

We have a very good person to fill the slot for the nonpartisan local election official: J.R. Perez, Elections Administrator for Guadalupe County, TX. Attached is his bio. Hope you have no objections to him. He is available on May 18. I have place 2 calls to Pat Rogers office, but have not yet received a reply. Job, if you have any pull with him, you may want to contact him, too.

Travel Arrangements

You should make your own travel arrangements, including hotel. Travel time cannot be billed to the contract, except for hours actually worked on the contract (i.e.; reviewing materials in preparation for the meeting, and the like). Current Federal rates follow:

Maximum Lodging = $180 per day- does not include hotel taxes (if you cannot get this rate, we have covered reasonable rates that are a little higher)

Meals & Incidentals = $64 per day (except that it is $48 on the first and last day of travel)

Mileage for Personally Owned Vehicle = $ .445 per mile

Under the new contract, I do not have to fill out a travel authorization for you. I can approve your trip via email. Afterwards, when you turn in your next pay voucher, you can attach the airline receipt (or mileage documentation), hotel receipt(s), and ground transportation receipts and a copy of any printed itineraries. Calculate the total travel expenses due you, including applicable per diem. I do not need meal receipts.

Job, under Federal travel regulations, deviations for personal reasons are not normally accommodated. What you can do, however, is to give me a comparison of the cost of roundtrip mileage, hotel, and per diem of doing it your way against the cost of a roundtrip flight, ground transportation, hotel, and per diem. If your way costs less, it should be no problem to cover the full cost. If your way is more expensive, we may only pay up to the amount of traditional travel. (The same rules apply to me when I travel.) If you can tell me where, other than DC, you will spend the night, I can check on applicable per diem rates.

Subject: Working Group

Hi, Folks:

Teleconference

Are both of you available for a teleconference next Tuesday afternoon at about 4 PM EST? If this does not work for you, please suggest another date and/or time. I would like to discuss our preparations for the Working Group meeting.

Working Group Members

We have a very good person to fill the slot for the nonpartisan local election official: J.R. Perez, Elections Administrator for Guadalupe County, TX. Attached is his bio. Hope you have no objections to him. He is available on May 18. I have place 2 calls to Pat Rogers office, but have not yet received a reply. Job, if you have any pull with him, you may want to contact him, too.

Travel Arrangements

You should make your own travel arrangements, including hotel. Travel time cannot be billed to the contract, except for hours actually worked on the contract (i.e.; reviewing materials in preparation for the meeting, and the like). Current Federal rates follow:

Maximum Lodging = $180 per day- does not include hotel taxes (if you cannot get this rate, we have covered reasonable rates that are a little higher)

Meals & Incidentals = $64 per day (except that it is $48 on the first and last day of travel)

Mileage for Personally Owned Vehicle = $ .445 per mile

Under the new contract, I do not have to fill out a travel authorization for you. I can approve your trip via email. Afterwards, when you turn in your next pay voucher, you can attach the airline receipt (or mileage documentation), hotel receipt(s), and ground transportation receipts and a copy of any printed itineraries. Calculate the total travel expenses due you, including applicable per diem. I do not need meal receipts.

Job, under Federal travel regulations, deviations for personal reasons are not normally accommodated. What you can do, however, is to give me a comparison of the cost of roundtrip mileage, hotel, and per diem of doing it your way against the cost of a roundtrip flight, ground transportation, hotel, and per diem. If your way costs less, it should be no problem to cover the full cost. If your way is more expensive, we may only pay up to the amount of traditional travel. (The same rules apply to me when I travel.) If you can tell me where, other than DC, you will spend the night, I can check on applicable per diem rates.

Peg,

Correct me if I'm wrong, but I think I omitted sending you these specific summaries that are based on complex cases that could not be adequately described within the confines of the nexis article excel spreadsheets. If we can, these should be included, probably on the disc. Sorry.

Craig:

This meeting is being held to obtain input from our eight-member Working Group for the project. The group is composed of election lawyers, election officials, and a representative of an advocacy group, all of whom have an interest and some expertise in the identification and/or prosecution of voting fraud and voter intimidation. The group was chosen so that we would have an equal number of folks on each side of the political spectrum, plus some nonpartisan members.

After our consultants review the results of their preliminary research (interviews, literature review, case law), we will ask the Working Group to brainstorm possible next steps for EAC. Our consultants will write a report summarizing the proposals that come out of this meeting. The report will go to the Commissioners, who will decide what they want to do, funds available, and what priority to assigned to the effort(s).

Your participation in this part of the process is extremely important, so I am very happy that you can find time for us that afternoon. I'll get an agenda and other information to you next week. --- Peggy

Lets raise this issue at the meeting. (I'll add "DRAFT" to the current document.) My concern is that there are a number of requirements in the Voting Rights Act. Not all of them are considered election fraud, when violated. For example, failure to preclear changes in election procedures is not treated as election fraud, though it is actionable. --- Peggy

In the middle of the night I got the feeling that you may be right, that I did do a summary of the existing literature review (that Job, you approved) . I'll have to look for it on Monday (unless I go into the office over the weekend, which is possible). I may be hallucinating, but if not, I'll just present it at the meeting rather than try to get it to them ahead of time. Tova

Cindy --

Can you please check the accuracy of these figures -- which you recall we gave to the EAC a month or so ago -- to ensure that they are up-to-date?

I believe we have had several public events that have taken place since we gave them the Public Fraud List a few weeks ago.

Subject Re: Today's Teleconference

The teleconference is on. However, I am still one person down for the meeting and I am not comfortable. This will have to be discussed since from the start it was agreed that the WG would be equal and if I lost a person Tova would have to loose one. Further and most importantly, I don't yet have a hotel so my attendance is still up in the air. Finally, the agenda is not what we discussed and gives far too much time for areas that can be covered in a short time. Not listed are all of the questions that Tova's proposed agenda had. All in all, it needs to be redone.

4:00 eastern on Tuesday is fine however, given the financial restrictions that you indicated would be in place for use of my car (I would actually loose money coming to DC) and given the cost of hotels at this time (I can't afford to front these costs and wait for months to be repaid), etc, it would take a miracle for this working group meeting to take place in person. It is looking like the only way it will get done is by teleconference. I also share Tova's concern about the unknown nature of Mr. Perez.

Subject Voting Fraud-Voter Intimidation Working Group

Dear Mr. Ginsberg:

This is to confirm my call to your office this morning inviting you to be a member of and attend the upcoming meeting of the U.S. Election Assistance Commission's (EAC) Working Group on Voting Fraud-Voter Intimidation. The meeting is scheduled to take place from 1:00 PM to 5:30 PM on Thursday, May 18th, 2006 at the offices of the U.S. Election Assistance Commission (EAC), 1225 New York Avenue, NW, 11th Floor, Washington, DC.

Section 241 of the Help America Vote Act of 2002 (HAVA) requires EAC to conduct research on election administration issues. Among the tasks listed in the statute are the development of:

- nationwide statistics and methods of identifying, deterring, and investigating voting fraud in elections for Federal office [section 241(b)(6)]; and
- methods of identifying, deterring, and investigating methods of voter intimidation [section 241(b)(7)].

EAC's Board of Advisors recommended that the agency make research on these matters a high priority. Subsequently, the Commission contracted with two consultants (Job Serebrov and Tova Wang) to:

- develop a comprehensive description of what constitutes voting fraud and voter intimidation in the context of Federal elections;
- perform background research (including Federal and State administrative and case law review), identify current activities of key government agencies, civic and advocacy organizations regarding these topics, and deliver a summary of this research and all source documentation;
- establish a project working group, in consultation with EAC, composed of key individuals and representatives of organizations knowledgeable about the topics of voting fraud and voter intimidation;
- provide the description of what constitutes voting fraud and voter intimidation, and the results of the preliminary research to the working group, and convene the working group to discuss potential avenues for future EAC research on this topic; and
- produce a report to EAC summarizing the findings of the preliminary research effort and working group deliberations that includes recommendations for future research, if any;

We strive to include bipartisan representation on the Working Group associated with this project. You were recommended for this project by our Republican consultant, Job Serebrov. Your ideas for possible EAC activities related to this topic will help the agency as it plans future actions to meet its HAVA responsibilities.

If you can find the time in your busy schedule to participate, I will have an information packet delivered to your office by COB, Monday, May 15. Please let me know if you are available. Thank you.

EXCERPTS FROM TEXAS ELECTION CODE

SUBCHAPTER B. COUNTY ELECTIONS ADMINISTRATOR

§ 31.032. APPOINTMENT OF ADMINISTRATOR; COUNTY ELECTION COMMISSION.

(a) The position of county elections administrator is filled by appointment of the county election commission, which consists of:

- (1) the county judge, as chair;
- (2) the county clerk, as vice chair;
- (3) the county tax assessor-collector, as secretary; and
- (4) the county chair of each political party that made nominations

by primary election for the last general election for state and county officers preceding the date of the meeting at which the appointment is made.

(b) The affirmative vote of a majority of the commission's membership is necessary for the appointment of an administrator.

(c) Each appointment must be evidenced by a written resolution or order signed by the number of commission members necessary to make the appointment. Not later than the third day after the date an administrator is appointed, the officer who presided at the meeting shall file a signed copy of the resolution or order with the county clerk. Not later than the third day after the date the copy is filed, the county clerk shall deliver a certified copy of the resolution or order to the secretary of state.

(d) The initial appointment may be made at any time after the adoption of the order creating the position.

§ 31.035. RESTRICTIONS ON POLITICAL ACTIVITIES.

(a) A county elections administrator may not be a candidate for a public office or an office of a political party, hold a public office, or hold an office of or position in a political party. The non-election officials on the Working Group currently include:

- Barry Weinberg, whom you know
- Barbara Arnwine, Lawyers Committee for Civil Rights Under Law (organization associated with the Voting Rights Project and Election Protection)
- Bob Bauer, Perkins Coie, DC (Democrat attorney)
- Mark "Thor" Hearne, Lathrop & Gage, St Louis, MO (Republican attorney)

I am trying to recruit one other Republican attorney, Patrick Rogers, Modrall, Sperling, Roehl, Harris and Sisk, NM, who was recommended by our Republican consultant. He would replace an original member who is no longer available.

I know that Barbara has associated at conferences and in legislative efforts with Wade Henderson, Leadership Conference on Civil Rights. Also, the Lawyers Committee for Civil Rights is listed as on of many members of the Executive Committee for the Leadership Conference on Civil Rights (see http://www.civilrights.org/about/lccr/executive\_committee.html).

Craig:

This meeting is being held to obtain input from our eight-member Working Group for the project. The group is composed of election lawyers, election officials, and a representative of an advocacy group, all of whom have an interest and some expertise in the identification and/or prosecution of voting fraud and voter intimidation. The group was chosen so that we would have an equal number of folks on each side of the political spectrum, plus some nonpartisan members.

After our consultants review the results of their preliminary research (interviews, literature review, case law), we will ask the Working Group to brainstorm possible next steps for EAC. Our consultants will write a report summarizing the proposals that come out of this meeting. The report will go to the Commissioners, who will decide what they want to do, funds available, and what priority to assigned to the effort(s).

Your participation in this part of the process is extremely important, so I am very happy that you can find time for us that afternoon. I'll get an agenda and other information to you next week. --- Peggy

Also, I will lose one of my two consultants in June, so I'm trying to wrap up this project (and get the final report from the consultants) by the end of May.

My problem is that agency staff is booked most of the week of 5/21. Monday through Wednesday are taken up with meetings of the Standards Board Executive Committee, the full Standards Board, and the Board of Advisors. Thursday, we have EAC's public meeting. Also, I will lose one of my two consultants in June, so I'm trying to wrap up this project (and get the final report from the consultants) by the end of May.

I sent him an email to find out when he is home from work. Perhaps lunch time or early evening will work for him. I plan to include him in all correspondence regarding the final report and do expect him to contribute. He has already responded that he might be able to add to the draft recommendations you submitted (which would have to be reviewed by you), so let's see. As of this morning, I still don't have the transcript. --- Peggy

Hi Peg,

How do you recommend dealing with this? I have this feeling like he's trying to create a situation where I will have to write it myself. Thanks. Tova

Hi Job,

Peg tells me that we should now be getting the transcript early next week. Regardless, we should talk about the organization and distribution of work on the final report and try to finally get it done. Would it be possible for you to do a call before you leave for work in the morning, say 8 am your time, on Wednesday? If not, could you do 6 pm your time on Wednesday? Thanks.

Any sign of the transcript? Will the other members of the working group get a copy? I have had questions from several about it.

Peggy:

Any sign of the transcript? Will the other members of the working group get a copy? I have had questions from several about it.

If you want to talk I can do so this Friday at 6 pm your time.

Peggy:

I can't predict when I get home but it is between 5:30 and 6:30 my time. I know that is generally too late to have a teleconference.

I plan to review Tova's recommendations this weekend and work on my own as well as expanding the explanation of the case section.

Please see what your financial officer did with regards to my travel.

Thank you,

Job

I just arrived home for lunch. I can no longer take time during the work day for telephone conferences. As I told you I will need to finish this project after daily working hours. I am still getting things done from being out for ten days. I will review Tova's recommendations and expand on mine this weekend.

Also, I sent you an e-mail asking how you handled the mileage portion of my travel voucher?

What time do you arrive home from work? Perhaps we could talk then?

full reimbursement on the grounds that your actual total travel costs are less than the estimated total travel costs if you had flown to DC, stayed in our more expensive hotels, and received the higher per diem for 3 days (instead of 1). I have not yet received a response from her and she has been out of the office much of this week, so I don't know what she decided to do. --- Peggy

Peg:

I just arrived home for lunch. I can no longer take time during the work day for telephone conferences. As I told you I will need to finish this project after daily working hours. I am still getting things done from being out for ten days. I will review Tova's recommendations and expand on mine this weekend.

Also, I sent you an e-mail asking how you handled the mileage portion of my travel voucher?

Peggy:

When Tova sent me her suggestions I made some changes and additions. Tova later wrote to me and said she expected me to come up with my own list. Due to time constraints and at risk of duplication I rather go with the corrected suggestions.

Peggy:

In the transcript, there is one serious mistake that must be changed immediately. On page 5 it indicates that I helped review and draft changes to the election code of Libya. It should be Namibia not Libya. The reason this is so serious if it stands is that at the time I reviewed Namibia's Code it was illegal for Americans to deal with Libya. I need to know that this has been corrected any ALL parties who have seen the transcript notified.

I think they are panicking because they are preparing to travel tomorrow and may not have time to submit a revised version. They also are resisting changes to their interview summaries because the summaries represent what they think they heard. I was there at the interview and I heard what you said. I'm not sure that either of them heard everything (including the nuances) because so much of the information was new to them and it was one of their earlier interviews. I'm sorry I did not catch the defects before the summary went out.

My first concern is ensuring that the Working Group has the correct information. Then, we can deal with what version, if any, goes in the final report. Do you want me to excerpt the corrections from your email and submit them to the Working Group? --- Peggy

Peg - -

I have read over the materials you sent to me and viewed the pieces on the CD.

I have only one correction:

I did not say that offenders who receive target letters routinely request - - or routinely receive - - audiences here at DOJHQ. That is very rare. Instead, what usually happens is that once a subject for an election fraud investigation is advised that he or she is going to be charged that person usually enters into plea negotiations and ultimately pleads guilty. Very few federal election fraud cases go to trial. When a subject does request a HQ interview or a HW hearing, it would be held in the first instance by myself. But again, Peg, that is rare.

019657

Also, while the occurrences of prosecutions of isolated instances of felons and alien voters and double voters has increased, we still aggressively and I believe quite successfully pursue systematic schemes to corrupt the electoral process, as the cases we brought recently out of Knott and Pike Counties in Kentucky, those we brought out of Lincoln and Logan Counties in West Virginia, and those we brought in New Hampshire growing out of the jamming of get0-out-the-vote phone bank lines attest.

Subject RE: Your Materials

The first item is not as big a deal as the second one: the processes under which subjects of investigations come to Jesus is not as important as the overall assessment of our law enforcement achievements. But stressing the isolated test cases we brought - - and will continue to bring - - to deter things like felon voting, alien voting and double voting, which not mentioning such significant achievements as the five case PROJECTS mentioned in my last e-mail - - misrepresents what we are doing and the deterrent message we are trying to communicate.

I appreciate that these two young people may have found themselves in a Brave New World when they came over here. It showed in their questioning. But the fact that criminal law enforcement is not at all similar to preventative legal relief (as under the Voting Rights Act) or civil relief (as election contest litigation) is I guess more of a problem than I at first foresaw. My real concern is that the civil rights groups - - with whom we over here have an amazing amount of common grounds - - will take the singling out of the felon and alien voter cases as evincing a malevolent aggression on their constituencies. That is not the case. We are only enforcing the law.

Subject RE: Report on Voting Fraud-Voter Intimidation Research

Peg --

This is a complicated issue largely because of two things: 1) there is a lot of ambiguity out there as to what constitutes "intimidation." To the civil rights community, "intimidation" means anything that makes voting uncomfortable or less than automatic. To us in the criminal law enforcement "intimidation" means threats of economic or physical nature made to force or prevent voting. Only the latter involve aggravating factors that warrant putting offenders in jail, and the statutes that address "intimidation" from a criminal perspective are thus limited. We have never had many "intimidation" criminal cases. For one thing, in this modern post voting rights era, there is not a lot of physical/economic duress out there in the voting context -- at least not that I have seen. For another, where it does occur it is very hard to investigate and detect as victims who have been physically or economically intimidated are not likely to come to the FBI.

The bottom line is that we take matters that do present predication for physical or economically based "intimidation" very seriously, AND that we are being extremely proactive in trying to find ways to prosecute matters involving voter suppression as in the Tobin cases in New Hampshire where the local GOP tried to jam telephone lines for a GOTV effort run by the Dems. But even there -- the usual "suppression" matter involves flyers that are passed around giving out misleading information about an election, and we have investigated every one of those that came to our attention last election cycle. We were not able to identify the person(s) responsible for printing the misleading flyers in any of these. But we sure as heck tried.

I'm putting the finishing touches on a status report to the EAC Standards Board and EAC Board of Advisors on our Voting Fraud-Voter Intimidation research project. For the most part, I am using our consultants summaries for the report, but one bullet under the interview summaries is giving me heartburn. It is the bullet that references the decrease in DOJ voter intimidation actions. It is one of the places in which our consultants had indicated that your office is focussing on prosecuting individuals. I have reworded it and would like your feedback on the revision:

Several people indicate - including representatives from DOJ -- that for various reasons, the Department of Justice is bringing fewer voter intimidation and suppression cases now, and has increased its focus on matters such as noncitizen voting, double voting, and felon voting. While the Voting Section of the Civil Rights Division focuses on systemic patterns of malfeasance, the Election Crimes Branch of the Public Integrity Section has increased prosecutions of individual instances of felon, alien, and double voting while also maintaining an aggressive pursuit of systematic schemes to corrupt the electoral process.

Please suggest any changes that you think would further clarify the current approach. --- Peggy

Let me try to do it, Peg. Again what I do not want to see occur is for the LCCR to start attacking us. We have more in common with them than I had originally assumed, thanks to the write-ups of their interviews. We need to promote what we have in common not try to score political points. But I will try to correct the records as long as you will agree you heard what I said the way I know I said it!

The first item is not as big a deal as the second one: the processes under which subjects of investigations come to Jesus is not as important as the overall assessment of our law enforcement achievements. But stressing the isolated test cases we brought - - and will continue to bring - - to deter things like felon voting, alien voting and double voting, which not mentioning such significant achievements as the five case PROJECTS mentioned in my last e-mail - - misrepresents what we are doing and the deterrent message we are trying to communicate.

I appreciate that these two young people may have found themselves in a Brave New World when they came over here. It showed in their questioning. But the fact that criminal law enforcement is not at all similar to preventative legal relief (as under the Voting Rights Act) or civil relief (as election contest litigation) is I guess more of a problem than I at first foresaw. My real concern is that the civil rights groups - - with whom we over here have an amazing amount of common grounds - - will take the singling out of the felon and alien voter cases as evincing a malevolent aggression on their constituencies. That is not the case. We are only enforcing the law.

I think they are panicking because they are preparing to travel tomorrow and may not have time to submit a revised version. They also are resisting changes to their interview summaries because the summaries represent what they think they heard. I was there at the interview and I heard what you said. I'm not sure that either of them heard everything (including the nuances) because so much of the information was new to them and it was one of their earlier interviews. I'm sorry I did not catch the defects before the summary went out.

My first concern is ensuring that the Working Group has the correct information. Then, we can deal with what version, if any, goes in the final report. Do you want me to excerpt the corrections from your email and submit them to the Working Group? --- Peggy

Peg --

I have read over the materials you sent to me and viewed the pieces on the CD.

I have only one correction:

I did not say that offenders who receive target letters routinely request -- or routinely receive -- audiences here at DOJHQ. That is very rare. Instead, what usually happens is that once a subject for an election fraud investigation is advised that he or she is going to be charged that person usually enters into plea negotiations and ultimately pleads guilty. Very few federal election fraud cases go to trial. When a subject does request a HQ interview or a HW hearing, it would be held in the first instance by myself. But again, Peg, that is rare.

Also, while the occurrences of prosecutions of isolated instances of felons and alien voters and double voters has increased, we still aggressively and I believe quite successfully pursue systematic schemes to corrupt the electoral process, as the cases we brought recently out of Knott and Pike Counties in Kentucky, those we brought out of Lincoln and Logan Counties in West Virginia, and those we brought in New Hampshire growing out of the jamming of get0-out-the-vote phone bank lines attest.

Below is Craig's response to the request to interview AUSAs. It does not appear that this avenue is likely because the AUSAs are so busy..

Also, he asked about permission for other folks to attend the election crimes training session, and the answer was "no". (I can't even get in, and I'm a federal employee.). I understand that a good part of the reason is practical -- they are having enough trouble accommodating the folks that are required to come.

At the Advisory Board meeting we had last week, your two contractors asked to interview the over-100 AUSAs who are serving as District Election Officers in connection with the Fraud study.

This request needs to be addressed to Natalie Voris of EOUSA per the message from here that follows.

If the contractors require additional information in connection with the Fraud Study, and should EOUSA not be able to satisfy their needs n they can communicate with me on criminal issues and Cameron Quinn on Civil Rights issues.

I will be here when you arrive later today at the Board of Advisors meeting when you arrive to talk to us at 4:30.

Ms. Voris' message follows:

Per the USAM, all requests for interviews/surveys/research projects that involve USAOs must be approved by EOUSA. I am pasting the provision below - the contact name needs to be updated. Requests should come to me, as the Acting Counsel to the Director.

Thanks,
Natalie

Subject information you requested

Hi Peg,

Attached please find our joint working definition of voter fraud and intimidation.

This is also to let you know that Job and I have agreed that I may speak with political and social scientists with expertise in methodology and data collection alone.

Finally, the types of expenses that we are incurring unrelated to travel include such items as long distance phone calls, particularly between Job and myself, but also between me and the political scientists mentioned above; and books such as John Fund's "Stealing Elections," Andrew Gumbel's "Stealing the Election," and "Deliver the Vote: A History of Election Fraud, an American Political Tradition-1742-2004" by Tracy Campbell, which cost in the $25 range each. I also ordered the 2005 National Directory of Prosecuting Attorneys for $50. Another potential expense might be shipping fees if we want to exchange material that cannot be emailed. Please let us know how you would like us to arrange for reimbursement for such expenses.

Thanks.

Job,

I was using Lexis because I don't have inter-semester access to Westlaw. In addition, Westlaw does not allow me to restrict to specific dates. However, I called the dean of my school this morning and he granted me access to Westlaw for the break on a limited basis, so I will start fresh with the terms.

In the student version of Westlaw, I can choose cases in the past 3 or 10 years, but cannot select a date range. I will use the 10 year limitation unless you write to tell me otherwise.

I'll send results tonight.

Tamar:

I received your first Zip File today and there is another major problem. These look like Lexis and not Westlaw searches. The way this material is presented it is impossible to tell what is going on. I stated in my last e-mail that I wanted you to use Westlaw because you can pull up a short case evaluation for each case. These are no good to us without these evaluations. The evaluations list the parties, a short statement of facts and a short summary of the court's holding. I can only evaluate these cases with such a summary. Sorry to send you back to the drawing board but better now then after you substantially completed the assignment. If you can get these kind of evaluations with Lexis then go ahead but if not you need to use Westlaw.

Subject RE: Teleconference With Legal Clerk and Intern

The Law Clerk's name is Tamar Nedzar. She is very sharp. Our intern's name is Devon Romig.

Tamar has the most recent lists of search terms and may have questions about them. Devon will need to know how you want the press clippings sorted by type of voting fraud. I think we need to give her a specific list. that, I hope, will not overlap. For example, do you want her to sort using the term Absentee Ballot

Fraud when that can involve voter intimidation/coercion/undue influence, vote buying, ballot tampering, and ballot box stuffing (by voting in the name of another or under a fictitious name).

We need to discuss this because I am concerned that we currently do not have a full written description of what does and does not constitute voting fraud and voter intimidation. The current written definition excludes voter registration shenanigans; yet, voter registration applications submitted with fictitious names or that falsely affirm eligibility to vote are considered election crimes that can have an impact on election results. Specifically, they are used in schemes to vote more than once or to have ineligible persons participate in voting. Also, an increasing number of States are including as an election crime the knowing and willful destruction of voter registration applications by voter registration drives and their failure to transmit such applications to the election office in a timely manner.

If we define voting fraud as any illegal act that has a clear and direct distorting impact on the election results, then administrative mistakes that violate federal or State law could be included. For federal elections, administrative mistakes definitely are not considered voting fraud. The examples provided for "de facto" fraud and "quasi" fraud also are not likely to be considered part of voting fraud and voter intimidation without evidence that there also is ballot box stuffing, vote buying, tampering with ballots or vote tallies, voter intimidation, etc. Although a number of things other than voting fraud and voter intimidation can (and do) distort election results, EAC is handling such issues under separate research efforts.

For your information, I have attached a speech presented by Craig Donsanto (complete with typos) that addresses the issue of defining voting fraud. Perhaps it will be of interest to you.

Subject: Search Results Example

Tova and Job,

It was good to talk to you today. Hope you are doing well. I've attached my African American search results below. It encompasses all of the terms you suggested having to do with African Americans.

The following is a search I used to truncate words and combine terms, but I still got a large number of results:

Vot! and deny and black or vot! and black and challenge or vot! and black and reject or vot! and black or vot! And deny and African w/s American or vot! And African w/s American and reject or challenge or vot! And African w/s American or election and black and deny or challenge or reject or election and black or election and African w/s American and deny or challenge or reject or election and African w/s American or ballot and security and black or ballot and security and African w/s American or black and vot! And suppress! Or African w/s American and vot! And suppress or African w/s and disenfranchis! or black and disenfranchis!

If this search yields useful cases for you, I can continue searching using the same strategy. If not, please provide me with additional guidelines and I will do my best!

Please feel free to contact me should you have any questions or need additional information.

Subject word searches

In the course of compiling a list of search terms for the nexis research, I thought of some major omissions to the WESTLAW list.

Everywhere we have a term such as African American and .... or Latino and .... we should also have the following:

Asian American (and if possible, Chinese, Korean, Vietnamese) Native American Indian
Indian Country

Moreover, everywhere we have poll worker or poll inspector we should also have the following:

Poll judges
Poll monitors
Poll observers

Let me know if you want me to re-do the list.

Can you give us a better idea of the other EAC research projects that you think we might overlap with if we include these activities? Job and I had strong reasons for what we did and did not include and how we wanted to frame the term fraud, so we do indeed need to discuss this -- perhaps before or after the discussion with Tamar and Devon?

Thanks. Tova

Subject: RE: Teleconference With Legal Clerk and Intern

The Law Clerk's name is Tamar Nedzar. She is very sharp. Our intern's name is Devon Romig.

Tamar has the most recent lists of search terms and may have questions about them. Devon will need to know how you want the press clippings sorted by type of voting fraud. I think we need to give her a specific list. that, I hope, will not overlap. For example, do you want her to sort using the term Absentee Ballot

Fraud when that can involve voter intimidation/coercion/undue influence, vote buying, ballot tampering, and ballot box stuffing (by voting in the name of another or under a fictitious name).

We need to discuss this because I am concerned that we currently do not have a full written description of what does and does not constitute voting fraud and voter intimidation. The current written definition excludes voter registration shenanigans; yet, voter registration applications submitted with fictitious names or that falsely affirm eligibility to vote are considered election crimes that can have an impact on election results. Specifically, they are used in schemes to vote more than once or to have ineligible persons participate in voting. Also, an increasing number of States are including as an election crime the knowing and willful destruction of voter registration applications by voter registration drives and their failure to transmit such applications to the election office in a timely manner.

If we define voting fraud as any illegal act that has a clear and direct distorting impact on the election results, then administrative mistakes that violate federal or State law could be included. For federal elections, administrative mistakes definitely are not considered voting fraud. The examples provided for "de facto" fraud and "quasi" fraud also are not likely to be considered part of voting fraud and voter intimidation without evidence that there also is ballot box stuffing, vote buying, tampering with ballots or vote tallies, voter intimidation, etc. Although a number of things other than voting fraud and voter intimidation can (and do) distort election results, EAC is handling such issues under separate research efforts.

For your information, I have attached a speech presented by Craig Donsanto (complete with typos) that addresses the issue of defining voting fraud. Perhaps it will be of interest to you.

Devon set up the folders before she completed her review of the articles. I saw that the folders were empty, but did not ask her to remove them. If you copy the CD contents to a file on your computer, you may yet use the empty folders to file relevant articles found subsequent to Devon's sorting. For example, I have a few recent articles that I will send via email. When we come across articles that belong in the empty folders, we can put them there. --- Peggy

Subject: Requesting Your Help-Preliminary Research on Voting Fraud and Voter Intimidation

Hi, Craig:

As I mentioned in my telephone call earlier today, I have been assigned to manage the U.S. Election Assistance Commission's (EAC) preliminary research project on voting fraud and voter intimidation. I know these are subjects with which you are intimately familiar and recognize that the project needs the information and insights that you can provide, so I am asking for your help.

As you know, section 241 of the Help America Vote Act of 2002 requires EAC to conduct research on election administration issues. Among the issues listed in the statute are:

- * nationwide statistics and methods of identifying, deterring, and investigating voting fraud in elections for Federal office [section 241(b)(6)]; and

- * identifying, deterring, and investigating methods of voter intimidation [section 241(b)(7)].

EAC's Board of Advisors recommended that EAC make research on these topics a high priority. Subsequently, the Commission contracted with two consultants (Tova Wang and Job Serebrov) to:

- * develop a comprehensive description of what constitutes voting fraud and voter intimidation in the context of Federal elections;

- * perform background research (including Federal and State administrative and case law review), identify current activities of key government agencies, civic and advocacy organizations regarding these topics, and deliver a summary of this research and all source documentation;

- * establish a project working group, in consultation with EAC, composed of key individuals and representatives of organizations knowledgeable about the topics of voting fraud and voter intimidation;

- * provide the description of what constitutes voting fraud and voter intimidation and the results of the background research to the working group;

- * convene the working group to discuss potential avenues for future EAC research on this topic;

- * produce a report to EAC summarizing the findings of the preliminary research effort and working group deliberations that includes recommendations for future research, if any;

- * draft the project scope and Statement of Work for future research on these topics, if EAC decides to pursue one or more recommendations for future research.

At minimum, I hope that you can serve as an information resource for the team of two EAC consultants hired to conduct the research and me. I also would like to explore the feasibility of your participation in meetings of the project working group.

If EAC needs to submit a more formal request for your help, please advise me how to do so. Also, it would help me to know if there are any restrictions on your participation, other than anticipated restrictions on the time you have available.

Let me know if you have any questions about this request or the research project. I look forward to hearing from you and hope you are doing well.

Subject Re: Meetings

I am available for a 3-way teleconference after Noon on Wednesday this week. My schedule on Thursday and Friday is flexible, as well. When would be best for you two? I can call the telephone numbers you prefer and set up the conference call from my desk.

Both the 24th or the 28th are fine with me for the face-to-face meeting. Which do you prefer? If you have no preference, I suggest we pick the earlier of the two.

Regarding your contracts, I understand that the contract will carry the date of 9/25/05. All contracts have to be signed by the Chair, who has been out of the office on Commission business. I have been told that she will sign off on your contracts, among others, today. Our financial officer will send it to you after that. I'll try to obtain copies and fax the appropriate one to you as soon as they have been signed.

Regarding your pay, the contract will state that you should submit a monthly invoice to EAC for payment of your fee for that month. The contract is for 6 months, so our Finance Officer, Diana Scott, wants you to submit an invoice to her each month for 1/6th of the total payment, beginning 10/25/05.

I look forward to talking again with the two of you.

I will initiate the calls to you two on Wednesday. The number I have for Tova is [REDACTED]. For Job, I have [REDACTED]. Let me know if I should use a different number for you on Wednesday.

Thanks, Tova, for the copy of the draft workplan you provided to Karen. I'll take a look at it and, hopefully, provide some feedback on Wednesday. I have not yet caught up to all the paperwork and emails that preceded my assignment to this project. Karen just handed me a folder full of documents that should help.

I think you may have received an email from Nicole Mortellito regarding an October 14 meeting. If you two cannot come in person but can attend via phone, just let me know. Nicole's message has information regarding hotel rates that conflicts with what I've just sent you. I've asked her to double check her information because I have another contractor that has had no problem obtaining government rate at hotels.

Yes, you will be paid on a monthly basis. You can file your first invoice on October 25, according to Diana Scott.

Peg, This all sounds good. Will you be calling us on Wednesday?

I should not need a hotel for the 28th. Just let me know what time. Are there expense forms we should have for reimbursement?

On the work product, we did send Karen a very preliminary draft of a work plan. I attach it again here and we can talk about it more on Wednesday.

My only money question is, are we being paid on a monthly basis? And if so, when does that begin? I

Tova and Job:

Teleconference -

Let's schedule the teleconference for 4:00 PM on Wednesday, October 5. Gavin Gilmour will join us.

Meeting -

October 28 is fine for the face-to-face meeting in DC. We have allocated $5,000 to each of you to cover reasonable and necessary travel and other incidental expenses. Expenses claimed for reimbursement need to be itemized, with appropriate receipts provided. You should be able to obtain the Federal government rate at an area hotel (if you plan to stay overnight). If the hotel needs a letter from EAC (in lieu of showing them your signed contract), just let me know. Airlines apparently no longer honor government rates for government contractors. Rail carriers may provide government rates for government contractors. If you drive, the current government rate for a personally owned vehicle (POV) is 48.5 cents per mile.

Deliverables -

The first item on the list of deliverables is the draft project workplan, which is due ASAP after award. Would it be possible for the two of you to deliver a draft workplan to me via email by 10/11? That would be after we have had our teleconference to work out lingering questions.

Questions for Finance -

If you have questions for our Finance Officer, you can reach her via email at dscott@eac.gov. I would appreciate it if you would cc: me on such emails, so that I know to follow up with her.

Tamar:

You are not going to be able to place all of these word searches together. We need you to take each term on the list and do a search on it. You can only merge terms when it will not add other terms and therefore affect the outcome. For instance, vote and voter could probable be merged. I know this creates much much more work but it can't be helped. I would like you to pull the first 50 cases for each set of terms and send them to us with a short case summary (I know Westlaw lets you do a short case summary). From there we will have to read the cases and decide if we need any others in that search term.

Job

Tova and Job,

It was good to talk to you today. Hope you are doing well. I've attached my African American search results below. It encompasses all of the terms you suggested having to do with African Americans.

The following is a search I used to truncate words and combine terms, but I still got a large number of results:

Vot! and deny and black or vot! and black and challenge or vot! and black and reject or vot! and black or vot! And deny and African w/s American or vot! And African w/s American and reject or challenge or vot! And African w/s American or election and black and deny or challenge or reject or election and black or election and African w/s American and deny or challenge or reject or election and African w/s American or ballot and security and black or ballot and security and African w/s American or black and vot! And suppress! Or African w/s American and vot! And suppress or African w/s and disenfranchis! or black and disenfranchis!

If this search yields useful cases for you, I can continue searching using the same strategy. If not, please provide me with additional guidelines and I will do my best!

Greetings-

Tom Wilkey and I have just completed a series of very informative and productive conversations with each of you and are anxious to move to the next step of this process.

We hope to assemble our consultant team on this project, within the next three weeks and are presently awaiting final approval of your contracts from our Commissioners. We anticipate this will take place in the next week to ten days.

We would like to assemble the team- Steve Ansolabehere of MIT, Tova Wang from The New Century Foundation and Job Serebrov, who has worked extensively on these issues for the State of Arkansas, during the week of September 11. Please get back to us with some tentative dates during that week that might work with your schedule.

We look forward to working with all of you and appreciate your efforts on behalf of the EAC.

Subject Wednesday Teleconference

Based on your feedback, I would like to schedule a teleconference among the three of us at 3:30 PM EST today --- to discuss any remaining issues regarding what we mean by voting fraud and voter intimidation, and what we want in the search terms. Then, I can bring Tamar and Devon in to join us at 3:45. Does that work for you two?

Thanks Peg. I would think we would want to meet with Craig for at least an hour. We could schedule it for an hour if he is OK with it running over if necessary. If we would like statistical data from him should we request that in advance or wait until we see him to discuss what he can provide us with?

Also, does the below mean I will be receiving all three payments at once?

Thanks again. Tova

Hi, Tova;

How much time do you want to schedule for the meeting with Donsanto ? An hour? We've just received his response to our request confirming that he is pleased to be of assistance, which means he has received the OK from his superiors. I also want to include him in any Working Group discussions, although he will not be named as a member of that group. He is a great resource because he is smart and organized, and has years of experience in this area as a career DOJ attorney. I find that he is not shy about identifying challenges and noting improvements that he thinks are needed.

I signed off on all 3 of your invoices. [REDACTED]

Subject: Donsanto Interview & Payments

Tova and Job:

Craig Donsanto would like to meet at his office at 2 PM on Friday, January 13. I can either meet you there, or escort you there after we meet at EAC. (His office is within walking distance of EAC.) Please remember to bring ID, as we have to show it when we sign in.

He would prefer that you send any requests for data through me, so just let me know in more detail what you want. I suggest that we submit requests for any information that you deem appropriate, before the interview, so that you can review it before we go in. We can always request more information after the interview, if something comes up during our discussion.

Regarding questions about pending payments, Job will receive two more payments (perhaps at the same time, perhaps on separate days) and Tova will receive 3 payments (possibly all at the same time).

Hi Peggy,

Thanks for getting all this information for us. We are also progressing on our work nicely already. One question: what is the per diem for trips to DC? That doesn't seem to be listed, I guess because there is a presumption people are travelling from DC. This is obviously not an urgent question, so whenever you can get around to it. Thanks. Good Morning Job an Tova:

I still do not have copies of your signed contracts. I understand that they may have to be revised if the project is going to use an EAC intern and EAC Westlaw access. I've scheduled a meeting with one of our attorneys this week to discuss the matter and will get back to you with further information, when I have it.

By now, you should have heard that the October 14 contractor meeting has been cancelled. Instead, EAC has scheduled a couple of staff meetings to review requirements for invoices and requests for reimbursement. I should have more information for you on this front by next Monday.

Today, I am sending by Federal Express the most recent copy of the Department of Justice's Federal Prosecution of Election Offenses and the Federal Election Commission's Innovations in Election Administration 8: Election Document Retention in an Age of High Technology. Let me know if you do not have it within a couple of days.

New per diem rates for federal travelers are effective October 1, 2005. You can find these rates at http://www.gsa.gov/Portal/gsa/ep/contentView.do?programId=9704&channelId=-15943&oid=16365&contentId=17943&pageTypeId=8203&contentType=GSA\_BASIC&programPage=%2Fep%2Fprogram%2FgsaBasic.jsp&P=MTT.

Peggy:

I think that you have hit the major problem in voter fraud---the federal/state system. We are essentially operating under state laws that control federal elections. Administrative mistakes can amount to voter fraud because the state system controls voting procedure. I must strongly disagree with you as to whether de facto or quasi fraud needs anything else. In my 15 years of election practice and administration it needed nothing else.

We can discuss the rest of your additions to our difinition at our conference call.

Subject Requesting Your Help-Preliminary Research on Voting Fraud and Voter Intimidation

Hi, Craig:

As I mentioned in my telephone call earlier today, I have been assigned to manage the U.S. Election Assistance Commission's (EAC) preliminary research project on voting fraud and voter intimidation. I know these are subjects with which you are intimately familiar and recognize that the project needs the information and insights that you can provide, so I am asking for your help.

As you know, section 241 of the Help America Vote Act of 2002 requires EAC to conduct research on election administration issues. Among the issues listed in the statute are:

- nationwide statistics and methods of identifying, deterring, and investigating voting fraud in elections for Federal office [section 241(b)(6)]; and
- identifying, deterring, and investigating methods of voter intimidation [section 241(b)(7)].

EAC's Board of Advisors recommended that EAC make research on these topics a high priority. Subsequently, the Commission contracted with two consultants (Tova Wang and Job Serebrov) to:

- develop a comprehensive description of what constitutes voting fraud and voter intimidation in the context of Federal elections;
- perform background research (including Federal and State administrative and case law review), identify current activities of key government agencies, civic and advocacy organizations regarding these topics, and deliver a summary of this research and all source documentation;
- establish a project working group, in consultation with EAC, composed of key individuals and representatives of organizations knowledgeable about the topics of voting fraud and voter intimidation;
- provide the description of what constitutes voting fraud and voter intimidation and the results of the background research to the working group;
- convene the working group to discuss potential avenues for future EAC research on this topic;
- produce a report to EAC summarizing the findings of the preliminary research effort and working group deliberations that includes recommendations for future research, if any;
- draft the project scope and Statement of Work for future research on these topics, if EAC decides to pursue one or more recommendations for future research.

At minimum, I hope that you can serve as an information resource for the team of two EAC consultants hired to conduct the research and me. I also would like to explore the feasibility of your participation in meetings of the project working group.

If EAC needs to submit a more formal request for your help, please advise me how to do so. Also, it would help me to know if there are any restrictions on your participation, other than anticipated restrictions on the time you have available.

Let me know if you have any questions about this request or the research project. I look forward to hearing from you and hope you are doing well.

Hi Job,

The Westlaw search took more than half an hour-I think because I can only download results into ASCII format. I did find a way to add a case summary to the Lexis output. I have attached the first search below. If this is useful to you, I would rather use Lexis because output into a PDF file is faster. If you'd still prefer me to use Westlaw, I'll have to figure out a way to shorten the search times.

Please use the 10 year range. The case summary is the most important item. In the US Courts version of Westlaw you can restrict by date.

Tova and Job:

Teleconference -

Let's schedule the teleconference for 4:00 PM on Wednesday, October 5. Gavin Gilmour will join us.

Meeting -

October 28 is fine for the face-to-face meeting in DC. We have allocated $5,000 to each of you to cover reasonable and necessary travel and other incidental expenses. Expenses claimed for reimbursement need to be itemized, with appropriate receipts provided. You should be able to obtain the Federal government rate at an area hotel (if you plan to stay overnight). If the hotel needs a letter from EAC (in lieu of showing them your signed contract), just let me know. Airlines apparently no longer honor government rates for government contractors. Rail carriers may provide government rates for government contractors. If you drive, the current government rate for a personally owned vehicle (POV) is 48.5 cents per mile.

Deliverables -

The first item on the list of deliverables is the draft project workplan, which is due ASAP after award. Would it be possible for the two of you to deliver a draft workplan to me via email by 10/11? That would be after we have had our teleconference to work out lingering questions.

Questions for Finance -

If you have questions for our Finance Officer, you can reach her via email at dscott@eac.gov. I would appreciate it if you would cc: me on such emails, so that I know to follow up with her.

Wednesday.

Thanks, Tova, for the copy of the draft workplan you provided to Karen. I'll take a look at it and, hopefully, provide some feedback on Wednesday. I have not yet caught up to all the paperwork and emails that preceded my assignment to this project. Karen just handed me a folder full of documents that should help.

I think you may have received an email from Nicole Mortellito regarding an October 14 meeting. If you two cannot come in person but can attend via phone, just let me know. Nicole's message has information regarding hotel rates that conflicts with what I've just sent you. I've asked her to double check her information because I have another contractor that has had no problem obtaining government rate at hotels.

Yes, you will be paid on a monthly basis. You can file your first invoice on October 25, according to Diana Scott.

Peg, This all sounds good. Will you be calling us on Wednesday?

I should not need a hotel for the 28th. Just let me know what time. Are there expense forms we should have for reimbursement?

On the work product, we did send Karen a very preliminary draft of a work plan. I attach it again here and we can talk about it more on Wednesday.

My only money question is, are we being paid on a monthly basis? And if so, when does that begin? I assume this all is in the contracts we'll be getting...

Thanks.

Tova and Job,

Thank you for your feedback. There are two factors that went into my decision to perform the search in the manner I indicated which may have a bearing on whether you want me to do each search individually.

First, I checked with the Lexis representative at my school, who suggested the search methodology I used. She indicated that I would get the same results if I did the searches separately or together.

Second, as I am in the midst of finals, as you can imagine, I have limited time to devote to work. I will only be in the office two days in the next two weeks and will not be able to do much work from home. As a result, I probably won't be able to do the majority of the searches until just after Christmas if I am to do the each term separately. If not, I should be able to get you results by the week before Christmas.

I will do whatever you and Peggy decide given your timelines, but wanted to let you know the factors that went into my decision.

Tamar:

You are not going to be able to place all of these word searches together. We need you to take each term on the list and do a search on it. You can only merge terms when it will not add other terms and therefore affect the outcome. For instance, vote and voter could probable be merged. I know this creates much much more work but it can't be helped. I would like you to pull the first 50 cases for each set of terms and send them to us with a short case summary (I know Westlaw lets you do a short case summary). From there we will have to read the cases and decide if we need any others in that search term.

Regards,

Job

Hi Peg,

I will be down in DC next Tuesday for a meeting. I wonder if it would be useful for me to come by -- I think you mentioned at one point you had a big collection of articles. It would be great to be able to take a look at them. I'm available mid to late afternoon. Let me know.

Any word on the contract situation?

Hi Peggy,

I hope you are feeling better!

I am free 4-6 on Wednesday, 10:30-1:00 on Thursday and all day Friday for a call. The 24th is fine for me, so just tell us what time is works.

On the contracts, I'm a little confused by the start date being 9/25 when we have not been able to start the work yet. What will the implications of this be for the work product delivery?

Thanks, and I look forward to speaking with you and seeing you soon.

I am available for a 3-way teleconference after Noon on Wednesday this week. My schedule on Thursday and Friday is flexible, as well. When would be best for you two? I can call the telephone numbers you prefer and set up the conference call from my desk.

Both the 24th or the 28th are fine with me for the face-to-face meeting. Which do you prefer? If you have no preference, I suggest we pick the earlier of the two.

Regarding your contracts, I understand that the contract will carry the date of 9/25/05. All contracts have to be signed by the Chair, who has been out of the office on Commission business. I have been told that she will sign off on your contracts, among others, today. Our financial officer will send it to you after that. I'll try to obtain copies and fax the appropriate one to you as soon as they have been signed.

Regarding your pay, the contract will state that you should submit a monthly invoice to EAC for payment of your fee for that month. The contract is for 6 months, so our Finance Officer, Diana Scott, wants you to submit an invoice to her each month for 1/6th of the total payment, beginning 10/25/05.

I look forward to talking again with the two of you.

Job:

I found Gavin. He said that the Chair has the letters that have to accompany the contracts for you and Tova. Once she signs them, the finance folks will fax a copy to you and send the original by mail.

After we have the signed contracts:

- Adjusted Workplan - You and Tova should look at the workplan to determine what should be revised due to the contract issues.
- Working Group - I will ask for a one or two sentences for each person you have on the list of potential working group members. The sentences should summarize why you think the person would be perfect for this particular project. What in their particular experience qualifies them to help develop recommendations for future avenues of EAC research on voting fraud and voter intimidation? (Remember, other research efforts already are underway to address items such as provisional voting, voter ID issues, and contested elections and recounts.) If you want to put an asterisk next to the names that you especially recommend, that would be fine. I have to discuss the potential working group members with our Commissioners, only one of which is in the office now. Others are in the field and I can speak with them as they return. I'll bet that this will take some time, probably through next week.
- Westlaw Search - You and Tova can provide more information about the Westlaw search. I spoke with our Executive Director and he authorized me to use a part-time legal intern to conduct the search and provide the results to you and Tova.
- Meetings - The three of us should probably decide a time for a teleconference and a tentative in-person meeting date in the not-to-distant future.

Regarding the election fraud newsclips, Tova was in town this morning for a non-EAC meeting. While here, she took the opportunity to look over the newsclips in one of my files. (I have another file that I have yet to unearth from my FEC boxes.) I mentioned to Tova that one of our EAC interns could sort the clips, put them in pdf, and drop them on a CD for each of you. Tova thinks that it would be most useful to have the clips organized by type of voting fraud (e.g.; absentee ballot, voter registration, etc.) and, within that sorting, by State. Does this work for you, or would you prefer a different organization?

Subject RE: In-Person Meeting

As I mentioned to Job earlier, I think we need to meet as soon as possible in order to develop and pare down our lists of who we want to interview, determine how we are going to go about doing the interviews (in-person, phone, email), schedule such meetings, decide what themes we agree to discuss with them; go over existing research and how we will work on summarizing existing findings; hammer out what is within the scope of our research; meet with the intern and law clerk; discuss how we are going to do the case law research; etc. Up to now, we both agreed, we have been operating in a bit of a void. We've been trying to do this meeting for months.

Is it that you think we can combine this meeting with a meeting with Craig? I actually think they need to be separate since I think both will be very laborious and very different in nature.

However, I will defer to whatever you, Peg, think best. I don't fee so strongly about it that I will be extremely upset if we wait until January.

Thanks.

I will have a list of Republicans for the working group in the next few days. I am still speaking with people. However, having discussed this with a number of people who deal with election fraud, I am convinced that we need a ten member panel and not eight (five Republicans and five Democrats). My list will present six to seven people for the Commission's vetting. If all agree to serve, culling down to five will be challenging.

Hi Peggy,

Just an FYI -- Job and I have developed our own draft of a definition of fraud and intimidation and are working on compiling existing research. With respect to the working group, I have sent him the names and bios of my first choices, most of whom I have not yet spoken to. My thought was that I would have you vet them before asking them if they could do it, so I wouldn't have to turn around and say no. I have plenty of "plan B" people should some of my first choices not work out. Job has gone ahead and inquired as to people's availability before putting them on his list, which he expects to send me today.

Hope you had a great weekend.

Good Morning Job an Tova:

I still do not have copies of your signed contracts. I understand that they may have to be revised if the project is going to use an EAC intern and EAC Westlaw access. I've scheduled a meeting with one of our attorneys this week to discuss the matter and will get back to you with further information, when I have it.

By now, you should have heard that the October 14 contractor meeting has been cancelled. Instead, EAC has scheduled a couple of staff meetings to review requirements for invoices and requests for reimbursement. I should have more information for you on this front by next Monday.

Today, I am sending by Federal Express the most recent copy of the Department of Justice's

019777

Federal Prosecution of Election Offenses and the Federal Election Commission's Innovations in Election Administration 8: Election Document Retention in an Age of High Technology. Let me know if you do not have it within a couple of days.

New per diem rates for federal travelers are effective October 1, 2005. Greetings-

Tom Wilkey and I have just completed a series of very informative and productive conversations with each of you and are anxious to move to the next step of this process.

We hope to assemble our consultant team on this project, within the next three weeks and are presently awaiting final approval of your contracts from our Commissioners. We anticipate this will take place in the next week to ten days.

We would like to assemble the team- Steve Ansolabehere of MIT, Tova Wang from The New Century Foundation and Job Serebrov, who has worked extensively on these issues for the State of Arkansas, during the week of September 11. Please get back to us with some tentative dates during that week that might work with your schedule.

We look forward to working with all of you and appreciate your efforts on behalf of the EAC.

The money issue has become the most important matter at this point. I have already laid out money for this project, so I'm running a deficit after three and a half months.

You should have received Devon's disk today. We won't have a replacement for her anytime soon. I'm still working on confirming your choice for State election official. I'm also trolling for further information on possible nonpartisan local election officials that might serve. At the moment, I am seeking feedback on nonpartisan county Election Administrators in Texas, many of whom are Hispanic.

Now that Tamar has finished her exams, you should be receiving regular emails with search results. I still need to provide feedback on the definition of vote fraud.

I have asked Diana Scott to find out exactly where GSA is in the process of paying you and Job. Julie Thompson and I are discussing ways we might expedite things in the future.

Hello Peg and greetings from Mexico City.

Interesting way you put that question!! When will I NOT be available!!!

Peg -- I have a speech to deliver to the Illinois Association of Election Commissioners December 7-8. After that, my wife says she will arise in protest if I don't stay put for the next couple months!!!

So I guess anytime after December 8 will work.

I hope I can help you and the EAC on this.

I anticipate sending 8-10 more emails. I can get through approximately 30 terms per day. If you would prefer that I hold on to a few days' worth of searches and send fewer emails, I am more than happy to do so.

I will not be sending another search email until the 27th as I will be working from home until then and do not have the means to send such large files when I am not at work. I can give you a better idea of how much longer it will take me at that point.

Attached is a list of requests for material/information for Mr. Donsanto in advance of our meeting. They are purely requests for data and hard materials, not necessarily the extent of the questions I will want to ask (and I'm sure, Job, you'll want to ask) which may well be of a more procedural nature.

I'm off for a few days without the ability to communicate with the outside world, so, if it is necessary, we can talk about this on Tuesday afternoon as well as our other topics.

Thad's research on threat assessment is not being conducted under an EAC contract. The requirement to work through EAC only applies to contact with EAC contractors about EAC research. Thad's EAC contract is for Vote Counts/Contested Elections and Recounts. At this time, the contractor is analyzing State laws and procedures and contacting appropriate federal agencies regarding any pertinent consent agreements. Currently, there are no plans to do a survey that would be subject to the Paperwork Reduction Act requirements.

If your interest in Thad involves his non-EAC research, I would have no problem with you contacting him directly. If you think he will not respond unless I forward your request to him, I will see what I can do.

Job:

I found Gavin. He said that the Chair has the letters that have to accompany the contracts for you and Tova. Once she signs them, the finance folks will fax a copy to you and send the original by mail.

After we have the signed contracts:

- Adjusted Workplan - You and Tova should look at the workplan to determine what should be revised due to the contract issues.
- Working Group - I will ask for a one or two sentences for each person you have on the list of potential working group members. The sentences should summarize why you think the person would be perfect for this particular project. What in their particular experience qualifies them to help develop recommendations for future avenues of EAC research on voting fraud and voter intimidation? (Remember, other research efforts already are underway to address items such as provisional voting, voter ID issues, and contested elections and recounts.) If you want to put an asterisk next to the names that you especially recommend, that would be fine. I have to discuss the potential working group members with our Commissioners, only one of which is in the office now. Others are in the field and I can speak with them as they return. I'll bet that this will take some time, probably through next week.
- Westlaw Search - You and Tova can provide more information about the Westlaw search. I spoke with our Executive Director and he authorized me to use a part-time legal intern to conduct the search and provide the results to you and Tova.
- Meetings - The three of us should probably decide a time for a teleconference and a tentative in-person meeting date in the not-to-distant future.

Regarding the election fraud newsclips, Tova was in town this morning for a non-EAC meeting. While here, she took the opportunity to look over the newsclips in one of my files. (I have another file that I have yet to unearth from my FEC boxes.) I mentioned to Tova that one of our EAC interns could sort the clips, put them in pdf, and drop them on a CD for each of you. Tova thinks that it would be most useful to have the clips organized by type of voting fraud (e.g.; absentee ballot, voter registration, etc.) and, within that sorting, by State. Does this work for you, or would you prefer a different organization?

Hi, Tova;

How much time do you want to schedule for the meeting with Donsanto ? An hour? We've just received his response to our request confirming that he is pleased to be of assistance, which means he has received the OK from his superiors. I also want to include him in any Working Group discussions, although he will not be named as a member of that group. He is a great resource because he is smart and organized, and has years of experience in this area as a career DOJ attorney. I find that he is not shy about identifying challenges and noting improvements that he thinks are needed.

I signed off on all 3 of your invoices. I understand that they are going through the rest of the process required to get your payments to you. You turned in your revised invoices for September and October work a little after Job, and there was a short hiatus while I figured out what to do for the September invoice (I multiplied the hours you claimed by the $111 hourly rate cited in the contract). We also had to wait until our Chair was available to sign off on everything. (This has to happen before anything is submitted to GSA.) My estimate is that you should receive your payments no later than the end of next week (and maybe earlier).

I'll keep my eyes open for your receipts. I will fax the completed travel voucher form (aka request for reimbursement) to you, You will need to sign it and return it to me by mail (with the original signature). Then, I can put it in the pipeline for reimbursement.

officials, and a representative of an advocacy group, all of whom have an interest and some expertise in the identification and/or prosecution of voting fraud and voter intimidation. The group was chosen so that we would have an equal number of folks on each side of the political spectrum, plus some nonpartisan members.

After our consultants review the results of their preliminary research (interviews, literature review, case law), we will ask the Working Group to brainstorm possible next steps for EAC. Our consultants will write a report summarizing the proposals that come out of this meeting. The report will go to the Commissioners, who will decide what they want to do, funds available, and what priority to assigned to the effort(s).

Your participation in this part of the process is extremely important, so I am very happy that you can find time for us that afternoon. I'll get an agenda and other information to you next week. --- Peggy

Okay, Peg - - I will mark off the entire afternoon and try to be there. What is the agenda? I was not aware that this was anything beyond having your contractors spend another session with me. Also, if they will be needing stats and stuff like that I need to know as I will bring my state-people with me.

I am looking at the afternoon of 5/18 for the meeting, due to scheduling conflicts of Working Group members. There remain two members from whom we have not yet received confirmations of their schedule (with some, it is like pulling teeth), but right now 5/18 still looks like the best day. We may have to hold the meeting over here to make it easier for Commissioners to drop in.

Would you please take a look at the attached? I combined both of your definitions, reformatted the list, removed a reference to the fraud having to have an actual impact on the election results (because fraud can be prosecuted without proving that it actually changed the results of the election), and taken out a couple of vague examples (e.g.; reference to failing to enforce state laws --- because there may be legitimate reasons for not doing so).

As of now, the afternoon of Thursday, May 18 appears to be the best possible date for the meeting. Norcross is not available to attend in person that day (he is available only 2 days during the first three weeks of May). We won't have confirmation of the availability of Secretary Rokita until tomorrow --- but I am hopeful.

I'll give you an update tomorrow. Maybe we can schedule a teleconference on Monday afternoon. ---

This meeting is being held to obtain input from our eight-member Working Group for the project. The group is composed of election lawyers, election officials, and a representative of an advocacy group, all of whom have an interest and some expertise in the identification and/or prosecution of voting fraud and voter intimidation. The group was chosen so that we would have an equal number of folks on each side of the political spectrum, plus some nonpartisan members.

After our consultants review the results of their preliminary research (interviews, literature review, case law), we will ask the Working Group to brainstorm possible next steps for EAC. Our consultants will write a report summarizing the proposals that come out of this meeting. The report will go to the Commissioners, who will decide what they want to do, funds available, and what priority to assigned to the effort(s).

Your participation in this part of the process is extremely important, so I am very happy that you can find time for us that afternoon. I'll get an agenda and other information to you next week. --- Peggy

Subject doj

Hi Peg,

In reviewing some of the missouri materials, I was reminded by this article that DOJ sued five jurisdictions after the 2000 election, including st. louis. We'd like to see the case materials but they're not on the DOJ website. Do you think Mr. Donsanto would provide that material for us? Should I contact him directly or should you ask him for us? Have you been able to copy and send the other materials from him yet? It would be good for us to have it prior to talking to Mr. Tanner. Thanks and see you tomorrow. Tova nexis articles

019838

Hi again,

I'm just scanning over Devon's collection and do not believe she could have possibly searched all of the terms we gave her. I am aware of tons of articles that were written on many of these topics in 2004 that do not appear in the folder. I think someone is going to have to do it over again from scratch, and I'm thinking about doing at least some of it myself. We should discuss this in detail on Thursday. Thanks.

Subject Interview Request Re EAC Research on Voting Fraud and Voter Intimidation

Dear John:

I have been assigned to manage the U.S. Election Assistance Commission's (EAC) preliminary research project on voting fraud and voter intimidation. Obviously, obtaining information regarding the Voting Section's actions against voter intimidation and other voting rights violations is important to this effort. Would you be available for an interview by our project consultants on February 24 at 2:00 PM? The interview may take place by phone, or one of the consultants may visit your office and connect the other consultant by phone.

Background

Section 241 of the Help America Vote Act of 2002 requires EAC to conduct research on election administration issues. Among the issues listed in the statute are the development of:

- nationwide statistics and methods of identifying, deterring, and investigating voting fraud in elections

019867

- for Federal office [section 241(b)(6)]; and
- methods of identifying, deterring, and investigating methods of voter intimidation [section 241(b)(7)].

EAC's Board of Advisors recommended that EAC make research on these topics a high priority. Subsequently, the Commission contracted with two consultants (Tova Wang and Job Serebrov) to:

- develop a comprehensive description of what constitutes voting fraud and voter intimidation in the context of Federal elections;
- perform preliminary research on these topics (including Federal and State administrative and case law review), identify related activities of key government agencies and civic and advocacy organizations, and deliver a summary of this research and all source documentation;
- convene a meeting of a project working group composed of key individuals and representatives of organizations knowledgeable about the topics of voting fraud and voter intimidation, provide the results of the preliminary research to the working group, and record the working group's deliberations; and
- produce a report to EAC summarizing the findings of the preliminary research effort and working group deliberations that includes recommendations for future EAC action, if any.

Possible Questions

Possible interview questions include the following:

1. According to a GAO report dated September 14, 2004 entitled Department of Justice's Activities to Address Past Election-Related Voting Irregularities, the "Voting Section has used several means of tracking allegations of voting irregularities and the Section's actions with regard to those allegations. First, the Voting Section used telephone logs to track telephone calls regarding allegations of voting irregularities it received related to the November 2000 and 2002 elections. Second, DOJ tracks matters and cases through its Interactive Case Management (ICM) system-its formal process for tracking and managing work activities. Third, the Voting Section tracked monitoring of elections using logs and for some election-monitoring activities they opened matters; thus, it has not routinely tracked election-monitoring activities through the ICM system."

Can you provide us with the following:

- a) The telephone logs referred to in the report
- b) The matters and cases tracked through the Interactive Case Management (ICM) system
- c) The other logs referred to in the report
- d) Any other data the division has maintained electronically during the last three federal election cycles

2. The division deployed thousands of observers to polling sites throughout the country in 2002, 2003, and 2004.

Can you provide us with the following:

- a) Any reports that were developed with respect to those efforts, before, during and after it implementation
- b) Any field notes from federal attorneys and their staff
- c) Information on any lawsuits and/or prosecutions for voter intimidation and/or suppression from the last five years

3. Does it matter if the complaint does or does not comes from a member of a racial or language minority?
4. What kinds of complaints would routinely override principals of federalism?
5. Are you of the opinion that there are too few prosecutions?
6. What should be done to improve the system?

Let me know if you have any questions about this request or the research project. I look forward to hearing from you.

Thanks for letting me know Job. As I'm sure Peg told you, we are subject to GSA's file size restrictions and they are not always timely in letting us know when they block emails. Unfortunately, until they notify me that they are holding the email hostage, I cannot send it along. However, if I don't hear from them by 5, I will force the issue.

Peggy,

I will be more than happy to help in any way. I will check on what information it is possible to release. There are, as you can imagine restrictions. I will be available for the interview at 2:00 on the 24th. How long do you expect the interview to take?

To: Tanner, John K (CRT)
Subject: Interview Request Re EAC Research on Voting Fraud and Voter Intimidation

Dear John:

I have been assigned to manage the U.S. Election Assistance Commission's (EAC) preliminary research project on voting fraud and voter intimidation. Obviously, obtaining information regarding the Voting Section's actions against voter intimidation and other voting rights violations is important to this effort. Would you be available for an interview by our project consultants on February 24 at 2:00 PM? The interview may take place by phone, or one of the consultants may visit your office and connect the other consultant by phone.

Background

Section 241 of the Help America Vote Act of 2002 requires EAC to conduct research on election administration issues. Among the issues listed in the statute are the development of:

nationwide statistics and methods of identifying, deterring, and investigating voting fraud in elections for Federal office [section 241(b)(6)]; and
methods of identifying, deterring, and investigating methods of voter intimidation [section 241(b)(7)].

EAC's Board of Advisors recommended that EAC make research on these topics a high priority. Subsequently, the Commission contracted with two consultants (Tova Wang and Job Serebrov) to:

develop a comprehensive description of what constitutes voting fraud and voter intimidation in the context of Federal elections;
perform preliminary research on these topics (including Federal and State administrative and case law review), identify related activities of key government agencies and civic and advocacy organizations, and deliver a summary of this research and all source documentation;
convene a meeting of a project working group composed of key individuals and representatives of organizations knowledgeable about the topics of voting fraud and voter intimidation, provide the results of the preliminary research to the working group, and record the working group's deliberations; and
produce a report to EAC summarizing the findings of the preliminary research effort and working group deliberations that includes recommendations for future EAC action, if any.

Possible Questions

Possible interview questions include the following:

1. According to a GAO report dated September 14, 2004 entitled Department of Justice's Activities to Address Past Election-Related Voting Irregularities, the "Voting Section has used several means of tracking allegations of voting irregularities and the Section's actions with regard to those allegations. First, the Voting Section used telephone logs to track telephone calls regarding allegations of voting irregularities it received related to the November 2000 and 2002 elections. Second, DOJ tracks matters and cases through its Interactive Case Management (ICM) system-its formal process for tracking and managing work activities. Third, the Voting Section tracked monitoring of elections using logs and for some election-monitoring activities they opened matters; thus, it has not routinely tracked election-monitoring activities through the ICM system."

Can you provide us with the following:

- a) The telephone logs referred to in the report
- b) The matters and cases tracked through the Interactive Case Management (ICM) system
- c) The other logs referred to in the report
- d) Any other data the division has maintained electronically during the last three federal election cycles

2. The division deployed thousands of observers to polling sites throughout the country in 2002, 2003, and 2004.

Can you provide us with the following:

- a) Any reports that were developed with respect to those efforts, before, during and after it implementation
- b) Any field notes from federal attorneys and their staff
- c) Information on any lawsuits and/or prosecutions for voter intimidation and/or suppression from the last five years

3. Does it matter if the complaint does or does not comes from a member of a racial or language minority?

4. What kinds of complaints would routinely override principals of federalism?

5. Are you of the opinion that there are too few prosecutions?

6. What should be done to improve the system?

Let me know if you have any questions about this request or the research project. I look forward to hearing from you.

Subject Upcoming Interviews-DOJ Info

Hi, Job and Tova:

Tony Sirvello (former election director for Harris County, TX and current Executive Director of the International Association of Clerks, Recorders, Election Officials and Treasurers) can make himself available for an interview next Wednesday morning (4/12). He is on CST. Is there a time that works well for the two of you? How about 10 AM CST/11 AM EST? I saw Kevin Kennedy at a meeting in our office this past Tuesday. We are trying to set up an interview with him next Tuesday (4/11).

I asked Donsanto about an updated version of his Prosecution of Election Offenses. He responded that it is at the printers and will not be available for a couple of months. In the interim, he referred me to the white paper he did for IFES, which I have attached. He said that the white paper includes the same information on the prosecution of election fraud that will be in the book. --- Peggy

Subject Your Input Requested-Voting Fraud/Voter Intimidation Project

Barry:

Hope you have been doing well. Scott Lansell (IFES) was in the office last week and spoke well of you. He said that you had worked with IFES on a project they were doing in Africa.

I am now working for the new Election Assistance Commission (EAC), as the Help America Vote Act of 2002 (HAVA) required the transfer of the FEC's Office of Election Administration to EAC. I have been assigned to manage the U.S. Election Assistance Commission's (EAC) preliminary research project on voting fraud and voter intimidation. I wondered if you would be interested in and available to serve on a project working group for EAC's preliminary research on voting fraud and voter intimidation. I appreciated your insight when we worked on the implementation of NVRA, and hope that you will be available to provide us the benefit of your expertise.

EAC is conducting this research to meet HAVA requirements. Section 241 of the Help America Vote Act of 2002 requires EAC to conduct research on election administration issues. Among the issues listed in the statute are the development of:

- nationwide statistics and methods of identifying, deterring, and investigating voting fraud in elections for Federal office [section 241(b)(6)]; and
- methods of identifying, deterring, and investigating methods of voter intimidation [section 241(b)(7)].

EAC's Board of Advisors recommended that EAC make research on these topics a high priority. Subsequently, the Commission contracted with two consultants (Tova Wang and Job Serebrov) to:

- develop a comprehensive description of what constitutes voting fraud and voter intimidation in the context of Federal elections;
- perform preliminary research on these topics (including Federal and State administrative and case law review), identify related activities of key government agencies and civic and advocacy organizations, and deliver a summary of this research and all source documentation;
- convene a meeting of a project working group composed of key individuals and representatives of organizations knowledgeable about the topics of voting fraud and voter intimidation, provide the results of the preliminary research to the working group, and record the working group's deliberations; and
- produce a report to EAC summarizing the findings of the preliminary research effort and working group deliberations that includes recommendations for future EAC action.

The working group members would need to review the results of preliminary research done by the two consultants to EAC and brainstorm ideas for future EAC action in this area, if any. I expect that the group will meet only once this year, probably in April in DC.

Please call me or send an email if you have any questions about the project or this request. I look forward to hearing from you.

Hi again,

I'm just scanning over Devon's collection and do not believe she could have possibly searched all of the terms we gave her. I am aware of tons of articles that were written on many of these topics in 2004 that do not appear in the folder. I think someone is going to have to do it over again from scratch, and I'm thinking about doing at least some of it myself. We should discuss this in detail on Thursday. Thanks.

It will be easiest to meet in office, which is at 1800 G St NW, 7th floor. (You can call as you approach or when you get to the 7th floor.) I can patch anyone in by phone.

Much of the information you have requested is, as you can imagine, internal. I'll get you as much as we can, however, and look forward to talking with you.

This is just to confirm the interview I set up with you this Friday at 2 PM. I'll bring Tova Wang, one of the two consultants on the project. Would it be possible to bring the other consultant into the conference via speaker phone? (He is in Little Rock, AR, so it would be a long distance call.)

I assume that we should go to the main entrance for 950 Pennsylvania Ave, NW and that Security will let you know when we've arrived. Is that correct?

How nice to hear from you! I'd be happy to be a part of the working group for the research on voting fraud and intimidation. Thank you for asking me. When you know the whole make-up of the working group I'd be interested in knowing who else is on it.

The Email address you used is our farm (Garrett County) address, which we check infrequently. For future messages it will be better to use our Bethesda Email address which is [REDACTED]. We check that inbox even when we're at the farm.

From the reports I get on doings at the EAC I hear you are doing well. That's good news.

Barry:

Hope you have been doing well. Scott Lansell (IFES) was in the office last week and spoke well of you. He said that you had worked with IFES on a project they were doing in Africa.

I am now working for the new Election Assistance Commission (EAC), as the Help America Vote Act of 2002 (HAVA) required the transfer of the FEC's Office of Election Administration to EAC. I have been assigned to manage the U.S. Election Assistance Commission's (EAC) preliminary research project on voting fraud and voter intimidation. I wondered if you would be interested in and available to serve on a project working group for EAC's preliminary research on voting fraud and voter intimidation. I appreciated your insight when we worked on the implementation of NVRA, and hope that you will be available to provide us the benefit of your expertise.

EAC is conducting this research to meet HAVA requirements. Section 241 of the Help America Vote Act of 2002 requires EAC to conduct research on election administration issues. Among the issues listed in the statute are the development of:

- nationwide statistics and methods of identifying, deterring, and investigating voting fraud in elections for Federal office [section 241(b)(6)]; and
- methods of identifying, deterring, and investigating methods of voter intimidation [section 241(b)(7)].

EAC's Board of Advisors recommended that EAC make research on these topics a high priority.

Subsequently, the Commission contracted with two consultants (Tova Wang and Job Serebrov) to:

- develop a comprehensive description of what constitutes voting fraud and voter intimidation in the context of Federal elections;
- perform preliminary research on these topics (including Federal and State administrative and case law review), identify related activities of key government agencies and civic and advocacy organizations, and deliver a summary of this research and all source documentation;
- convene a meeting of a project working group composed of key individuals and representatives of organizations knowledgeable about the topics of voting fraud and voter intimidation, provide the results of the preliminary research to the working group, and record the working group's deliberations; and
- produce a report to EAC summarizing the findings of the preliminary research effort and working group deliberations that includes recommendations for future EAC action.

The working group members would need to review the results of preliminary research done by the two consultants to EAC and brainstorm ideas for future EAC action in this area, if any. I expect that the group will meet only once this year, probably in April in DC.

Please call me or send an email if you have any questions about the project or this request. I look forward to hearing from you.

In reviewing the great materials you gave our consultants, we have not found an updated draft of your famous Prosecution of Election Offenses. Is that available for review? If you have a pdf version, I could pass that on to our consultants (noting any restrictions you may have on use).

Also, we noticed some gaps in the 2004 DOJ training binder. It appears that we are missing the Chris Herren information from Panel 3 and something titled "July 21, 2004" from Panel 4. If these were removed because we should not see them, just let me know.

Subject: Interview Request Re EAC Research on Voting Fraud and Voter Intimidation

Dear John:

I have been assigned to manage the U.S. Election Assistance Commission's (EAC) preliminary research project on voting fraud and voter intimidation. Obviously, obtaining information regarding the Voting Section's actions against voter intimidation and other voting rights violations is important to this effort. Would you be available for an interview by our project consultants on February 24 at 2:00 PM? The interview may take place by phone, or one of the consultants may visit your office and connect the other consultant by phone.

Background

Section 241 of the Help America Vote Act of 2002 requires EAC to conduct research on election administration issues. Among the issues listed in the statute are the development of:

nationwide statistics and methods of identifying, deterring, and investigating voting fraud in elections for Federal office [section 241(b)(6)]; and
methods of identifying, deterring, and investigating methods of voter intimidation [section 241(b)(7)].

EAC's Board of Advisors recommended that EAC make research on these topics a high priority. Subsequently, the Commission contracted with two consultants (Tova Wang and Job Serebrov) to:

develop a comprehensive description of what constitutes voting fraud and voter intimidation in the context of Federal elections;
perform preliminary research on these topics (including Federal and State administrative and case law review), identify related activities of key government agencies and civic and advocacy organizations, and deliver a summary of this research and all source documentation;
convene a meeting of a project working group composed of key individuals and representatives of organizations knowledgeable about the topics of voting fraud and voter intimidation, provide the results of the preliminary research to the working group, and record the working group's deliberations; and produce a report to EAC summarizing the findings of the preliminary research effort and working group deliberations that includes recommendations for future EAC action, if any.

Possible Questions

Possible interview questions include the following:

1. According to a GAO report dated September 14, 2004 entitled Department of Justice's Activities to Address Past Election-Related Voting Irregularities, the "Voting Section has used several means of tracking allegations of voting irregularities and the Section's actions with regard to those allegations. First, the Voting Section used telephone logs to track telephone calls regarding allegations of voting irregularities it received related to the November 2000 and 2002 elections. Second, DOJ tracks matters and cases through its Interactive Case Management (ICM) system-its formal process for tracking and managing work activities. Third, the Voting Section tracked monitoring of elections using logs and for some election-monitoring activities they opened matters; thus, it has not routinely tracked election-monitoring activities through the ICM system."

Can you provide us with the following:

- a) The telephone logs referred to in the report
- b) The matters and cases tracked through the Interactive Case Management (ICM) system
- c) The other logs referred to in the report
- d) Any other data the division has maintained electronically during the last three federal election cycles

2. The division deployed thousands of observers to polling sites throughout the country in 2002, 2003, and 2004.

Can you provide us with the following:

- a) Any reports that were developed with respect to those efforts, before, during and after it implementation
- b) Any field notes from federal attorneys and their staff
- c) Information on any lawsuits and/or prosecutions for voter intimidation and/or suppression from the last five years

3. Does it matter if the complaint does or does not comes from a member of a racial or language minority?

4. What kinds of complaints would routinely override principals of federalism?

5. Are you of the opinion that there are too few prosecutions?

019914

6. What should be done to improve the system?

Let me know if you have any questions about this request or the research project. I look forward to hearing from you.

Subject: Upcoming Interviews-DOJ Info

Hi, Job and Tova:

Tony Sirvello (former election director for Harris County, TX and current Executive Director of the International Association of Clerks, Recorders, Election Officials and Treasurers) can make himself available for an interview next Wednesday morning (4/12). He is on CST. Is there a time that works well for the two of you? How about 10 AM CST/11 AM EST? I saw Kevin Kennedy at a meeting in our office this past Tuesday. We are trying to set up an interview with him next Tuesday (4/11).

I asked Donsanto about an updated version of his Prosecution of Election Offenses. He responded that it is at the printers and will not be available for a couple of months. In the interim, he referred me to the white paper he did for IFES, which I have attached. He said that the white paper includes the same information on the prosecution of election fraud that will be in the book. --- Peggy

Craig:

I have 2 issues for you today.

First, I am trying to schedule a meeting of the project working group for EAC's Voting Fraud-Voter Intimidation research project. As a technical advisor on this project, your attendance is particularly important to me. Would you please look at your schedule and let me know if there are any days during the first 2 weeks of May that you would NOT be available?

Second, Is it OK for our consultants to refer in their report to guidance provided in the DOJ training materials? I ask this because I understood that some materials in the materials are considered confidential and we do not want to violate your confidentiality provisions. If there is a compromise position, such as having you review that portion of the consultants' report, then let me know.

Thanks!

How are you planning to bring Job into the interviews conducted during the NASS/NASED conference? Have you already scheduled interviews during the next four days of which I should be aware (so that I won't double book you)?

Hi Peg,

I just wanted to check in on a few things:

Have we figured out how we are doing the Sandler interview?

Where are we at with getting the copies of the Donsanto materials?

Have you been able to touch base with Mike McCarthy, Kevin Kennedy, Connie McCormick, Sarah Ball Johnson or Tom Harrison at all?

Where do we stand with the local official for the working group?

Thank you!!! And I look forward to seeing you Friday.

Job and Tova:

I'd like to suggest a moratorium on adding interviewees to the list until we complete interviews on the last list prepared. Frankly, in terms of the enforcement mechanics, I think you will get more out of your interviews with Donsanto, Tanner, and Joe Rich than you will get from an interview with Hans. Hans worked at DOJ for a relatively short time, compared to those folks. You also will have input from Barry Weinberg (former Deputy Chief, Voting Section, Civil Rights Division, DOJ) who has confirmed that he is available for the Working Group.

Regarding upcoming interviews that I schedule for you two, are there any times that you are NOT available next week or the week thereafter?

Peggy

It will be easiest to meet in office, which is at 1800 G St NW, 7th floor.
(You can call as you approach or when you get to the 7th floor.) I can patch anyone in by phone.

Much of the information you have requested is, as you can imagine, internal. I'll get you as much as we can, however, and look forward to talking with you.

Subject: Upcoming Interview

Dear John:

This is just to confirm the interview I set up with you this Friday at 2 PM. I'll bring Tova Wang, one of the two consultants on the project. Would it be possible to bring the other consultant into the conference via speaker phone? (He is in Little Rock, AR, so it would be a long distance call.)

I assume that we should go to the main entrance for 950 Pennsylvania Ave, NW and that Security will let you know when we've arrived. Is that correct?

Thanks, again, for time out for us.

Hi again,

I'm just scanning over Devon's collection and do not believe she could have possibly searched all of the terms we gave her. I am aware of tons of articles that were written on many of these topics in 2004 that do not appear in the folder. I think someone is going to have to do it over again from scratch, and I'm thinking about doing at least some of it myself. We should discuss this in detail on Thursday. Thanks.

Thank you. I have not reviewed this myself, so I really appreciate the link. Professor Campbell was among the people interviewed by our consultants.

Subject RE: Voting Fraud-Voter Intimidation Teleconference 4-19-06

Peggy,

I am attaching a link to a recent book published by a Kentucky History Professor, Tracy Campbell, which details voter fraud on state and national level. It is very interesting reading.

Hi, Sarah:

Thank you for agreeing to be interviewed on Wednesday, April 19, by the consultants for EAC's initial research on voting fraud and voter intimidation, Job Serebrov and Tova Wang . Our consultants are conducting interviews as part of preliminary research to determine how EAC may best meet the requirements of Section 241(b)6 and 7 of the Help America Vote Act of 2002. As you may recall, Section 241 requires EAC to conduct research on election administration issues, including the development of:

- nationwide statistics and methods of identifying, deterring, and investigating voting fraud in elections for Federal office; and
- methods of identifying, deterring, and investigating methods of voter intimidation.

This is what I need you (and the Secretary, if he is available) to do:

- At approximately 11 AM EST on April 19, call 1-866-222-9044.
- At the prompt for the pass code, enter [REDACTED]

Tova and Job will join you on the line. We have arranged for the line to be open for an hour, with 10 minutes extra on the front end (for folks who have not synchronized their watches).

You mentioned that Secretary Grayson may be using a cell phone. Our teleconference provider has given us the following information regarding the use of cell phones during the teleconference:

- Signals are often in and out and the audio bridging equipment cannot compensate fast enough by adjusting the signal. This affects all participants connected. If participants must use a cell phone – they should be stationary in a location where they can pick up the other participants, moving while using a cell phone causes the signal to go in and out and often will pick up extraneous electrical signals that will cause heavy static on the call.
- The cell phone should be well charged and muted, if possible, until the individual is ready to speak.
- If there is a problem, anybody who dials into a conference can contact the operator/technicians by simply pressing *0 (star zero). This information is part of the recording when individuals are dialing in.

If you have any problems accessing the teleconference, please call Edgardo Cortés. You can reach him at 1-866-747-1471 (toll-free) or 202-566-3126. He can contact our service provider to correct any problems. (I will be on my way to Seattle and unable to help.)

Thanks, again!

Peg - -

This is essentially FBI's equivalent of the Department's Ballot Access and Integrity Initiative. The news conference on Thursday announced that FBI was enhancing its prioritization of campaign financing offenses. The main feature of this initiative, aside from enhancing the priority these cases will get in the Bureau, is that each of the Bureau's 57 Field Divisions will have at least one "Election Coordinator Agent" who will be the equivalent of the District Election Officer AUSAs. We have been training these new FBI-types: the week before last we had roughly 75 of them in Denver in a very well received two-day session in election law enforcement at which several FEC people spoke. On Wednesday, I head out to Portland, Oregon for more of the same.

Hi, Craig:

Tova noticed an article about an FBI initiative against election crimes (see attached email). Is this something new, or is it more of the same initiative that you addressed in your interview? If it is new, would you have time for a teleconference with Job and Tova to answer any questions they may have on the initiative?

If it is new, would you have time for a teleconference with Job and Tova to answer any questions they may have on the initiative?

Hello Peg!

God willing, I will be here the first two weeks of May.

As for your second question, it is not possible for me to assess the level of public attribution that would be appropriate without seeing the substantive stuff in context. I do not foresee a problem. So, I recommend that you get me a draft text and I will review it to ensure we are not disclosing things we shouldn't disclose.

I have 2 issues for you today.

First, I am trying to schedule a meeting of the project working group for EAC's Voting Fraud-Voter Intimidation research project. As a technical advisor on this project, your attendance is particularly important to me. Would you please look at your schedule and let me know if there are any days during the first 2 weeks of May that you would NOT be available?

Second, is it OK for our consultants to refer in their report to guidance provided in the DOJ training materials? I ask this because I understood that some materials in the materials are considered confidential and we do not want to violate your confidentiality provisions. If there is a compromise position, such as having you review that portion of the consultants' report, then let me know.

Thanks!

Mr. Greg Gordon

McClatchy Newspapers
Washington, DC

Dear Mr. Gordon:

This letter is in response to your Freedom of Information Act (FOIA) request received by the U.S. Election Assistance Commission (EAC) on April 11, 2007. The request sought "all emails between Job Serebrov and Elections Assistance Commission staff or members and all emails between Tova Wang and commission staff or members pertaining to a voter fraud study the two were contracted to perform for the EAC."

Responsive records. In regard to your request, copies of the responsive documents are attached (approximately 1,000 pages). Upon review of the records, you will find a few places where small portions of information have been redacted (in black). As required by FOIA exemption 6, the EAC has redacted personal information, including home addresses, telephone numbers, personal e-mail addresses, personal financial information, social security numbers, and tax identification numbers.

Withheld records. In reference to your request, an estimated 300 pages of e-mails have been withheld because the information in these e-mails is pre-decisional and protected by the Deliberative Process Privilege. As you may know, the Deliberative Process Privilege protects intra-agency documents that are (1) pre-decisional in nature and (2) part of the deliberative process. In other words, the documents must be part of a process that recommends or presents opinions on a policy matter or governmental decision before that matter is finally decided. It is a well settled matter of law that the work of contract employees and contractors ("consultants") constitute intra-agency documents.<sup>1</sup> This is true even where the consultants are deemed to be independent contractors and are not subject to the degree of control that agency employment entails.<sup>2</sup> The courts have made this determination after recognizing that agencies have a special need for the opinions and recommendations of temporary consultants.<sup>3</sup> Ultimately, deliberative

The EAC has decided to waive the processing fees for your request. If you interpret any portion of this response as an adverse action, you will have an opportunity to appeal it to the Election Assistance Commission. However, as this letter is only partially responsive to your request, please hold any appeal until your request has been fully addressed. At that time, your appeal must be in writing and sent to the address noted on the above letterhead. Any appeal submitted, must be postmarked no later than 60 calendar days from the date of EAC's final response letter. Please include your reasons for reconsideration and attach a copy of this and subsequent EAC responses.

Dear Ms. Layson:

This is an official request under the Freedom of Information Act, 5 U.S.C., 552 as amended.

I am writing on behalf of McClatchy Newspapers to request copies of all emails between Job Serebrov and Elections Assistance Commission staff or members and all emails between Tova Wang and commission staff or members pertaining to a voter fraud study the two were contracted to perform for the EAC.

In the event that this request results in research or copying, McClatchy Newspapers requests a public interest fee waiver because the material being sought is likely to be used in a newspaper story. We would argue strongly that there is a significant public interest in our reviewing the material being sought. As the nation's second largest newspaper group with 32 daily newspapers and a new service serving 400 newspapers, McClatchy easily qualifies as acting in the public interest.

If possible, I would appreciate your expediting this request, especially any emails transmitted after the draft report was submitted, because of the obvious topical import of these documents.

Should this letter prompt questions, please feel free to phone me at 202-383-0005. Thanks for your assistance.

Sincerely,

019987

Dear Tom and Julie,

Happy New Year. I hope you both enjoyed the holidays.

As you know, I am well aware that the research Job and I produced belongs to the EAC. Nonetheless, I was wondering whether there might be some way I can use just the Nexis material solely for my own further research purposes. Anything I might publish using that underlying data as enhanced by my further research would be in my name and my name only, not that of the EAC. I put a tremendous amount of work into collecting and organizing that data and I would like the opportunity to continue this research on an ongoing basis. It would be a shame if it was not put to some further use.

Is there something we might arrange in this regard? Thanks so much.

Tova & Job,

As you know, because the two of you are no longer under contract with the EAC, EAC is not afforded the same protections as if you were still functioning as EAC employees. As such, releasing the document to you would be the same as releasing it to any other member of the public.

Thus, EAC will not be able to release a copy of the proposed final report to you prior to its consideration and adoption by the Commission. The Commission will take up this report at its meeting on Thursday, Dec. 7. I will have a copy available for you immediately following their consideration - assuming that they do not change the report during their deliberations and voting on Dec. 7. If changes are made, I will have a copy available to you as soon as possible following that meeting.

In the final report, you will see that EAC took the information and work provided by the two of you and developed a report that summarizes that work, provides a definition for use in future study, and adopts parts or all of many of the recommendations made by you and the working group. In addition, you will note that EAC will make the entirety of your interview summaries, case summaries, and book/report summaries available to the public as appendixes to the report.

I know that you are anxious to read the report and that you may have questions that you would like to discuss following the release of the report. Please feel free to contact me with those questions or issues.

Julie,

I understand from Tom Wilkey that you are planning on releasing our report at the public meeting next Thursday, December 7. As we discussed, I respectfully request that Job and I be permitted to review what you are releasing before it is released. I would like us both to be provided with an embargoed copy as soon as possible so we have time to properly review it before Thursday. I can be contacted by email, cell phone at 917-656-7905, or office phone 202-741-6263. I hope to hear from you soon. Thanks.

Subject Report

Julie:

Well I see you left out the controversial Donsanto remark. I really think the report is well done. It should have served to satisfy both sides---but wait---there is the Tova on the war path factor. Tova is totally disgusted with the report. She especially hates the omission of the summaries of the various sections (interviews, case law, reports, literature, and interviews). She is really upset with the Donsanto omission. I can see her going to some of the members of Congress she knows and trying to get a hearing. I know she will be sending you a letter, asking or demanding that you retract this report and publish the original one we submitted.

I told her that I am satisfied with the report and that I will have nothing to do with her future actions---which I expect will be plentiful like Santa's Christmas gifts or like the bubonic plague. In any case, this is a Tova production.

Now for the I told you so---this would have been far better had we been able to stick to the original plan to have me do this project alone. I told you so!!!

Keep a stiff upper lip,

Just a reminder that we have a telephone conference for the vote fraud group at 4:00 today. You were going to see if you could talk to Commissioner Davidson before that time so I could know what the possibilities are for serving as her executive assistant. If this is even possible and if the Commission is willing to raise the salaries of the executive assistants, her time table could affect the vote fraud project time table.

Subject Meeting

Julie:

As we just discussed, at this time and in light of the recent inquiry, I think it prudent to postpone our meeting in DC until the first or second week of November in order to:

1. Finalize the Working Group list (I am still waiting to hear from Kay James and Governor Barbour);
2. Finalize the Interview list;
3. Finish the search on existing voter fraud research;
4. Assure participation from the Department of Justice; and,
5. Get everyone on the same page and assure all outside parties that this will not be a radical venture

What do you think and can we get agreement on this with Peggy?

I need clarification on something in the project before the conference call at 2:00 today between Peggy, Tova, and me. How much of what we are investigating should involve DOJ's jurisdictional matters under such things as the Voting Rights Act?

Also, did you have a chance to talk to Karen about a second project? I need to know because if there will not be one I will have to get a job with a local law firm until the 2006 elections.

Subje work plan

Hi Karen and Tom,

As we discussed yesterday, attached is a preliminary work plan/division of labor for your review. Please let us know if this is sufficient for the present and if you have any comments or questions.

In terms of hours dedicated to the project, Job and Tova are able to commit to 15-20 hours per week assuming that includes reimbursed periodic travel. Steve can do approximately 2 hours per week. We have tentatively scheduled to meet at your offices in DC, if that is convenient for you, on September 20. We will be able to confirm that within the next day or so.

All of us are very eager to get started on this important work as soon as possible. However, because we also have other work related responsibilities, we are a bit reluctant to do so before having an opportunity to review our contracts. We look forward to receiving them so we can get going right away.

Thanks so much. Speak to you soon.

Tova, Job and Steve

All-

In anticipation of our 45-minute conference call scheduled for Tuesday, September 6 at 4:00 PM, I would ask the three consultants ( Steve, Job and Tova) to come prepared to talk about the following:

The major topics and issues which you see as needing immediate attention, definition,delineation,etc.
Rough timelines and timeframes for addressing these major issues and topics
Your major roles and responsibilities and the timelines you envision for meeting your major deliverables

We all realize that this conversation is just a start; I look forward to this beginning and to framing the tasks that lie ahead of us between now and September 30.

Have a wonderful holiday!!

In the meantime, I have attached the written status report that was presented to the EAC Standards Board and Board of Advisors, because I can't remember if I ever provided the final version to the two of you. The status report is primarily made up of your preliminary reports, with some Intro information provided and a brief summary of recommendations discussed at the Working Group meeting. Tony:

Thanks for being willing to help me identify a qualified, nonpartisan local election official to serve on our Project Working Group for the preliminary research being conducted on voting fraud and voter intimidation.

Background

Section 241 of the Help America Vote Act of 2002 requires EAC to conduct research on election administration issues. Among the issues listed in the statute are the development of:

1. nationwide statistics and methods of identifying, deterring, and investigating voting fraud in elections for Federal office [section 241(b)(6)]; and
2. methods of identifying, deterring, and investigating methods of voter intimidation [section 241(b)(7)].

Preliminary EAC Research

Subsequently, the Commission contracted with two consultants (Tova Wang and Job Serebrov) to:

1. develop a comprehensive description of what constitutes voting fraud and voter intimidation in the context of Federal elections;
2. perform preliminary research on these topics (including Federal and State administrative and case law review), identify related activities of key government agencies and civic and advocacy organizations, and deliver a summary of this research and all source documentation;
3. convene a meeting of a project working group composed of key individuals and representatives of organizations knowledgeable about the topics of voting fraud and voter intimidation, provide the results of the preliminary research to the working group, and record the working group's deliberations; and
4. produce a report to EAC summarizing the findings of the preliminary research effort and working group deliberations that includes recommendations for future EAC action, if any.

The Project Working Group will probably meet only once during this preliminary research effort (probably in late April) to review the consultants research and provide input. Other members of the Working Group are lawyers from advocacy groups and major political parties, two State election officials, and Barry Weinberg, former Deputy Chief of DOJ's Voting Section, Civil Rights Division. Craig Donsanto, Director of DOJ's Election Crimes Branch will serve as a technical advisor to the group.

I really appreciate any help you can offer in identifying a qualified individual to fill the slot on the Working Group that has been reserved for an experienced, nonpartisan local election official.

Tova and Job:

As agreed, Tova and I can connect with Job by telephone during our Friday morning meeting. Tova would like to start the meeting at 10 AM EST. Job, we will call you from the meeting room.

Craig Donsanto says we can use a meeting room over at DOJ that has a phone, so that we can bring Job into the interview. The meeting is scheduled to begin an 2 PM EST, but it may take up to 10 minutes for us to settle in over there. We will call Job as soon as we can begin the interview. --- Peggy

Yes, I copied the questions into an email I sent to him to give him an idea of questions he might expect. His office is in the main Justice Dept building at 950 Pennsylvania Ave, NW. If the entry procedures remain the same, he will have to send someone down to fetch us and we will have to go through the "beam me up, Scotty" security chambers --- so we should probably arrive 10 minutes early for those shenanigans. --- Peggy

If you an Job can work things out between you, that's good enough for me. We can talk about the meeting with Donsanto when we meet on January 13, unless you really need to discuss it before then.

As Devon's last day was 12/9, I don't think she has access to the EAC email address any longer. I don't think she received the email you sent her after that date. I did further spot checks of the articles she included on the CD. I see several pdf files that came from the Lexis search. She would not have picked up anything that duplicated the newsclips I had saved. I did see one false drop (an article about a union election) and a few articles that I would have filed in a different voting fraud subject folder, but I think she finished all of the work we asked her to do.

Shucks! I did not see your message until now. I spoke to him several times this morning at our public meeting, which was held at the Hyatt. How are you planning to bring Job into the interviews conducted during the NASS/NASED conference? Have you already scheduled interviews during the next four days of which I should be aware (so that I won't double book you)? --- Peg

U.S. ELECTION ASSISTANCE COMMISSION
1225 NEW YORK AVENUE, N.W., SUITE 1100
WASHINGTON, D.C. 20005

August 30, 2005

Ms. Bobbie Ann Brinegar
Washington, D.C. Director
Miami-Dade Election Reform Coalition
1725 19th Street, NW #B
Washington, DC 20009

Dear Ms. Brinegar:

This letter is in response to the Miami-Dade Election Reform Coalition's (MDERC) Freedom of Information Act (FOIA) request received by the U. S. Election Assistance Commission (EAC) on August 3, 2005. The August 3rd FOIA request served as a revision to a previous request received by the EAC on July 22, 2005. The revision was made in response to a request for clarification sent by the EAC on July 29, 2005.

The revised request (August 3, 2005) sought "all documents relating to meetings that were not publicly noticed, including all telephonic meetings or conferences, [in] which..." Chair Gracia M. Hillman, Vice Chairman Paul S. DeGregorio, Commissioner Ray Martinez or interim Executive Director Carol Pacquette were in attendance. The request notes that this includes "all lists of such meetings, and all notes made at such meetings or telephone calls." The letter also request copies of all FOIA requests made to the EAC.

With regard to your request for all prior FOIA requests, you will find copies of all responsive documents, attached. You will not be charged for processing and copying costs.

With regard to your request for "all documents relating to meetings that were not publicly noticed," the EAC must provide a bifurcated response. First, the EAC has not been able to search the personally held files of the Commissioners or previous interim Executive Director. Unfortunately, each of these individuals has been traveling for all but a few days over the last month and a half. As such, they have not had the opportunity to review their files. While the Commissioners will continue to travel in September, it is hoped the travel will be less extensive. In an effort to take all reasonable steps to provide you the documents you seek, the EAC will review the files maintained by the Commissioners and respond to you within 10 working days.

It is important to understand that, generally, the EAC does not maintain or track documents based upon their association with a given meeting (and attendance at that meeting). However, it is possible that individual Commissioners or the Interim Executive Director (or their assistants) may have personally maintained a few document files in a "meeting associated" manner. Because this possibility exists, the EAC will coordinate with the Commissioners in order to determine if we can reasonably accommodate your request. However, this effort is a result of the EAC's desire to take every reasonable step to provide the documents you seek. Generally, without clarification, your FOIA request does not meet the definition of proper request under FIOA.

A proper FOIA request must reasonably describe the records sought (5 U.S.C. §552(a)(3)(A)). Such a request would enable a professional agency employee familiar with the subject area to locate the record with a "reasonable amount of effort."<sup>1</sup> FOIA does not allow requesters to "conduct fishing expeditions" through agency files<sup>2</sup> or require agency staff to have "clairvoyant capabilities."<sup>3</sup> Finally, Federal Agencies are not required to conduct "unreasonably burdensome" searches for records.<sup>4</sup> Your request requires the EAC to identify any document that was created as a result of any type of discussion (including telephonic) between a Commissioner or interim Executive Director and any other person (including EAC staff). Given that such conversations represent the majority of our Commissioner's time and that the EAC staff generally does not maintain records based upon "meeting connectivity," your request requires both an "unreasonably burdensome" search and fails to "reasonably describe" the records sought. As was noted in the EAC letter requesting clarification (July 29, 2005):

[T]he vast majority of documents created or obtained by the EAC were likely created or obtained as a result of or in preparation for a meeting with a Commissioner. Notwithstanding this fact, in many cases it will be almost impossible to determine, with any certainty, which specific documents were "meeting associated," as such information is not ordinarily maintained on a document. Like most organizations, our documents are identified by subject matter and the individual or organization that created it. In short, your request, as stated, would require EAC personnel to search every document in possession of the Commission and speculate as to whether it was created as a result of or in preparation for a meeting with one of our four Commissioners.

Absent questioning every staff member on every document in the EAC's possession there is no reasonable way to determine if a particular document was used in a non-publicly noticed meeting. Even if the EAC took this burdensome course of action, the results would be purely speculative. Requester's should frame requests with sufficient particularity to ensure that searches are not unreasonably burdensome.<sup>5</sup> The rationale is that FOIA was not intended to reduce

Dear Ms. Brinegar:

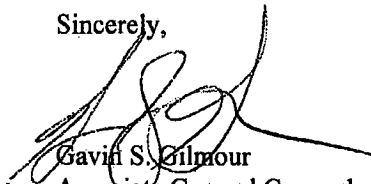

This letter is in response to the Miami-Dade Election Reform Coalition's (MDERC) Freedom of Information Act (FOIA) request received by the U. S. Election Assistance Commission (EAC) on August 3, 2005. The August 3rd FOIA request served as a revision to a previous request received by the EAC on July 22, 2005. The revision was made in response to a request for clarification sent by the EAC on July 29, 2005. This letter supplements our previous communication of August 30, 2005.

In our previous letter (August 30th), the EAC (1) provided all documents responsive to your request for the agency's prior FOIA requests; (2) informed you of our determination that the remainder of your request was not a proper FOIA request, as it failed to reasonably describe the records sought and required an unreasonably burdensome search for records; and (3) informed you that we would, nonetheless, perform a reasonable search for records that involved meetings with third parties. Attached please find a copy of our August 30th letter.

Each of the individuals noted in your request letter (and/or their assistant) searched their files for meeting associated records. As they could not reasonably search all records held by the EAC and speculate as to their potential association with a meeting, they looked for documents filed (including e-mails) as "meetings." Moreover, because you did not define the broad term "meeting" (which could include any time two individuals communicate) we defined the term consistent with your correspondence. We provided documents, filed as noted above, in which one of the individuals you identified met with a non-federal employee or organization. The result of our records search is enclosed. A few of the documents have had small portions redacted, such as personal phone numbers, as release of this information would constitute an unwarranted invasion of personal privacy (5 U.S.C. §522(b)(6)).

At this time, Commissioner DeGregorio has not completed the search of his records. His efforts were cut short by an official trip to Hungary. He will return from his overseas trip on the 21st of September. This letter is not a final response to your FOIA request. The EAC will provide our final response by September 26, 2005. In the interim, if you have any questions, you may reach me at (202) 566-3100 or ggilmour@eac.gov.

Sincerely,

Gavin S. Gilmour

Dear Mr. Gilmour:

We are in receipt of your letters dated August 30, 2005 and September 15, 2005 and respond as follows.

First, in your August 30, 2005 letter, you correctly point that in your July 29, 2005 letter requesting clarification, you informed us that the EAC's documents "are identified by subject matter and the individual or organization that created it." Based upon that statement, we clarified our request to ask for "all documents relating to meetings that were not publicly noticed." Our clarification was based upon two assumptions: (i) that EAC members were required to maintain logs of who they met with and who they had telephone conversations with and (ii) that one of the EAC's subject matter categories for document indexing would be "meetings not publicly noticed.." In your August 30, 2005 letter, you have now further clarified that "generally, the EAC does not maintain or track documents based upon their association with a given meeting (and attendance at that meeting." However, you do not clarify whether the EAC members are in the practice of maintaining logs.

Under cover of letter dated September 15, 2005, you provided in excess of 150 pages of documents which we are in the process of reviewing. It is also our understanding that you might be providing additional documents from Commissioner DeGregorio upon his return from an official trip. We will be providing you with further comments as soon as we complete our review of the documents you have provided thus far.

Very truly yours,

Subject RE: NCBCP Follow-up Meeting Requested

Thanks Gracia for meeting with me today. I will send out the EAC Announcement for the executive director position today to our e-mail lists.

I look forward to another opportunity to follow-up with you as we all continue to assess what worked and what didn't work in the 2004 Election as far as the implementation of HAVA and other election systems issues.

I would like to schedule another time in January to share with you the results of our Election Day Poll, what we learned from our hotlines (1-866-OUR-VOTE and our Tom Joyner registration hotline 1-866-316-VOTE) and information on the poll locator website we utilized during the 2004 Election. I would like to bring our hotline vendor, Ken Smukler and NCBCP Board member, Rene Redwood, to join us for that follow-up meeting.

Please let me know when your schedule will allow a follow-up meeting hopefully in January.

Dear

The U.S. Election Assistance (EAC) Commissioners request your presence at a meeting to be held on Monday, January 24, 2005. The meeting will begin at 1:30 p.m., is expected to last about 90 minutes, and will be held at our offices at 1225 New York Avenue, NW, Suite 1100, Washington, DC 20005.

As you know, the Help America Vote Act of 2002 (HAVA) established EAC to make certain that the law is fully and effectively implemented. The work of your organization brings value to this process. We also feel it is extremely important to have a direct relationship with the executive leadership of the nonprofit organizations that are committed to ensuring that American voters have confidence in the integrity and fairness of our elections. We did not have the opportunity to have such a meeting in 2004 and want to make certain that we do so early in 2005, before we begin our aggressive schedule of public meetings and hearings.

While we want an opportunity to personally share with you the broad based components of our 2005 work plan, it is our desire to have a broader discussion of how America is fairing under HAVA. You have been invited as the head of your organization because it is important that we hear directly from you. Your perspectives inform and bring value to our work as EAC Commissioners. Recognizing that we all rely heavily on expertise within our organizations, you are welcome to bring a member of your staff with you but we also want to emphasize that it is your input that we seek.

I hope you will join us on January 24 and look forward to seeing you then. Please confirm your attendance with my office at 202-566-3111. We will also need to know the name of any one who will accompany you to the meeting. My assistant, Sheila Banks, will provide any additional information you might need.

Best wishes for a wonderful, peaceful and successful New Year.

Sincerely,

Gracia Hillman
Chair

Thanks for calling today. We are glad that the Chairman can attend the Board meeting. We are looking for about 30 minutes including questions and answers focusing on what the EAC has accomplished so far -- especially the voting systems guidelines and the work that Jim and JR have contributed. It would be interesting for people to learn more about what comes next as well. Here is a link that describes more about the Board and its members:

This is a busy time in Washington and hotel rooms were difficult to come by. Government rates were impossible to come by. For those who requested we find them a room, we have made reservations at the Four Points by Sheraton. I have confirmed these rooms with my personal Amex. It would be greatly appreciated if you could transfer the charges to your card when you check in! This hotel is about a block and a half from the EAC. The address is:

welcome to attend. I do not know what the public meeting agenda is yet.

Finally, Chair Hillman sent an email to Sec. Vigil-Giron in the middle of February saying that she planned to send her a list of topics that the EAC would like to discuss prior to the meeting. She requested that we do the same. Therefore, if you have any topics you would like addressed, please feel free to send them to me and I will make sure that they are included on the list Sec. Vigil-Giron sends back.

Thanks so much. Sorry I will miss you all when you are in town, but it is spring break for the kids' school and we are off to Florida.

Subject June Meeting with Gracia Hillman

Hello,

As per our conversation, I would like to set up a meeting with the chairwoman in mid June or as soon as her schedule allows.

I represent two organizations here in D.C., VerifiedVoting.org and the Miami-Dade Election Reform Coalition. At the March EAC meeting one of the panelists mentioned the Miami-Dade Election Reform Coalition as a non-partisan election reform community group that might serve as a model for community involvement on election related matters. I would like to share a little about the Coalition and talk about the possibility of having some leaders from Miami-Dade County present to the EAC.

Thanks very much for your consideration,

This will be a 20-30 minute free exchange with the Council's CEO and Vice President for Programs. The Vice Chair should read the proposal that is in the updated notebook which Joe Hardy has prepared for all of the Commissioners.

I'm hoping we can have a video , but will have to see if we can find a VCR around here!!

Also, there will be a follow-on 20 minute presentation by the law clerks, that will focus on an idea they have for an EAC voter information/education outreach project. They will be making a powerpoint presentation.

Let me know if you need other material.

The Honorable Ray Martinez III
U.S. Election Assistance Commission
1225 New York Avenue, NW, Suite 1100
Washington, DC 20005

Dear Mr. Martinez:

I am writing to invite you to join the board of The Pew Charitable Trusts for a discussion on election reform while we are visiting Miami, January 10-14, 2005. Given your leadership on states' implementation of the federal Help America Vote Act of 2002, we would welcome the chance to hear your insights about the process. Our five-day educational trip to Florida is being planned to provide our board with opportunities to learn about a range of critical issues facing the country and to talk with policy makers, experts and a number of the Trusts' grantees. We would be most honored to have the opportunity to meet with you during our stay.

The Pew Charitable Trusts supports initiatives that inform the public on key topics and trends, promote engagement in civic life, and advance policy solutions on important challenges facing the American people. For more than a decade, the Trusts has sought to facilitate the federal policy debate on such issues as environmental protection, public health, and genetics and technology. Recognizing the growing influence of states, the Trusts several years ago began to develop a number of programs directed at state policy change. Most recently, our board approved a plan to launch a "center on the states," which will allow us to work on a broader range of policy issues and improve the effectiveness of our efforts by becoming more active participants in the process.

During the last decade, the Trusts has supported three nonpartisan initiatives aimed at improving the nation's elections. As you know, in the aftermath of the 2000 election, the Trusts established Electionline.org, a project to help monitor, assess and facilitate effective election reform and restore the public's confidence in the right to vote. I was delighted to learn that you use Electionline.org regularly and consider it a comprehensive and credible resource. The Trusts also has played a significant role in reforming the nation's campaign finance system and in encouraging young people between the ages of 18 and 25 to vote.

Given your legal expertise in election issues and your service on the U.S. Election Assistance Commission, our board would benefit greatly from hearing your observations about election reform in Florida and nationally, both in terms of progress that has been made and work that remains to be done. Doug Chapin, director of Electionline.org, also will be joining us for this off-the-record conversation, which will be moderated by Sue Urahn, director of Policy Initiatives and the Education program at the Trusts. This session is scheduled for Wednesday, January 12, from 9 a.m. to 10:30 a.m. in the Marbella Room on the lobby level of the Biltmore Hotel in Coral Gables. We would appreciate it if you would speak to the board for 15 to 20 minutes, leaving ample time for questions and an open dialogue.

Letter to The Honorable Ray Martinez III

December 15, 2004

By way of background, our board consists of members of the Pew family as well as other business, health and academic professionals. Included among its membership are several physicians, a lawyer, an investment advisor, a rancher, a former banker, a recently retired Fortune 500 CEO and a former university executive. In addition, our board members serve on other corporate, university and charitable boards.

We would be very grateful if you would agree to take part in what promises to be a lively and informative discussion. If you are able to join us, we would, of course, be happy to cover any expenses you might incur, including hotel and travel.

ELECTION REFORM: MAKING EVERY VOTE COUNT WEDNESDAY MORNING, JANUARY 12

Overview

Since the 2000 election, Florida has been the poster child for election reform. George W. Bush's narrow 537-vote victory over Al Gore that year catapulted the state into the international spotlight and subjected its electoral process to withering scrutiny. As the national drama over the outcome of the presidential election continued, Florida and its election officials were the subject of nearly daily reports about the conduct of the vote. And the halting effort to conduct a recount triggered widespread frustration, both with the highly decentralized nature of the American electoral system and the lack of formal or informal national voting standards.

The events in Florida became the catalyst for nationwide changes in election reform. In 2002, Congress enacted the Help America Vote Act (HAVA), which promised $3.86 billion to help states address their election problems and established a new federal agency, the Election Assistance Commission (EAC), to dole out the funds and provide states with information and guidance on election administration. In exchange for the federal grants, states were required to meet certain national mandates, including provisional voting, statewide computerized voter databases and voting technology upgrades. But while states immediately received about $650 million to begin updating voting equipment, Congress and the White House took more than a year to appoint the EAC, which in turn delayed the distribution of additional HAVA funds to the states.

As both states and the EAC fought to catch up, predictions about the nation's electoral readiness in 2004 became dire. Some states, including Florida, rushed to purchase touch-screen voting machines, only to find themselves mired in lawsuits over voter-verifiable paper trails. States adopted different interpretations of HAVA's voter identification and provisional ballot provisions. Democrats and Republicans exchanged heated accusations about fraud among absentee ballots, and each party deployed thousands of lawyers and activists to monitor the polls.

Much to the country's surprise and relief, no major glitches occurred on November 2. For Florida, the margin of victory in the presidential race, combined with a relatively smooth Election Day and more widely publicized problems in Ohio and elsewhere, took the state off election reform's center stage. But as many experts noted, there were a number of places in the country where, if the vote had been closer, scrutiny of the election process would have produced the same sort of consternation as did the events of four years ago. And states are far from meeting all of the HAVA mandates—or receiving the full appropriation promised by Congress. More than 40 states, for example, received waivers until 2006 on the requirement that they establish statewide voter registration databases, which will help guarantee that voter lists are accurate.

This session's speakers—Doug Chapin, director of the Trusts-supported Electionline.org initiative, and Ray Martinez III, a member of the federal EAC—will offer a retrospective look at the states' progress on election reform since 2000, as well as an analysis of what challenges lie ahead as the nation turns its attention to the 2006 and 2008 elections.

SPEAKERS' BIOGRAPHIES

Doug Chapin

Doug Chapin is director of Electionline.org, created by the Trusts in March 2001 to monitor, assess and help advance states' election reform efforts in the aftermath of the 2000 elections. Mr. Chapin has worked on the legal and policy aspects of election issues for more than 15 years. Prior to joining Electionline.org, Mr. Chapin worked at the law firm of Skadden, Arps, Slate, Mcagier & Flom, counseling clients on compliance with federal, state and local laws regulating campaign finance, lobbying, gifts to public officials and conflicts of interest. At Dickstein, Shapiro, Morin & Oshinsky, he established the firm's disclosure program under the Lobbying Disclosure Act and litigated redistricting cases in state and federal court.

Mr. Chapin served for three years as elections counsel to the Democrats on the U.S. Senate Rules Committee, where he worked on campaign finance reform, election administration, disabled voting and other issues. He also spent five years as director of research and statistics at Election Data Services, a political consulting firm, and was a statistician for the Federal Election Commission. Mr. Chapin received a law degree from Georgetown University Law Center, a Master's degree in public administration from Harvard's Kennedy School of Government and a Bachelor's degree in politics from Princeton University.

Ray Martinez III

Ray Martinez is one of four members of the U.S. Election Assistance Commission (EAC). Mr. Martinez was nominated by President Bush and confirmed by unanimous consent of the U.S. Senate in December 2003. Previously, he was an attorney in Austin, Texas, focusing primarily on government affairs and administrative law matters for county governments and other public entities. He also served as executive director and legal counsel of the Every Texan Foundation, a nonpartisan voter registration and education effort aimed at increasing voter participation in Texas.

Before beginning his law practice, Mr. Martinez served as deputy assistant to the President for Intergovernmental Affairs, assisting former President Clinton with policy issues involving the nation's governors and other state elected officials. He also helped develop long-term strategies to stimulate economic growth along the U.S./Mexico border region and helped established the U.S./Mexico Border Health Commission, now headquartered in El Paso, Texas. He served as regional director for the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services (HHS) in Dallas, where he focused agency resources on public health issues such as full implementation of the Children's Health Insurance Program. He also served as White House liaison to HHS and as special assistant to the President in the White House Office of Political Affairs. Prior to his service in the federal government, Mr. Martincz worked as a legislative liaison for the Texas Attorney General's office, and on staff at the Texas legislature. A native of Texas, he received his law degree from the University of Houston Law Center and his Bachelor's degree from Southwestern University.

Voting confusion raises fears of more polling day glitches.

The electoral reforms launched after the contested 2000 US election have only been partially implemented, and some voting procedures across the US remain confused, a report on possible election glitches said yesterday.

The study by electionline.org, a non-partisan research group, comes amid growing concern that "overtime" will be required to determine the outcome of this year's presidential contest. High voter turnout, close contests in battleground states and legal challenges could potentially delay results. Democrats, Republicans and activist groups have lined up thousands of lawyers to monitor polling stations on election day. The campaigns have also been raising money for any recounts.

"What happened in (the) 2000 (election) might never be repeated again, but some of the ingredients that produced chaos four years ago still exist," said Doug Chapin, director of electionline.org.

Many states moved to install touch-screen voting machines. But uncertainty about the ability to provide a paper receipt to voters, and to conduct a recount if a contest is close, has stalled adoption of that technology.

A separate area of concern is so-called provisional ballots. The Help America Vote Act, passed after the 2000 debacle, gave voters who show up at a polling stations and believe they are registered - but do not find their names on the voter rolls - the right to cast a ballot. This would be counted only if the voter's eligibility was subsequently confirmed.

But states have set up different procedures for determining voter eligibility, with some 28 mandating that ballots cast in the wrong precinct should not be counted.

"Many people are afraid provisional ballots will become the hanging chads (of Florida) of 2004," Mr Chapin said.

The US Justice department stepped in to a dispute surrounding this issue on Monday, asking a federal judge in Michigan to dismiss a lawsuit brought by Democrats attempting to require the state to count ballots cast in the wrong precinct.

About a dozen other lawsuits are pending across the country that could effect the conduct of the vote.

Mr Chapin also identified three areas in which reform did not keep pace with expectations after 2000: the Pentagon reversed course and did not institute an internet voting system for military personnel overseas; only 15 states have statewide databases required by the voting law; and the federal government has dispensed only a portion of the money pledged to help states with these reforms.

In Florida, where early voting began Monday, civil rights groups complained that an area with a high concentration of black voters was inadequately served by a single early-voting site. The Republican secretary of state said additional sites would be added.

Cornell Belcher, a Democratic pollster who studies African-American and young voters, said the hot-button issue for black women this year was not the war in Iraq or the economy.

"What's at stake is their belief in our Democratic democratic system," he said.

The single comment he hears most often is: "Is my vote going to be counted?" www.ft.com/uselections IT Review, Separate Section

Problems at polling places; No major meltdowns reported, but minor troubles snarl voting process

Machines malfunctioned, tempers flared and edgy voters often waited in lines for hours Tuesday to pick a president in a contentious race watched by thousands of monitors who expected the worst.

By midday, several local snarls had been reported but no widespread allegations of voting problems.

"So far, it's no big, but lots of littles," said Doug Chapin, director of the Election Reform Information Project, a nonpartisan research group. "We know of no major meltdowns anywhere along the lines some people were worried about."

Hyper-vigilance appeared to be the order of the day, which in some states prompted poll closures and unfounded complaints.

In the battleground state of New Jersey, for example, a suspicious substance later determined to be spilled salt prompted the two-hour closure of a Mount Laurel precinct. In Pennsylvania, zealous GOP election monitors complained that some Philadelphia voting machines already had thousands of recorded votes when the polls opened at 7 a.m.

Local election officials quickly explained that voting machines registered every vote ever cast on them -- like mileage on a car odometer -- and that did not constitute evidence of fraud.

"It's absolutely ridiculous," said Deputy City Commissioner Ed Schulgen.

In other states too close to call -- including Iowa and Michigan -- the liberal group MoveOn.org was accused of disrupting local precincts. In Ohio, a woman filed a lawsuit on behalf of voters who didn't receive absentee ballots on time, asking they be allowed to cast provisional ballots. Later in the day, a Toledo federal judge granted her request.

New touch-screen voting machines, which have been criticized by computer scientists and various states as susceptible to hacking and malfunction, were used Tuesday in 29 states and the District of Columbia. Only in Nevada, for this election, did the machines produce the paper records that make recounts reliable.

In Florida, which gave the 2000 election to President Bush on the basis of 537 votes, nearly half the state's voters were using the ATM-like machines.

Chellie Pingree, president of Common Cause and a former international election monitor, said a toll-free voting hot line established by her citizens' lobbying group had logged 20,000 calls by 10 a.m.

Provisional ballots, new this election, also prompted disaster fears because they could delay any recount efforts. Any voter whose name does not appear on precinct rolls is entitled to cast a provisional -- or paper -- ballot. But elections officials must individually certify them as being cast by registered voters before they can be counted.

Georgia's touch-screen voting machines passed a major test Tuesday.

A record 3.2 million voters cast ballots across the state, and no widespread equipment problems were reported. Just 24 minutes after the polls closed, unofficial results began flowing in to state election workers headquartered in Atlanta. In an exit poll of 1,618 Georgians conducted for The Atlanta Journal-Constitution and other media, 90 percent said they believed their votes would be counted accurately.

And on Election Day, Secretary of State Cathy Cox's worries were about long lines and provisional ballots. She wasn't having to defend the performance of the touch-screen machines she purchased in 2002 to replace the state's former patchwork of lever, optical scan and punch-card voting systems.

"They liked the machines," Cox said of Georgia voters. "They're frustrated with how long it takes to go through the check-in process. That's part of what we'd like to attack next."

Only a few minor problems with voting equipment were reported. Election officials had trouble programming voter access cards used to cast ballots, delaying the opening of some polls in Rockdale, Twiggs and Hancock counties.

Touch-screen voting also is used in parts of Florida, California, Nevada and other states. Officials in Maryland, the only other state that votes exclusively on touch-screen machines, also were crowing about their Tuesday success.

Like Cox, Maryland's chief election official hopes that problem-free elections eventually will snuff out criticism from some computer scientists, political activists and others who believe that electronic voting can be manipulated to produce fraudulent results.

"The fact that elections went so well across the country . . . It's got to start quieting down a bit," predicted Linda Lamone, Maryland's administrator of elections.

But that's not likely to happen, countered Doug Chapin, director of electionline.org, an election reform project financed by the Pew Charitable Trusts.

"Anyone who had an opinion on electronic voting before Nov. 2 saw nothing on Nov. 2 to change their opinion," Chapin said. "The people who make the machines, bought the machines or like the machines saw nothing that would dissuade them from making, buying or liking them in the future. People who have concerns about the machines saw nothing that would dissuade them from having continued concerns."

Forsyth County computer programmer Roxanne Jekot of countthevote.org said it's "foolish" for anyone to immediately declare electronic voting a rousing success. She said she is withholding judgment for now.

"I really don't have any comment until I can get some numbers and do some evaluation and take a look at what the end result was," Jekot said.

Georgia Tech researchers have devised a survey that seeks voters' opinions on their experiences in casting ballots. The survey can be accessed at www.ittatc.org/voting.php, or a paper copy can be obtained by calling 1-866-948-8282.

Cox's office will begin meeting soon with an advisory panel of local elected officials to talk about how to streamline the voter check-in process in hopes of ending long waits at the polls. Among the ideas --- one already used in Forsyth County --- is the automation of a statewide voter registration database so that voters' names can be looked up on laptop computers at the polling place rather than manually.

Electionline.org's Chapin said that "on first blush . . . it's a positive sign" that there were no major national problems reported with electronic voting. But he was cautious about drawing any broad conclusions just two days after the election.

"We don't know yet if the absence of reported problems so far means that there weren't any problems," Chapin said. "Or if it's like the old joke about the guy who fell off the tall building --- they knew he was an optimist because halfway down they heard him say, 'So far, so good.'" More than 4,000 votes vanished without a trace into a computer's overloaded memory in one North Carolina county, and about a hundred paper ballots were thrown out by mistake in another. In Texas, a county needed help from a laboratory in Canada to unlock the memory of a touch-screen machine and unearth five dozen votes.

In other places, machine undercounting or overcounting of votes was a problem. Several thousand votes were mistakenly double-counted in North Carolina, Ohio, Nebraska, and Washington state. Some votes in other areas were at first credited to the wrong candidates, with one Indiana county, by some quirk, misallocating several hundred votes for Democrats to Libertarians. In Florida, some machines temporarily indicated votes intended for challenger John F. Kerry were for President Bush, and vice versa.

In the month since the election, serious instances of voting machine problems or human errors in ballot counts have been documented in at least a dozen states, each involving from scores of ballots to as many as 12,000 votes, as in a North Carolina county. On Election Day, or in later reconciling tallies of ballots and voters, local officials discovered problems and corrected final counts. In some cases, the changes altered the outcomes of local races. But in North Carolina, the problems were so serious that the state may hold a rare second vote, redoing a contest for state agriculture commissioner decided by fewer votes than the number of ballots lost.

After the disputed vote in Florida four years ago, Congress passed the Help America Vote Act of 2002 and authorized $4 billion so states could create central computerized voter lists and replace outdated voting systems such as punchcards by 2006. But many states have not completed the overhaul, and this year's election unearthed enough problems both with older technologies and newer electronic touch-screens that two federal agencies plan unprecedented nationwide inquiries. The investigations by the Government Accountability Office and US Election Assistance Commission will begin early next year and be completed by mid-2005, at the earliest.

In addition, minor presidential candidates requested recounts in four states a partial one completed yesterday in New Hampshire, and statewide in Ohio, New Mexico, and Nevada.

None of the recounts or inquiries is expected to affect the results of the presidential election, which Bush won by more than 3.3 million votes.

Those who believe that either or both of the past two presidential elections were manipulated by a vague conspiracy to elect Bush have done statistical analyses of voting patterns in Florida and argued that the voting discrepancies were much larger and systemic, but their studies have not stood up to scrutiny from academics and other analysts.

Most of the concerns, which have rocketed through the Internet, center on computerized voting or tabulating machines, including some that do not keep a paper record for audits and recounts. Some computer scientists acknowledge that these systems could be vulnerable to tampering.

"I would hesitate to take seriously the conspiracy theories, but there are certainly gaps and vulnerabilities that have got to be addressed," said DeForest B. Soaries, chairman of the US Election Assistance Commission, which was created by the 2002 law and plans to conduct hearings around the country on the voting.

"We are convinced that while the election went relatively smoothly compared to what many had expected, that does not eliminate the need to study the results and collect data to document machine malfunctions and other administrative matters," Soaries said.

Since 2000, watchdog groups have intensified their monitoring and cataloging of complaints and errors. The nonpartisan Verified Voting Foundation and other groups built a database of more than 30,000 "election incidents" reported across the country this year. Most were routine, but nearly 900 involved significant e-voting problems, including malfunctions that shut down machines, lengthening waits at the polls. There were 42 reports of total breakdowns of machines in New Orleans and 28 in Philadelphia and "15 reports of catastrophic machine failure" in Mercer County, Pa.

The most serious problems occurred in North Carolina, where 4,438 e-votes disappeared in Carteret County. In at least five other counties, major double-counting or undercounting was discovered and corrected by North Carolina officials during their tabulations.

Johnnie McLean, deputy director of the State Board of Elections, attributed many mistakes to "the human element, brought on by fatigue." In Carteret, for example, election workers apparently did not notice the "Voter Log Full" message on the black box as the UniLect touch-screen failed to record the electronic votes, she said.

"If we had problems in the past, they were not magnified like this," McLean said, referring not only to the closeness of the statewide race, but also the extraordinary scrutiny of voting since 2000.

Examples of other major problems that were reported on and after Nov. 2, then later corrected, include:

Thousands of ballots were mistakenly double-counted in Sandusky County, Ohio; Sarpy County, Neb.; and Grays Harbor County, Wash. Democrats in Washington must decide by Friday whether to seek a second recount in the closest governor's race in state history. One recount has been held, reducing Republican Dino Rossi's 261-vote lead to 42 votes over Democrat Christine Gregoire.

In Gahanna, Ohio, a suburb of Columbus, Bush was temporarily credited with 3,893 more votes than he actually received in a precinct where only 638 voters cast ballots on a Danaher electronic voting machine.

In Franklin County, Ind., a tabulator credited about 600 straight-ticket Democratic votes to Libertarian Party candidates.

In Collin County, Texas, the memory card of a Diebold Election Systems touch-screen machine had to be sent to a laboratory in Canada a week after the election to extract information about 63 votes cast before the machine froze and was taken out of service.

In South Florida's Broward County, "multiple misrecordings" occurred when votes for Kerry on touch-screens made by Election Systems & Software Inc. appeared as Bush votes, and there was at least one account of a Bush vote going to Kerry, the Verified Voting group reported. Broward voters discovered the problem on screens that allowed them to check their selections before entering them electronically.

The long list of documented problems has fueled the suspicions of conspiracy theorists, activists, and the minor presidential candidates who requested the New Hampshire and Ohio recounts.

Ohio decided the 2004 contest, but since the 2000 election, Florida remains the focus of the doubters and the devotees of various scenarios that suggest skulduggery, in part because early exit polls overstated Kerry's strength.

No group has been more aggressive than Seattle-based Black Box Voting, which bills itself as "consumer protection for elections." Led by founder Bev Harris, the organization is seeking election records from around the country for audits of the results. The primary focus is Florida, where internal computer records have been requested in all 67 counties, and the results in glitch-plagued Volusia County, in the east-central part of the state, are being contested.

Four years ago, during vote-counting on election night, a faulty memory card initially deducted 16,022 votes from Democrat Al Gore's vote total in Volusia. Despite spending about $300,000 to upgrade equipment and avert a repeat, there were memory card problems this year in tabulators for six Volusia precincts. The optically-scanned paper ballots were re-fed into other counting machines to reach an accurate tally, a county election official said.

"All day long, I get desperate calls from people who are in so much pain," said Harris, the Black Box founder, who said she is convinced fraud occurred in some places Nov. 2. "They say: Can you fix it? Can you solve it? Can you turn around the presidential election? We're not trying to turn the election around. We're trying to get elections to be more transparent, because with the new machines, it's not transparent."

Deanie Lowe, Volusia's supervisor of elections, said she has complied with Harris's record requests and offered to recount, free of charge, any three of Volusia's 179 precincts selected by Harris.

Harris, however, said records for all precincts were not turned over, and Black Box will seek a 50-precinct recount in the county, which Kerry won but by a smaller margin than Gore did in 2000.

Much of the postelection focus on Florida resulted from a pair of analyses that claimed Bush's vote totals in the state were inflated by two vote-counting technologies.

The first analysis originated on the Web and cited results in rural, overwhelmingly Democratic counties in Florida's panhandle, where Bush crushed Kerry. All use optical scanners. What the analysis failed to note is that Bush routed Gore by nearly equal margins four years ago in the same conservative counties that have been tilting Republican for years in national elections. A team of Miami Herald reporters reviewed 17,000 ballots in three of the counties, basically confirming the election results.

Then, a broadly reported second study by a team at the University of California at Berkeley, using an academic statistical method, asserted that "Irregularities associated with electronic voting machines may have awarded 130,000 excess votes to President George W. Bush in Florida." In Broward County alone, the study said, Bush "appears to have received approximately 72,000 excess votes." Palm Beach and Miami-Dade counties, which also use touch-screens, were also cited as anomalies.

But if Bush had actually received 72,000 fewer votes in heavily Democratic Broward, his total this year would have been less than it was in 2000 even though nearly 132,000 more ballots were cast. Kerry won all three key counties, Broward by more than 209,000 votes.

Bush carried the state by 380,978 votes, or about 5 percent of 7.6 million cast.

If recounts are the skeptics' best hope to uncover systemic irregularities, they got off to a rocky start in New Hampshire. Completed yesterday at the request of Independent candidate Ralph Nader, the Granite State re-tally of 50,600 votes in 11 towns and city wards that use optical scanners increased Kerry's total by 87 votes and Bush's by 62.

Secretary of State William M. Gardner said scanned ballots have worked well in New Hampshire. "Indeed, the largest discrepancies found this year were in a legislative race involving hand-counted ballots," he said.

On deck is Ohio, which tipped the Electoral College to Bush. At the earliest, the recount of 88 counties won't begin until Dec. 13, according to the secretary of state's office, the same day the Electoral College is scheduled to formalize Bush's reelection. The recount could take anywhere from a few days to a few weeks. Minor presidential candidates Michael Badnarik and David Cobb of the Libertarian and Green parties, respectively, have said they would formally seek the recount once the state certifies the official results Monday. They will incorporate the review of 155,000 provisional ballots, which were not included in preliminary tallies that showed Bush winning Ohio by 136,483 votes, or about 2.5 percent.

How long the recount takes will depend on whether Badnarik and Cobb ask for a manual inspection of any or all of the 5.5 million ballots, said Carlo LoParo, spokesman for Ohio's secretary of state, J. Kenneth Blackwell.

Of complaints about long lines that discouraged some from voting and allegations that there was a shortage of machines in some urban Democratic areas, LoParo said such decisions in Ohio are made by county boards of elections with two Republicans and two Democrats.

Long waits in Ohio and elsewhere resulted from the system being overwhelmed by a high turnout, said Doug Chapin, director of the nonpartisan electionline.org, which monitors reform efforts.

More attention should be paid to providing an adequate number of machines in polling places, he said, as well as "finishing the job" mandated by the Help America Vote Act. Forty states, for example, have yet to comply with a mandate to establish a central, statewide database of registered voters. That will reduce questions about voter eligibility at election time, Chapin said.

Whatever the outcome of the recounts and the official inquiries by federal agencies, the impetus for improve voting systems will not fade, he said.

"This is not a fringe issue, because a sizable group is interested in pursuing this as a policy issue going forward," Chapin said. "There's now a critical mass of people involved who want to address the problems that occurred in 2004. This issue is not going to go away."

State lawmakers and election officials have for the most part put the election behind them, but not the problems that occurred in a number of states and localities.

With a few months to go before most state legislatures open sessions early, top election officials and politicians are beginning to lay out their plans for changing the way elections are administered based on the lessons they learned on November 2.

The plans being floated for deliberations next year range from the practical, the addition of early or no-excuse absentee voting in states that do not allow such options for voters now, to the innovative, which in Florida is a call for an election "season" that lasts two weeks rather than a traditional Election Day.

Problems a month ago at the polls have prompted calls for updated or standardized voting machines in New York and New Mexico. And it appears likely that the debate over the need for voter-verified paper audit trails with electronic voting machines will again be rekindled in a number of state legislatures.

A review of press reports from the past few weeks preview the focus of discussions in a number of states.

- ❑ Florida election officials have proposed creating an election season which would do away with a set election day and allow voting through an extended time period, the Miami Herald reported.
- ❑ In Iowa, Secretary of State Chet Culver has said he will ask the state legislature to approve same-day voter registration, and to also consider a mail-in election system, according to the Iowa City Press-Citizen. In Connecticut, the Record Journal reported that lawmakers there are also considering same-day voter registration.
- ❑ The Albuquerque Journal reported New Mexico Gov. Bill Richardson has proposed several changes he would like to see for the next election, including standardizing voting machines in all counties, requiring voting machines to leave a paper trail and developing new standards concerning the ratio of voting machines per voter in order to prevent long lines.
- ❑ New York City Mayor Michael Bloomberg publicly criticized the voting machines that were used in the November election, saying they were over 40 years old, and based on a patent developed by Thomas Edison which is almost 140 years old, Newsday reported. After noting the current voting machines "belong in the New York Historical Society" rather than polling places, Bloomberg said that the state lawmakers need to enact legislation to free up $200 million in federal

- ☒ Texas state Rep. Aaron Peña, proposed H.B. 166, which would require voting machines to give voters paper receipts. If passed, the bill would go into effect January 1, 2006. A companion bill has also been submitted in the Texas State Senate, as reported by The Valley Morning Star.
- ☒ According to the Miami Herald, Florida Gov. Jeb Bush has supported a series of changes that will revise the way in which felons can regain the right to vote. They would include easing restrictions in clemency rules which will allow more felons the right to vote, as well as hiring more staff in order to handle the backlog of felons who have applied to have their rights restored. The changes will be introduced by the clemency board in early December.
- ☒ Illinois election officials have called for legislation which would create a statewide standard for counting provisional ballots, the State Journal-Register reported. In the 2004 elections, different counties used different standards as to where provisional ballots could be cast and for what races they could be cast for.
- ☒ According to The Journal Inquirer, Connecticut will be holding legislative hearings on adding no-excuse absentee voting for the next election.

electionline.org will continue to update the progress of election administration bills filed in state legislatures.

Planning Session on state voter registration Databases

NAS
Technology Refresh Proposal

EAC follow-on proposal

Discussion document

In my survey of the state and Academy technology experts, everyone noted the significance of the January 1, 2006 deadline. Further, there was a broad consensus that many states are in danger of falling short of deploying a HAVA-compliant system by that date. Short-term measures that the EAC and Academies might undertake together fell into two broad categories: technical and administrative.

Prior to January 2006

The following technically-oriented objectives were mentioned as useful activities to undertake prior to January 2006

- Developing a list of common criteria (perhaps derived from some reasonable amalgamation of current state requirements for their VR systems).
- Providing advice to support conversions of county data to the statewide system to establish a baseline population in the database.
- Describing plausible quick-fix "disposable" approaches that bring states into compliance that do not constrain the eventual architecture of better systems.
  - For example, it might be useful to develop criteria and procedures that would enable counties to feed their individual lists into a state system by whatever means feasible, e.g. upload through the Internet, CDs, etc, and then coalesced into a single database system that assigns the necessary unique ID.
- Planning for election day use of the systems.
  - A real problem is capacity planning for the peak query load that will occur on election day. This could be done through a contract with a service provide to provide server farm capability.
- Developing a set of best practices that will allow states to fail or succeed en masse. (The "en masse" notion is based on the idea that if a large number of states are in the same situation regarding compliance, they may have greater leverage in negotiating with the Justice Department subsequent to January 2006. The availability of a set of "best practices" to which these states adhere could be an important part of demonstrating a good faith attempt to comply with the HAVA requirements.)

One administratively oriented objective was mentioned for consideration prior to January 2006: the formation of a state consortium that would begin to enable states to pool knowledge and exert greater leverage over contractors. Code sharing is already in place through govcc, but higher-level knowledge sharing is very much needed. (Higher-level knowledge includes contract terms, RFPs, architectures, problem reporting, data

Workshop for Voter Registration Database
Technology Officers
Meeting Summary

The United States Election Assistance Commission engages in research and technical assistance activities to support State-level implementation of the provisions of the Help America Vote Act (HAVA). One such provision is the requirement for all States to provide statewide voter registration bases at all voting locations not later than January 1, 2006. These databases, described in Section 303 of HAVA, are required to host information in a single environment accessible to authorized users but protected from inappropriate use, interface with other State-level systems, assign unique identifiers to legally registered voters, and, generally, serve as the single point of information for all Federal voter registration information in a specific State.

In order to support States' efforts on this important topic, the EAC convened a workshop for chief information technology officers responsible for the development and operations of these databases. This workshop, held in June 2005 at the National Academy of Sciences in Washington, DC, afforded State technology officials an opportunity to share experiences, ideas, challenges and constraints with their peers from around the country. This peer dialogue was supplemented by participation from a cadre of NAS technology experts. These experts brought unique perspectives and valuable technology knowledge to bear on the challenges articulated by the participants. Before the meeting, participants were provided the following topics for consideration:

- Software Development
- Databases
- Networking & Communication
- Security & Privacy
- Training & Human Resources

Over the course of the two days, participants were asked to contribute their perspectives on the key elements and challenges of meeting the requirements for statewide voter registration databases articulated in HAVA. This meeting summary provides an overview of the key observations and challenges articulated by the participants as well as a summary of suggested action items in each of these themes.

Software Development

While software development itself (e.g. architecture, testing) did not resonate as a primary challenge for the IT participants, they did articulate challenges around contract management and vendor selection and performance. Specifically, States were concerned about the RFP development process and a sense that vendors were "re-selling" the same product because States were not communicating about what was already available. Additionally, by not sharing information (e.g. request for proposals), States were repeating the same mistakes, rendering them insufficiently prepared to hold vendors accountable and secure the best services.

020171

Suggested Action Items

Participants suggested the following types of activities and resources would be helpful to them:

- Developing a community of practice with the following features:
  - Online learning community to share, information, documents, code bases, and other resources
  - A place (online) to share success stories and “get the word out” about new requirements.
- Fostering “user groups” where States using the same vendor could gather to share information either in person or electronically

Databases

It was generally agreed that “databases” as a topic focused on the interoperability capacity of the systems as compared to the requirements of HAVA. Participants noted that the language in HAVA requiring database to interact with other databases is not completely clear. Participants struggled with feeling under prepared to assess their own compliance, asking the question “how good is good enough?”

In addition to the question of with which databases the voter registration list is required to interact, participants were also concerned about the effect of time on their databases’ performance and ability to auto-interact. That is, if solutions are developed to challenges identified over time, participants worry that the revised databases might become too cumbersome to work effectively.

Beyond these technical challenges, participants articulated challenges they described as “political.” These challenges included securing county buy-in, fostering collaboration among diverse stakeholders, and balancing Federal and State legal requirements in their work. Participants encouraged their peers to include all stakeholders early in the process, to create buy-in by being inclusive in RFP development and vendor selection, and to always focus on the fact that “at the end of the day, you want the system to work.”

Suggested Action Items

Participants suggested the following types of activities and resources would be helpful to them:

- A compliance checklist focused on the technical requirements of the VR databases
- Testing guidance from the Election Assistance Commission
- A joint Federal-State testing plan
- Standards for best practices in design and interoperability
- A reference architecture that would be HAVA compliant

Security & Privacy

Two primary themes emerged as part of the security and privacy conversation:<sup>1</sup> internal and external concerns. Internal concerns deal with ensuring those that have access only have appropriate access to appropriate information, as mandated by HAVA and in accordance with State law. To this end, participants discussed the need for role-based access. This type of access assigns certain permissions to certain users (based on their role and level of need) and thus ensures that only those that “need to know” have access to sensitive information.

External access recognizes that counties have different perceptions of privacy constraints and that they use information differently. For instance, many counties sell their voter registration lists to candidates in various elections. Clearly, there must only be non-private information on that list. This is a requirement for privacy; the database must contain but not provide that information on the sellable list.

Additionally, participants were concerned about the perception of privacy in their home States. Real social problems such as stalking and violence against public officials (e.g. judges) have created fear over inappropriate access to address or even voting district information. This fear has resulted in the cancellation of certain public Web-based applications through which voters can determine where their appropriate polling location.

Suggested Action Items

Participants suggested the following types of activities and resources would be helpful to them:

- Guidance around legitimate privacy concerns, including blind ballot voters
- Shared best practices on role-based and privacy (e.g. flags vs. filters) strategies

Networking & Communication

Participants considered security to be a component of networking and, as such, articulated challenges they face or are concerned about with respect to threats, role identification, and tradeoffs between privacy and security. Specifically, participants thought threat detection and planning for attacks on their databases was critically important. These threats may be from those actually attempting to steal information or those simply testing their “hacking skills.” Specifically, participants discussed the need for planning, detection, and recovery from an attack on their system. Additionally, participants are aware that threats are constantly evolving, a situation that requires constant vigilance on their parts.

With respect to appropriate roles, participants discussed the value of moving from a password-based protection system to a potential token system. Under either system, it was agreed, security is still a consideration to be given top priority. States need to make individual decisions based on the type of user being given access.

Suggested Action Items

Participants suggested the following types of activities and resources would be helpful to them:

- Additional literature on the value of tokens vs. passwords
- Coordination with postal service to reach additional addresses, as appropriate
- Guidance around requirement interactive partners

Training & Human Resources

The primary challenges associated with human resources and training related to staff shortages and accountability. Specifically, the participants were concerned about the "accountability gap" between those that will actually do most of the work and those that will be held accountable for its quality. Many participants felt that the nature of their work and the requirements they face are not always well understood, leaving them understaffed and overtaxed.

Training issues included challenges around States delivery vendor-developed training, facility constraints, and staff turnover. Also challenging to the participants is knowledge transfer from the vendor over to State personnel and the need to educate management about ongoing support needs. Participants encouraged their peers to ensure they participate in the design plans and not simply hand over control to their vendors.

Suggested Action Items

Participants suggested the following types of activities and resources would be helpful to them:

- Tools for communicating staffing requirements
- Strategies for educating first internal collaborators and then external stakeholders
- A chart comparing the staffing levels of other States
- Comprehensive help files for all programs and products
- Regional trainings, peer methodology or train-the-trainer

This Workshop for Voter Registration Database Technology Officers provided colleagues from around the country to join together with EAC and NAS technology experts for a facilitated discussion around issues, challenges, strategies, and necessary support. Thanks to the active participation of the attendees, the meeting was successful on many fronts. Among the outcomes of the meeting are:

- Fostered peer relationships for ongoing communication
- Provided EAC a clearer sense of the challenges and needs of the field
- Generated a list of possible next steps for both EAC and the IT personnel back home
- Exposed participants to NAS expertise

As EAC moves forward in supporting States in meeting the requirements of HAVA, both those effective in January and beyond, this meeting will inform that process.

Subject Meeting with Design for Democracy

Good morning Adam:

In Boston I snared Commissioner Martinez for a few minutes and asked if he would be willing to meet with board members from an organization called Design for Democracy, an affiliate organization of the American Institute for Graphic Arts. They have done some wonderful work in Chicago, Oregon and other places redesigning election materials and processes (they redesigned the whole polling place in Chicago) in order to make election day work more smoothly for all.

I asked Commissioner Martinez if he was willing to listen to a briefing from the group to see what they've done and discuss a potential projects with the EAC. One project I discussed with him would be getting Design for Democracy involved in reviewing the design of the national mail-in voter registration form.

This is a long way of getting to my point. But I've been working with the Design for Democracy folks on a possible day that some of them could travel to Washington to meet with Commissioner Martinez. They are available on May 17. Would it be possible for him to meet with them on May 17th? And might Chair Hillman and Commissioner DeGregorio be available as well? Commissioner Martinez mentioned that they might also want to participate in the briefing.

This is a wonderful group. (For disclosure purposes I need to mention here that I am now on their board of directors.) Instead of attacking elections officials they reached out to help. They have convinced me and other elections officials across the country that improving elections doesn't always have to be about buying expensive new equipment. Sometimes, redesigning the process you already have to make it more voter friendly will get the job done.

Anyway, let me know if a May 17 meeting would work. These folks would be flying in from New York and Chicago.

The Design System

The examples provided in "Election Design: Models for Improvement" were developed from a carefully conceived system of colors, symbols, images, typefaces, principles of organization, and methods of execution. Some of the recommended formats can be easily implemented by election administrators working in partnership with print or electronic media suppliers. Others will require professionals familiar with information design and the workings of a graphic design system. We are created a pdf of the design system section that is downloadable from this page.

The Voting Experience

Each stage of the election process involves distinct procedures and communication requirements for voters and for election officials. Our design system applies established design principles to all stages of the voting experience.

Examples include voter registration cards that meet HAVA requirements and that adhere to the Design for Democracy standard of making the complex clear.

Information about the election process, candidates, and issues in a given election need to be readily available and easy to understand. Our system includes brochures, information cards, and instruction sheets.

Well designed signs that provide instruction and information in the polling place will instill confidence in a voter's ability know what to do and how to do it.

Behind The Scenes

Those who serve in the polling place have direct influence on the voter's experience. They also impact the efficiency of election administration. Our book, Election Design: Models for Improvement, provides detailed guidelines for page layout and content management of a pollworker training and reference manual including templates for electronic training support.

The forms, envelopes, and instructions used for election record keeping and vote recording can be very confusing for pollworkers. Design for Democracy has developed a document management system that includes large reference numbers, consistent placement of information, clear instructions, and a color coding system that provides instant, useful information. Listing of sub sections: Pollworker training and support Document management system Provisional voting

Additional administrative challenges are to account for provisional votes. Our document management system has been extended to forms and envelopes necessary for HAV, provisional voting.

Design for Democracy
An opportunity for clearer communication between government and citizens

Government in a participatory democracy has a responsibility to remove the barriers to participation in civic life. This includes making the tools of participation (ballots, surveys, forms, web sites and informational publications) easy for every citizen to use.

When citizens get confused while filling out tax forms, the problem is not the intelligence of the citizen; it's the design of the form. When a family fails to return a government questionnaire because it looks too complicated and intrusive, the problem is not the family, but the look and feel of the survey. When an election ballot is tossed out because the voter was confused, the problem is not with the voter, but the design of the machine and the layout of the ballot.

"Every citizen" should mean just that — everyone who is a citizen, regardless of age, physical challenge or education, should have an equal opportunity to participate in democracy and communicate easily with his or her government.

Information design

Information design is the art and science of making raw information and instructions easy to read, understand and use. It is practiced by graphic designers, usability experts, and language simplification specialists. In the private sector, the information and service economies employ information design to insure that information products (web sites, manuals and customer services) are effective and easy-to-use. In the competitive new economy, information design makes the difference between product acceptance and failure.

Information design, undertaken by professionals with experience, helps to address the different needs of different audiences, whether they be elderly, young, disabled or challenged by English as a second language.

Information design is just as important in the public sector, yet the practice and application of advanced design to government communications lags significantly behind. At the same time, the general public (with exposure to sophisticated communications products) has increased expectations for the government to perform at the same level as the private sector.

Design in a participatory democracy

Government can benefit from private sector advances in information design. Clear performance expectations are urgently needed to guide the design of the tools of participation. Information gathering tools, such as ballots, surveys, and forms need to be designed to be consistent, clear and easy to use. Information dissemination tools, such as public service instructions and government web sites must encourage use through clarity and usability. They may be designed at the district, local, state or national level by local designers selected by different agencies; yet, they should be designed with a clear appreciation for the performance standards that need to be met by the designed forms, screens or reports.

Participatory democracy relies on the free and equal exchange of information and ideas. Government communications that are difficult to use give preference to those with time, resources, and education. To be truly democratic, government communications should be accessible to all. The government has an opportunity to improve compliance through ease-of-use and to improve goodwill by demonstrating that taxpayers' money is being well spent.

The process

The public information product development process

Though the design of information products, such as a universal voting machine and ballot, might seem simple at first, this is misleading. There are a number of critical information product design processes that are critical to the success of such undertakings. No major design initiatives would be complete without the following steps.

Research and planning

Investigate and learn from similar projects undertaken in the private sector, in local governments, or other countries. In many cases, information problems have already been solved and tested. A design strategist and researcher can help create design plans that harvest the best ideas around the world and avoid duplication.

Language simplification

Work with writing professionals to shorten text and to craft language that the majority of Americans would understand.

Identity development

Make sure that all communications look and feel like they come from the government and that they have the appropriate look of authority and security. Use professional graphic designers to develop brands or signatures for any communication program.

Graphic design

Work with graphic designers to develop appropriate and contemporary styles and formats for all communications. This includes layout, use of color, typefaces, illustration and formatting.

Industrial design

Work with industrial designers to develop the form, function and feel of any hardware associated with the information product. This includes materials development, product design, ADA issues and finishes.

Experience design and usability testing

Study and explore how the general public interacts with the tools of participation. Usability professionals employ experience, focus groups and careful user testing to avoid mistakes and to be absolutely sure that any new products will be accepted and easy-to-use by the broadest public.

Assessment

Any new information product is not complete until it is evaluated under real conditions for at least one year. The evaluation would explore rates of compliance, security issues, and unexpected problems or benefits.

Where to find help

AIGA, the American Institute of Graphic Arts, is the largest and oldest professional association of designers in the country. It is a nonprofit, nonpartisan association that represents information designers and designers working in print, motion, new media and interactive media. AIGA, through its experience in working with public and private clients, can assist in creating an RFP, a scope of work or design brief, or in helping agencies locate designers with the requisite experience and skills. AIGA has also assembled a special expert team to develop and evaluate options.

Subject Meeting with Election Technology Council

Buster:

While in Austin last week, I was invited to meet with David Hart, who is president/CEO of Hart Intercivic (DRE manufacturer). I had a good meeting with David and his senior staff, and toured the company's headquarters there in Austin.

I received a follow-up email from David last night, and he was asking if any of us were planning to be in San Antonio for IACREOT because the Election Technology Council (of which David is chairman) will be meeting at IACREOT as well. The specific request from David is for any, or all, of the four EAC commissioners to meet and address the vendors all in one sitting. I personally think this is a good opportunity to meet with the vendors and, among other things, urge them to comply with your security proposal, which by that time, will presumably be a formal Statement of Policy adopted by the EAC.

Before I run this request by the other commissioners, I thought I would present it to you first. If we can find the time to do so, I think this is a good idea. Your thoughts?

Thanks.

We're also going to invite a news reporter to sit in but I don't know which one. I can give you that name when I get it.

The Oklahoman is at 9000 N Broadway Extension, at the southeast corner of Broadway Ext. and Britton Rd. In our lobby Commissioner Martinez will check in with the guard (who will be expecting him) and they'll

Summary of Meeting with Advocates for the Disabled Community

The meeting started with Commissioner Martinez explaining the various funding constraints the EAC has dealt with which caused the TGDC and NIST to rush their VVSG recommendations. The Advocates for the Disabled then mentioned section 2.2.5 of the VVSG as providing a 'loophole' for modified optical scan machines such as the ES&S AutoMark, by using the word "should" instead of "shall". Commissioner Martinez acknowledged this problem and urged the VVSG to be viewed as an ever-changing document. The Advocates replied by saying that once States buy machines based on EAC / VVSG recommendations, they will be in place for a long time. With a January 2006 deadline, there must be a sense of urgency to close these 'loopholes'. The idea of machines being able to be fit retroactively with devices which would ensure independence and privacy to persons with disabilities was then introduced by Mr. Dickson. He stated that only a limited number of vendors are addressing this issue.

The next major issue addressed in the meeting was VVPAT. The Advocates pointed out that current VVPAT does not insure security. They also stated that VVPAT hinders machines from being fully accessible especially if they use the VVPAT as the official ballot, as some states have deemed they should for recounts (Commissioner Martinez added the point that no state has made VVPAT the official ballot).

Another issue that was brought up was section 2.2.7. A "shall" is used for visually impaired, but a "should" is used for mobility impaired. They viewed this as potentially divisive within their community. Members of the EAC, including Commissioner Martinez, Mr. Wilkey, and Carol Paquette, responded by saying that the lack of an independent source is a problem, and that there are other technologies out there that are a better substitute to VVPAT.

Commissioner Martinez concluded the meeting by encouraging them to submit their comments to the EAC, and that those comments should be submitted in writing. He followed by saying that he hopes this will be an ongoing dialogue between the EAC and the disabled community.

In short, the Advocates are mainly concerned with maintaining a unified community – one that advocates for all who are disabled, regardless of their disability. They are concerned that these new voting machines, specifically the VVPAT, will grant access, independence, and privacy to only those who are visually or hearing impaired and that those with mobility or dexterity disabilities will not be guaranteed the same right to access, independence and privacy.

The meeting ended on good terms and it seemed that Commissioner Martinez's comments about the VVSG being a changing document and him encouraging this conversation to be ongoing between the EAC and the disabled community put the Advocates a little at ease. They feared that following the 90 day comment period, some changes would be made to the VVSG, and then the document would be put on a shelf to "collect dust". Commissioner Martinez, Mr. Wilkey, Carol Paquette, and Gavin Gilmour encouraged them to believe otherwise.

Subject Tuesday's Design for Democracy meeting

Adam:

I just wanted to confirm for you the names of the three Design for Democracy board members who will attend next Tuesday's meeting at your headquarters. They are:

1. Ric Grefe, chair of the Design for Democracy Board, and executive director of the American Institute for Graphic Arts. The AIGA was the organization that started Design for Democracy.
2. Marcia Lausen, director of the School of Design at the University of Illinois at Chicago, and owner of studiolab, a design firm with offices in Chicago and San Francisco. As an instructor in the School of Design she directed the very impressive projects that redesigned processes and materials for Cook County polling place elections and Oregon's vote-by-mail elections.
3. Whitney Quesenbery, who represents the Usability Professionals' Association on the board. She brings an expertise in usability to the organization and you may already know her because she is a member of the TGDC.

I wish I could be there because I believe so strongly in the fine work these folks have done in the past few years. I believe there is a great potential for this group to work with the EAC on very positive projects. But I think if I had to travel all the way to the east coast again this soon my bosses, and my wife, would disown me!

Subject reschedule of NAS VRDB meeting

Folks -

It looks like the most viable date for June is the 13th-14th. So let's move ahead with preparation for that date.

Herb, I think we need to talk about the objectives and agenda. Don't think we need to meet in person; a phone call will do. I have a meeting this morning at 10. Could we shoot for maybe 11 or sometime between 2 and 3 this afternoon? Thanks!

Subject planning for next VRDB/NAS meeting

Commissioner et al. -

A decision has been made to re-schedule the second VRDB/NAS meeting from May 16-17 to one of the following dates: June 2-3, June 9-10, June 13-14, June 29-30.

NAS needs a decision from EAC in the next day or two so they can reserve the meeting space.

EAC needs to firm up the objectives and agenda for this meeting, as well as to identify potential attendees.

Adam - Can you identify a 15 minute window for the Commissioner, Julie, you and me to discuss this in the next two days? Thanks!

Subject Cyber Security Industry Alliance - Susan Zevin - Request for meeting

Commissioners -

Susan Zevin contacted me several weeks ago to set up a meeting between the Commissioners and Paul Kurtz, the Executive Director of the Cyber Security Industry Alliance (CSIA). CSIA is an industry advocacy group that has been formed to promote improvement of cyber security through public policy, education and technology-focused initiatives. Their membership is comprised of major cyber security software providers such as Symantec, Entrust, McAfee, Check Point (they've been getting some unfavorable press lately), and others. They are "interested in assisting the Commission in the evolution of new approaches to voting systems." Susan was rather vague about what this means. I suggested that it might be useful for this group to review and comment on the TGDC/NIST work on the NIST website. Susan indicated they are interested in "higher level, big picture policy matters." Whatever these matters are, she indicated that they can only be discussed directly with the Commissioners, not with some intermediary.

Checked out this group with some colleagues in the security business. The feedback I received was that they're relatively new on the scene, only one of several similar industry advocacy groups, and that they're looking for an issue to make their mark on. (There might have been some professional rivalry seeping through in these comments.) Mr. Kurtz has pretty impressive credentials, having been National Security Council senior director of the Office of Cyberspace Security and a member of the President's Critical Infrastructure Protection Board (prior to 2003).

Is there interest in a meeting by all or some of you?

Subject Re: EAC Meeting Invitation

Adam,

Like Dan, I would be delighted to meet with Commissioner Martinez and am pleased that he has found our website helpful.

Would it be possible to meet on Monday at 5:30, perhaps at the Hotel George on Capitol Hill? I will be heading to the airport at 6:15pm to catch a flight back to Columbus, but that would give us a little time for the kind of informal meeting you describe, at which we can start a conversation that can be pursued subsequently. I believe Dan might be able to join us at this time as well.

Thanks very much,

Ned Foley

As one of four commissioners on the EAC, Commissioner Martinez is especially interested in issues related to provisional voting and the Help America Vote Act of 2002. In short, Commissioner Martinez found the information on your website to be extremely useful and the analysis insightful.

Commissioner Martinez asked me to send this email today because it is our understanding that you will participate in a forum here in D.C. next Monday sponsored by GWU's Law Review. Although Commissioner Martinez plans to attend some portions of the forum (depending on his schedule), he was wondering if either or both of you had any room on your schedule while in Washington to have coffee at the EAC offices. The purpose of the visit would be very informal -- simply a "get to know you" visit to establish a dialogue and get initial input from you on HAVA and election reform generally. If you are available and interested in doing so, please contact me ASAP at 202-566-3105 (or respond via email) to schedule a time.

I think we will be scrambling tomorrow morning to get things ready for the meeting, so I don't think 9:00AM is a good time. This organization is a credible and important group, and one that I hope we can get involved in this program. Rather than meeting tomorrow before the meeting, why don't I call her today and explain where we are with the program, and to further explain that all we are doing tomorrow is adopting a framework within which whoever directs this program will be able to operate. We are not disbursing grant money to any entity tomorrow and in fact, we are very interested in proposals for funding right now. If she comes to the meeting, perhaps we can meet with her afterwards.

Is this approach acceptable to everyone?

Ann called and apologized for not calling you back two weeks ago... She then confirmed the times that we would be in town on Monday. She checked the SOS's schedule, and there some time for you to meet with him at Monday at 3:30 PM. I told her that it sounded good, but told her I'd call to finalize. Let me know if you see any problems with that time frame.

Lloyd Leonard and his staffer Jeanette Senecal will meet with us (or you, depending on your preference) at 2 PM on Monday, at the EAC. I've reserved the small conference room for us. He says he intends to set up meetings with each of the four commissioners separately, (but, he added in a unique tone) he's coming to you first.

Subject EAC Meeting Invitation

Dear Professors Foley and Tokaji:

My name is Adam Ambrogi, and I am special assistant to Commissioner Ray Martinez of the U.S. Election Assistance Commission. Commissioner Martinez is a frequent visitor to your law school's website containing legal news and analysis on election law issues. As one of four commissioners on the EAC, Commissioner Martinez is especially interested in issues related to provisional voting and the Help America Vote Act of 2002. In short, Commissioner Martinez found the information on your website to be extremely useful and the analysis insightful. (For additional information about the EAC and Commissioner Martinez, please visit our agency website at www.eac.gov.)

Commissioner Martinez asked me to send this email today because it is our understanding that you will participate in a forum here in D.C. next Monday sponsored by GWU's Law Review. Although Commissioner Martinez plans to attend some portions of the forum (depending on his schedule), he was wondering if either or both of you had any room on your schedule while in Washington to have coffee at the EAC offices. The purpose of the visit would be very informal -- simply a "get to know you" visit to establish a dialogue and get initial input from you on HAVA and election reform generally. If you are available and interested in doing so, please contact me ASAP at 202-566-3105 (or respond via email) to schedule a time.

Regards,

Adam Ambrogi

Dear Becca:

My name is Adam Ambrogi and I'm Commissioner Martinez's Special Assistant (and an '02 Texas Law graduate). I'll be attending and will help coordinate that meeting on Friday. Is 12:15 at Bertucci's in the "Shops at 2000 Penn" (by Kinkead's in Foggy Bottom) ok to discuss the HAV College Program and any potential partnerships between JD and the EAC?

Please let me know. Please also provide a phone number should any changes be necessary. My contact number is below, and I know the Commissioner and I look forward to meeting you on Friday.

Very truly yours,

I did not tell him about the meeting we have set up with ES&S.

Commissioners:

As a follow-up to my email of last week, I have been in touch with Tracy Warren, who had asked to speak with both of you regarding the efforts that she and Jennifer Collins-Foley are proposing through the "Pollworker Institute." In addition to the prospectus for the P.I. provided you both, they have also indicated their interest in discussing the future of the College Pollworker Program, in light of their schedule for this year's Pollworker Institute initiatives. Tracy (and Jennifer, if she's back from Albania) are available to meet on Monday, June 6th at 2 PM. Please let me know whether that time is available for you, and whether you desire any additional staff present at this meeting. I will work out the remaining details.

Thanks,

Subject NASED & NASS Winter Meeting Invites

Commissioners:

I just spoke with Melinda Glazer at NASED. They would like to invite you to address their membership at their annual winter meeting in DC (a formal letter of invitation has been mailed to each of you). Please check on your availability for Friday, February 4, 2005. The timeslot they have available runs from 1:30-3:45 PM. They wanted to give you the opportunity to speak on a weekday, but Saturday (Feb. 5) would also work if Friday will not.

The following is a list of topics that NASED would like for you to address, in addition to any additional EAC-related topics:

*ITA issues--when EAC will take over, how, etc.

*Provisional ballots--what our study will entail, timeframe for conducting the study, etc.

*Full funding for HAVA requirements payments--a suggested strategy for working with the state offices to get full funding

*Guidance to address changes to state plans--what constitutes a "material change" and other legal issues

The staff will work with you to prepare an agenda, etc. For now, please let me know ASAP if the Feb. 4 date and timeframe works for you.

In addition, I just received a fax invite to the NASS winter conference. I will distribute a copy to each of you. It will contain more details, but please mark your calendars for our EAC presentation on Monday, Feb. 7, from 9:00 AM-12:00 PM. You are also invited to stay for a lunch that follows immediately afterwards.

Best,
Kay

Jennifer:

I'm sure we can work something out...things are pretty fluid for next week, but hopefully Tuesday would work. I'm not sure about the other commissioners, but I can sit down with Jim sometime that Tuesday, though it would probably work best to do something here at the office, since I'm swamped right now trying to get ready for the hearing, the roll-out of our requirements payments to states (beginning May 10th) and our budget hearing in front of our appropriating sub-committee (which happens on May 12). Needless to say, the first two weeks of May will be a very trying time for the new EAC!

Anyway, I'll definitely make time for your client, and I'll mention it to the other commissioners when I see them later today. Also, I tried calling you back several times yesterday, but could not get through on the number that was given to me (422-6422). Perhaps we got the number down incorrectly...sorry about that.

I'll let you know when on Tuesday works best for me....I'll be back in touch later this afternoon.

Ray-

I saw that someone called my phone but did not leave a message for me, so I used the call log to call back (because it was a San Antonio number). It was Mr. Cisneros' organization, and I spoke with Sylvia there, who wanted to see if she could move your meeting back from 330 to either 130 or 230 tomorrow. (Mr. Cisneros wants to try to see his son fly- he's taking flying lessons tomorrow afternoon). Please let me know, or call back Sylvia at 210-228-9670. I introduced myself to her, and mentioned that it was good to have Jacob up here, and that he spoke kindly of them-- FYI.

Professor Edward Foley

Ohio State University
Columbus, OH,

Dear Professor Foley:

It was good to meet you yesterday at the Law and Democracy Symposium sponsored by the George Washington University School of Law. I commend you for your efforts to provide information and analysis on election law issues, and enjoyed our discussion regarding the state of election law. I will certainly keep your advice in mind.

While the election of 2004 has passed, I firmly believe that the Election Assistance Commission has its most challenging work ahead. The development of voting system standards, as well as voluntary guidelines for the states on HAVA compliance present a particular opportunity to improve the way election administration is handled. In these months ahead, I would welcome your thoughts on these issues, as we continue the reforms focused on the people, process and technology of election reform.

Please feel free to contact me at any time; my office number is 202-566-3105.

Subject EAC Hispanic Working Group Meeting -- August 1, 2005

I would like to take this opportunity to thank you for agreeing to participate in the Hispanic Working Group meeting on August, 1, 2005 being organized by the U.S. Election Assistance Commission (EAC). The overall purpose of this meeting is to strengthen the EAC's understanding of the needs of the Hispanic community with regard to implementation of the Help America Vote Act of 2002, as well as the EAC's role in administering the National Voter Registration Act of 1993. We hope to provide an open dialogue for all meeting participants to candidly assess and recommend to the EAC various steps needed to ensure registration and voting accessibility for Hispanic voters.

Attached to this email, you will find several documents that will be discussed at the meeting, including the NVRA mail-in voter registration form (in English and Spanish) and a recently-updated glossary of election terminology. Specifically, we would like to solicit your feedback on the usability and readability of these documents. (Please note that the Spanish translation of the NVRA form was done in 2003 and the EAC is in the process of revising this document to reflect the updated English version that will soon be available.) In addition to these documents, we have also attached a copy of the proposed agenda and a link to a recently-issued report on the National Voter Registration Act commissioned by the EAC. Both the Help America Vote Act and the National Voter Registration Act can be viewed and downloaded via the EAC website as www.eac.gov. We encourage you to take a look at our website, as we may also want to discuss during our meeting how the EAC can best utilize the Internet to reach and better serve the Hispanic community.

Once again, thanks in advance for your commitment to this important effort, and for your willingness to participate. I believe that this meeting is a critical step in ensuring that the EAC is responsive to all constituencies as we strive to continually improve the way we conduct elections for Federal office. I look forward to seeing you all on August 1st. If you have any questions or need additional information prior to the meeting, please feel free to call me or Laiza Otero here at the EAC. We can be reached at (202) 566-3100.

Best regards,

Ray Martinez III

Subject May Meeting

Dear Commissioner Martinez:

The dates for the May "technology" meeting are confirmed for May 16-17, 2005. We will start at 9:00 with a continental breakfast and go until 8:00 PM on day one, with a "networking dinner." On day two we are planning to start at 9:00 AM and will end at 2:00 PM. Dr. Lin has identified 8-12 technology experts to work with the group. The agenda is still under development, but it is suggested that we focus on five major topic areas:

- * Databases
- * Security/Privacy Issues
- * Networking and Communication Systems between state and localities
- * Software Development/IT Contracting
- * Training Issues

We have been working with Karen and Dr. Lin at NAS to think through the agenda for the May "technology" meeting, but feel that it is critical that EAC send out the "invites" to attendees by week's end. The major question is "whom to invite."

* Of course, we want the technology chiefs in the state election systems, but what states to invite is of issue. There has been some discussion that the "Working Group" be invited with their chief technology person.

* However, it might be worth considering inviting different states based on the status of their statewide voter registration database system, i.e. those that have statewide data bases, those that have already selected a vendor, and those with pending systems contracts.

Deciding on the best "invited" states to the table is of critical importance and must be resolved so that we can get notice out to the participants.

To resolve this issue, Karen, Herb and I were hoping to get a few moments on your calendar for a phone call on Friday morning.

I am also attaching a draft invite letter for your consideration and review. Thank you.

Memorandum

TO:

FROM: COMMISSIONER RAY MARTINEZ

SUBJECT: CREATION OF STATEWIDE VOTER REGISTRATION LIST TECHNOLOGY WORKING GROUP

DATE: APRIL 22, 2005

The Help America Vote Act of 2002 ("HAVA") requires that each State implement a single, uniform, official, centralized, interactive computerized statewide voter registration list defined, maintained and administered at the State level.<sup>1</sup> Moreover, the EAC is required by HAVA to adopt voluntary guidance to assist States in meeting this important requirement.<sup>2</sup>

Accordingly, to assist the EAC in developing voluntary guidance, the EAC has established a Voter Registration List Implementation Working Group, which is comprised exclusively of state and local election officials drawn primarily from the current membership of the EAC's Board of Advisors and Standards Board, in addition to representation from the Department of Justice. Our first meeting took place on March 30-31, 2005 in Washington, D.C. Based on this initial meeting EAC staff produced draft voluntary guidance which, after an appropriate public comment and hearing process, will be considered for final adoption by the EAC.<sup>3</sup>

EAC is now ready to launch the second step of this effort. The EAC, in conjunction with the National Academy of Sciences ("NAS"), is bringing together state election officials, their chief technology officers in charge of election databases, and national technology database experts in order to discuss key technology issues related to the implementation and on-going use of statewide voter registration lists. You are most welcome to attend this session, but it is critical that your chief technology officer attend. All travel and per diem expenses will be covered by EAC. This meeting is scheduled for May 16-17, 2005 in Washington, D.C. at the National Academy of Sciences. Dear

The U.S. Election Assistance (EAC) Commissioners request your presence at a meeting to be held on Monday, January 24, 2005. The meeting will begin at 1:30 p.m., is expected to last about 90 minutes, and will be held at our offices at 1225 New York Avenue, NW, Suite 1100, Washington, DC 20005.

As you know, the Help America Vote Act of 2002 (HAVA) established EAC to make certain that the law is fully and effectively implemented. The work of your organization brings value to this process. We also feel it is extremely important to have a direct relationship with the executive leadership of the nonprofit organizations that are committed to ensuring that American voters have confidence in the integrity and fairness of our elections. We did not have the opportunity to have such a meeting in 2004 and want to make certain that we do so early in 2005, before we begin our aggressive schedule of public meetings and hearings.

While we want an opportunity to personally share with you the broad based components of our 2005 work plan, it is our desire to have a broader discussion of how America is fairing under HAVA. You have been invited as the head of your organization because it is important that we hear directly from you. Your perspectives inform and bring value to our work as EAC Commissioners. Recognizing that we all rely heavily on expertise within our organizations, you are welcome to bring a member of your staff with you but we also want to emphasize that it is your input that we seek.

I hope you will join us on January 24 and look forward to seeing you then. Please confirm your attendance with my office at 202-566-3111. We will also need to know the name of any one who will accompany you to the meeting. My assistant, Sheila Banks, will provide any additional information you might need.

Best wishes for a wonderful, peaceful and successful New Year.

Sincerely,

Gracia Hillman
Chair

Working Group – Topics for Discussion

- I. HAVA Section 241 – Studies and other activities to promote effective administration of Federal elections
  - This section allows the Commission to carry out studies and other activities with the goal of promoting effective administration of Federal elections. Effective administration methods are to be the most convenient, accessible, and easy to use for voters, including voters with limited proficiency in the English language [§241(a)(1)]. Two of the election administration issues described for study in §241(b), directly refer to voters with limited proficiency in the English language [§241(b)(5) and (b)(14)]. The former describes “methods of ensuring the accessibility of voting, registration, polling places, and voting equipment to all voters” including voters with limited proficiency in the English language. The second issue described is the “technical feasibility of providing voting materials in eight or more languages for voters who speak those languages and who have limited English proficiency.”
  - Question 1: What methods do you consider effective in ensuring the accessibility of voting, registration, polling places, and voting equipment to Hispanic and Spanish-speaking voters? – Discuss accessibility for minority language speakers for each component.
  - Question 2: What resources are there currently to assist Hispanic and Spanish-speaking voters? How do you rate their level of accessibility?
  - Question 3: What materials have proven to be the most effective in your communities in assisting Hispanic and Spanish-speaking voters? - Discuss what would constitute “Best Practices” in each of the areas mentioned before.
  - Question 4: What recommendations do you have for research purposes relating to these topics in §241?
- II. HAVA Section 302(a) – Provisional voting
  - If the name of an individual does not appear on the official list of eligible voters at the polling place where he declares to be a registered voter or an election official asserts that the individual is not eligible to vote, such individual shall be permitted to cast a provisional ballot. The section further describes the process by which a voter may cast a provisional ballot.
  - Question 1: What particular concerns do Hispanic and Spanish-speaking voters have in regards to provisional ballots? – Some areas to discuss may be provisional voting process, ballot counting, and accessibility of information regarding how the vote was counted.
  - Question 2: What type of assistance would be most effective in providing guidance for these voters regarding provisional voting? – Identify “Best Practices.”
  - Question 3: What recommendations do you have for research purposes relating to provisional voting?
- III. HAVA Section 302(b) – Voting information requirements
  - Per this section, the following voting information has to be publicly posted at each polling place on the day of each election for Federal office: a sample version of the ballot that will be used for that election; information regarding the date of the election and the hours during which polling places will be open; instructions on how to vote, including how to cast a vote and how to cast a provisional ballot; instructions for mail-in registrants and first-time voters under section 303(b); general information on voting rights under applicable Federal and State laws, including information on the right of a person to cast a provisional ballot and instructions on how to contact the appropriate officials if these rights are alleged to have been violated; and general information on Federal and State laws regarding prohibitions on act of fraud and misrepresentation.
  - Question 1: How many States and/or jurisdictions voluntarily provide all or some of the above voting requirements in Spanish? How accessible are they to Spanish-speaking voters?
  - Question 2: For jurisdictions covered under section 203 and/or section 4 of the VRA, how effectively are the required voting information materials translated and how available are they to voters? What resources do these jurisdictions utilize to ensure the cultural and linguistic appropriateness of the translated materials?
  - Question 3: What materials have proven to be the most effective in your communities? - Identify “Best Practices.”

- Question 4: What recommendations do you have for research purposes relating to voting information requirements per §302(b)?

IV. HAVA Section 303(b) – Requirements for voters who register by mail

- If an individual registers to vote by mail and has not previously voted in an election for Federal office, or the individual has not previously voted in such an election in the jurisdiction and the jurisdiction is located in a State that does not have a computerized list that complies with the requirements of §303(a) the voter will have to submit a copy of an accepted form of identification along with their registration or present the identification in person at the polls on the day of elections. If the person does not have an accepted form of identification when he or she goes to vote at the polls, the individual may cast a provisional ballot. If the person is voting by mail and did not submit identification upon registration the ballot shall be counted as a provisional ballot in accordance with §302(a). Section 303(b) lists the following as forms of identification: current and valid photo identification, current utility bill, bank statement, government check, paycheck, or other government document that shows the name and address of the voter. However, the requirements shall not apply if a voter submits with their registration either a driver's license number or at least the last 4 digits of their social security number and the local election official matches the information with an existing State identification record bearing the same number, name and date of birth as provided in such registration.
- Question 1: How have States expanded the above requirements to require voter identification of all voters when they go to cast a vote in person?
- Question 2: How have voter identification requirements impacted Hispanic and Spanish-speaking voters?
- Question 3: What type of assistance would be most effective in providing guidance for these voters regarding voter identification requirements? – Identify “Best Practices.”
- Question 4: What recommendations do you have for research purposes relating to voter identification requirements?

V. The National Voter Registration Act (NVRA) was passed by Congress in 1993. It was intended to provide more opportunities for all qualified Americans to register to vote in a manner and method convenient to them. Specifically, NVRA creates a single mail-in form that all states must accept; it places requirements for how state deal with registrations for elections; and it calls on designated state agencies, such as motor vehicle agencies, social welfare and handicapped outreach agencies, as well as military recruitment offices to register qualified individuals to vote.

- Translation of Federal Mail-in Form. The Federal Form created by NVRA needs to be provided in English and Spanish. The Federal Elections Commission, as well as the EAC hired translators to adapt the approved English form to Spanish. Complaints have emerged that a literal translation of the English form is not appropriate for readability and usability purposes. In addition to the form itself, the individual state instructions need to be vetted for the same concerns, usability, understanding of election terms in Spanish, and clarity of instructions.
- Question 1: What constitutes a “good translation” or a “legal translation”—word-for-word, or whether the meaning of the requirement expressed is clearly stated?
- Question 2: Have groups encountered “best practices” in translating their materials for Spanish-language audiences?
- Question 3: Are there any rules on adapting English-approved language to Spanish-translation that is translated for usability, not word-for-word?
- Question 4: Do the state offices that receive the mail-in form appropriately contact voters with errors on the Spanish mail-form? (Dedicated Spanish-speaking employees; letters or calls to registrant by Spanish-speaking professional.)
- Question 5: What recommendations do you have for research purposes relating to this registration form?

VI. Section 301(a)(4); Alternative Language Accessibility. This provision of HAVA specifies that the voting systems used in federal elections shall provide the alternative language accessibilities specified in section 203 of the Voting Rights Act. This requires that the covered jurisdiction—hundreds of counties, and three entire states—have access to the Spanish-language capabilities on the voting system.

- Question 1: How are states able to translate the ballot measures on the voting systems? How would a direct translation of the form interact with a readable Spanish-version of the ballot measure—or election instructions on the DRE or optical scan system?
- Question 2: How do localities provide for non-printed language accessibility at the polling place to help them use the voting system (Poll workers, dedicated phone lines with Spanish-language accessibility)?
- Question 3: What resources do local election officials utilize to ensure the language on the voting systems is translated appropriately? – Identify “Best Practices.”

VII. The combination of 301(a)(3) [requiring the voting system—DRE or otherwise—to be at least one-per polling place in 2006] and 301(a)(4) [requiring that at each voting system provides alternative language accessibility] means that at least one machine per polling place has accessibility for minority language individuals.

- Question 1: This means that even in the jurisdictions not covered by Sec. 203 of the Voting Rights Act, there is the capability for a minority language provision on those voting systems. While not required by law, have groups considered working with local election officials to have a Spanish language option included in growing Spanish-language populations?
- Question 2: Have groups done studies to see, aside from the Sec. 203 of the VRA covered territories, the counties where there is an emerging Spanish-speaking population, but no Spanish-translated election materials?

Subject FW: STEM of Democracy Meeting in Chicago

Happy New Year, Adam.

I sent the following e-mail in mid-December regarding the STEM of Democracy meeting that we have planned in Chicago for February 10th. We would very much like to have you and/or Ray attend this meeting. I understand that between the Washington election and the holidays, things may have been pretty hectic for you both.

Can you please check your schedules and let me know if you will be available to attend this meeting? If you would like, I'd be happy to send another e-mail to Ray as a reminder.

I hope you had a great holiday season and I look forward to hearing from you soon. I am hopeful that we will see you and Ray in Chicago.

All the best,

Patti

Dear Commissioner Martinez,

David Burns asked me to extend an invitation to you and Adam to attend a meeting that we are convening in Chicago on February 10, 2005 for the STEM of Democracy project.

020266

This meeting will gather academic leaders and faculty members who are interested in developing the STEM of Democracy idea, testing it out, and developing materials that will assist faculty who want to teach "through" some of the contested issues and continuing challenges in our democratic system "to" learning in STEM fields.

At this meeting, we plan to:

- Explore the STEM of Democracy idea more intensively,
  - Discuss the possibility of a special session at our SENCER Summer Institute 2005,
  - Identify existing courses that feature issues that are related to the STEM of Democracy idea,
- and
- Consider what resources faculty members would need to develop a STEM of Democracy project or course at their institution.

We have already heard from a number of interested parties, including those who were involved in our EAC proposal. We expect this meeting to be a small and informal gathering that will generate thoughtful conversation and robust planning.

I have attached an article from our October e-newsletter that David wrote about this project. I think you'll both enjoy it.

David asked me to convey to you how much we would appreciate your participation in this meeting. He also asked me to send you his warm holiday wishes to you and your families.

Please let me know if you are able to attend the meeting or if you have any questions. I look forward to hearing from you and I wish you happy holidays!

The National Center Needs Your Help in the Development of a New Project: The STEM of Democracy

Wm. David Burns

As I write this, it's just two weeks from November 2, our next national election day. Voting has already begun and serious controversies about voting began even before the voting did.

Our edition of this morning's New York Times offers testimony to this: It carries an article about a legal challenge to New Jersey's electronic (touch-screen) voting machines (the lawsuit questions their accuracy and reliability and calls for verification" or receipts, you could say). A second report details problems with Florida's early voting system. The front page features a photo of President Bush's parents and lots of other people waiting in line to cast their votes in Texas—fully 15 days before November 2.

For me, this image of "early voting" morphed the traditional meaning of "election day" into "election deadline." It stimulated other thoughts about intended and unintended consequences: The goal of increasing voter turnout and participation rates by being attentive to the complexities of modern life and our many competing schedules and commitments argues for these "convenience-enhancing" reforms (and the growing use of "absentee" ballots). But do these reforms have the effect of "privatizing" or atomizing what in the past, at least, was largely a public event? Does this deprive us of one of the few civic events common to people from all walks of life? Will we soon be changing what was private act carried out in public into a private act carried out privately? And if so, does this matter? What role does technology play in all this? How do people's views of technology affect their appraisal of the legitimacy of processes in which the most advanced technologies are employed? How does our view of science and the advances that science has made possible affect our confidence in the quality of "scientific" results?

It makes sense that we'd be thinking about elections and voting as we begin the first national election since 2000. There are many sources for this heightened attention: Public discourse has lately tended to equate widespread voter participation and the capacity to conduct fair elections with democracy, itself. The suggestion is that voting is in some profound way an essential—and to listen to some commentators, nearly a sufficient—indicator that a state has a democratic form of government. Think of the importance being attached to the inauguration of free and direct presidential elections in Afghanistan and the promise of a national legislative election in Iraq in January as markers of the emergence of these states as modern democracies.

We know that having elections is a necessary, but by itself an insufficient, specific indicator of a democratic regime (the former Soviet Union had any number of elections and, to the best of my recollection, none of them were cliffhangers and nobody questioned the ballot designs!)

It is inconceivable to Americans, however, that we could have a democracy without our constitution, our democratic institutions, and elections that genuinely assessed and represented with considerable accuracy the will of the people who participate in them. Elections really do matter in a democratic state; they are not exercises in civic somnambulism.

Suppose that, on November 3rd and in the days that follow, we lack a clear winner in our presidential election and are faced with serious challenges regarding the process and the technologies employed in the complex "system" of voting, as well as serious doubts about the accuracy and legitimacy of the results. Suppose we have a result that, for many, calls into question the tradition of non-direct election of our national leaders. In that event, the need for serious academic attention to these issues will be manifestly evident. We won't need to make a case for curricular attention. Rather, I expect we'll be faced with a demand for such attention.

Suppose that none of the above happens, or at least, none of it happens to an extent that keeps the results in serious doubt. Assume the election goes off without a hitch, most of us are satisfied with its legitimacy, and, for some of us at least, we're even happy with the results. In that eventuality, we'll need other stimuli and other vehicles to encourage students to learn about this dimension of our civic life. One source of encouragement might come from the possibility that the study of democracy and its institutions (including voting) could lead to some real learning in the STEM disciplines.

"What terrific candidates elections and other mechanisms of democratic participation are as complex, contested, capacious civic issues that can be illuminated by what those who know mathematics, statistics, systems engineering and design, computer sciences, and the social sciences can teach!"

SENCER offers an attractive platform in either eventuality. What terrific candidates elections and other mechanisms of democratic participation are as complex, contested, capacious civic issues that can be illuminated by what those who know mathematics, statistics, systems engineering and design, computer sciences, and the social sciences can teach! Regardless of what happens in November, it is more than fair to say that elections have become terrific examples of what June Osborn once called, "multidisciplinary trouble."

We know this to be true because last Summer at Santa Clara a group of about 30 participants in SSI-2004 met to discuss what science, mathematics and public policy could be taught "through" a focus on voting, elections, proportional representation, districting, the conduct of the decennial census, and a host of other elements of our Republic's institutions and forms of governance. The list generated by the group was extensive, wide-ranging and impressive. (We'll be publishing a summary gleaned from the discussions by Richard Keeling in a future e-newsletter.) In that meeting, thanks to Ed Lorenz of Alma College, our group even got to inspect a ballot from Canada—something that led many of us to reflect that we'd never seen a ballot other than the ones we'd used ourselves (and, of course, many of us have voted without a ballot at all, in the traditional sense)! This offered subtle testimony to our parochialism ("doesn't everybody vote they way I do?") and to how lightly and occasionally most of us give any serious thought to these issues.

The conversations in Santa Clara ranged widely, from controversies about source codes and verification, to systems theory, to ideas about "fairness" that emerge from advanced algebra. They touched on a set of semiotic and philosophical questions about what we think voting really means or signifies and why or whether it ought to matter at all.

With this in mind and the encouragement of the participants in that August 8th meeting, we at the SENCER national center are now developing ideas and soliciting interest in what we are calling the "STEM of Democracy Project." What's in a name? In this case, we are saying STEM for at least two reasons: The first, of course, is that, in many important respects as suggested above, the act of voting is the basic "stem"—as in the main trunk of a plant—of democracy. Voting is one of the elemental, functional expressions of one's personal participation in the governance of a state, especially a democratic state. Voting is a stem in the sense that so much else flows from, or grows from, the act of casting a ballot.

In spite of this, up until just recently, voting has failed to get the attention it should in many college programs to encourage "civic engagement" and service learning, often, it seems, because voting is denigrated as purely instrumental ("high school civics") and doesn't qualify as, to use Benjamin Barber's phrase, "strong democracy." This is unfortunate because the downplaying of voting may have itself resulted in decreased voter participation. If it were up to college students with their current <30% participation rates in national elections to "water the stem of democracy," the results would be an even more wilted plant, indeed.

It will be interesting to see what the participation rates will be among college students this year—rates that will reflect, to be sure, both the heightened interest in this year's race, but also a concerted effort to rectify the old denigration of voting, itself. One of many such efforts to increase student participation in the process is the college initiative of the United States Election Assistance Commission, which has awarded modest grants to some 15 institutions to engage college students as poll workers in local election districts. We look forward to having the reports of these efforts.

That's the "stem." The capital S-T-E-M in the STEM of Democracy, as SENCER e-newsletter readers will surely know, refers to a second meaning. In this case STEM refers to the fields of science, technology, engineering and mathematics—all areas of concern for higher education, in general, and the specific areas of focus of the National Science Foundation's work in improving undergraduate education, in particular. We want to highlight the idea of elections as the stem of the democratic process, just as we claim that an academic focus on elections will help organize and improve learning in the STEM fields.

This is, of course, the fundamental SENCER ideal and goal.

We think the right place or locus for this project is where the other SENCER courses and projects are: the classroom and, to the extent that it is feasible, the surrounding community as sites and beneficiaries of community based research.

"Voting is one of the elemental, functional expressions of one's personal participation in the governance of a state, especially a democratic state."

We need your help to develop this idea, gather people interested in testing it out, and create materials that will assist faculty who want to teach "through" some of the contested issues and continuing challenges in our democratic system "to" learning in STEM fields. Here's what we need from you:

First, we need to hear from you if you are currently teaching a course or even part of a course that features issues that we are loosely gathering under the heading STEM of Democracy. Could you contact us, share your syllabus and assessment results, consider nominating your project/course as a model, or at least let us know what you are doing?

Second, we need to know if this idea interests you and if you'd be interested in exploring it more intensively with other scholars via e-mail or, if we can arrange it, at a meeting or two, or in a special session at our SENCER Summer Institute 2005 or other regional meetings or disciplinary gatherings.

"We need your help to develop this idea, gather people interested in testing it out, and create materials that will assist faculty who want to teach "through" some of the contested issues and continuing challenges in our democratic system "to" learning in STEM fields."

Third, we'd like to know what resources you think you would need to consider developing a stem of democracy project or course on your campus. Would a backgrounder that identifies what might be taught and how that teaching would improve learning in mathematics, statistics, engineering and the social sciences be useful to you and your colleagues? Do you have any authors to recommend, resources to call attention to, other suggestions?

Fourth, while we can easily think about how the knowledge residing and being developed in mathematics, statistics, computer science, social science and engineering have great relevance to the issues in democracy (and while Barbara Tewksbury's course model on geology and its relationship to development is suggestive of still other dimensions of this issue), it isn't clear how the canonical elements in biology, chemistry, and physics, to pick three big domains, can be illuminated or taught through the issues raised by elections, voting technology, proportional representation and other issues. But let me be quick to say that I suspect this condition has a lot to do with the failure of my imagination and the limits of my knowledge. So, if you have any suggestions, hunches, or evidence, by all means, please share them with us and we'll share them with others, as well.

Please forward this request to others on your campus and elsewhere who may have an interest and contact me by e-mail (david.burns@sencer.net), telephone (732) 873-1539 or letter (National Center for Science and Civic Engagement, 215 Market St, 4th Floor, Harrisburg, PA 17101.)

We've often said that SENCER seeks to deal with two great trends that appear to be colliding with one another: (1) the alarming decline in the study in the STEM disciplines by American college students, almost none of whom take any more than the most basic required courses (this is true for science and math majors, as well), a condition that is aggravated by the poor retention of science and mathematical knowledge and skills by those who are only minimally exposed to science learning, and (2) the growing number of highly complex and often hotly contested matters of civic concern that are either in some way created by advances in science, engineering, mathematics and technology and/or that require some advanced knowledge in one or more STEM field in order to craft and implement the best possible policies, laws or regulations. Elections and modern possibilities for voting have now become perfect exemplars of the issues covered in the second trend. We in the SENCER National Office and the Center look forward to hearing your thoughts and suggestions on these matters and to working with you to develop the STEM of Democracy Project in the coming year.

Oh, and don't forget to vote on November 2nd, unless you've done so already!

Subject Polworker Institute Update Plus Request for Meeting with Commissioners

Hi Adam! Hope all is well with you.

FYI, here is a letter we sent to The Pollworker Institute board last week. You'll see a mention of possible work with the EAC. (I have not followed up with Karen LD but it's on my "To Do" list!)

Also attached is a letter to Commissioners DeGregorio and Martinez with a request for a meeting regarding a project that the PI is doing for the Pew Charitable Trust. (We'll be sending a hard copy to each Commissioner and to Tom Wilkey but wanted you to see that it is on its way. I'll also be sending an email to Tom re this project.) Pew has contracted Tracy and me to conduct a feasibility study to assess whether initiatives targeting the implementation of statewide voter registration systems could significantly and measurably enhance voter enfranchisement and reduce the registration problems that have plagued U.S. elections. We are interviewing policy makers, election officials, vendors, the advocacy community, etc.

We hope that at least Commissioners Martinez and DeGregorio and Tom Wilkey can find time to meet with us. I know there is little time to spare in between Hearings!

"Dear Pollworker Institute Board of Directors and Board of Advisors,

- UPDATE ON THE POLLWORKER INSTITUTE -

1) New Friends and Old Friends. First, the new friends.....We are fortunate to be adding Richard Soudriette, Warren Furutani and Connie Schmidt to our Advisory Board.

Richard Soudriette has served as the President of the International Foundation for Election Systems (IFES) since 1987. IFES is an internationally respected nonpartisan, nonprofit organization that has developed and implemented comprehensive, collaborative democracy solutions in more than 100 countries. One of IFES's many strengths is its extensive experience in the capacity building and professional development of election officials around the world.

Warren Furutani is President of the Los Angeles Community College system and is a long time advocate of community colleges, voter-friendly polling places and, in particular, college pollworker programs. He has been instrumental in the growth of L.A. County's College Pollworker Program partnership with the community college system.

Connie Schmidt recently retired as Registrar of Voters in Johnson County Kansas where she developed nationally respected voter service programs and voting system integrity standards. She has a particular commitment to and enthusiasm for innovative pollworker recruiting and training. Connie has already spoken with Johnson County's new Registrar and is confident we can count on them to be a pilot program.

*And old friends.....*We are proud to announce that one of our founding Board members, Tom Wilkey, has been selected to serve as the first Executive Director of the U.S. Election Assistance Commission. While we are THRILLED for Tom, we understand his decision to resign from the Board of the Pollworker Institute. We wish him all the best in his new venture!!

2) We've landed our first project! The Pollworker Institute's Jennifer and Tracy are currently conducting a feasibility study for the Pew Charitable Trusts. The purpose of the study is to assess whether initiatives targeting the implementation of statewide voter registration systems could significantly and measurably enhance voter enfranchisement and reduce the registration problems that have plagued U.S. elections. The result will be an internal Pew document so sorry we won't be able to share it with you all .....but what a great experience for us!

3) New Collaboration. We formalized a Memorandum of Understanding with the International Foundation for Election Systems (IFES) this week. IFES will provide in-kind contributions such as office space, phones, copy machine, website design, etc. We are grateful to be affiliated with such a terrific organization. Being on-site means we will also be able to easily brainstorm and collaborate on possible U.S. election administration projects with IFES' Director of Programs, Scott Lansell, staff and consultants. Our new address is: The Pollworker Institute, 1101 15th Street, Suite 115, Washington, DC 20005. Phone will be: (202) 350-6700, (Tracy x 6671 and Jennifer x6672).

4) New partners. We have a new partner in Iowa. Professor David Redlawsk from the University of Iowa is very excited about the possibility of working with us. Professor Redlawsk is a political psychologist whose primary line of research focuses on how citizens process political information in order to make a voting decision. He has been offering students academic credit for substantive community service so is an experienced resource for us. He has offered to approach the Johnson County Auditor, Tom Slockett, to encourage him to join the program. We'll keep you posted.

5) Funding and Update on Pilot Projects. Fiorello Consulting has been representing us as fundraising consultants since May. Cliff Hash and Patti Fiorello are optimistic about the possibility for funding in the near future. However, since we have not received funding to date, we are going to re-adjust our hope to conduct pilot programs this Fall. But stay tuned....we still hope to implement 5 or 6 terrific pilot programs in the Spring of 2006! And in the meantime, we have been granted our 501(c)(3) status by the IRS so we're ready for whenever the funds come rolling in.

6) Possible project with US Election Assistance Commission. Tracy and I met in May with the EAC regarding a possible College Pollworker Project which would involve developing a "How To" manual for organizing a College Pollworker Program. It would include calendars, check lists, models - for large and small jurisdictions. The project may include delivering such a manual at regional conferences which would involve brainstorming among election officials and reps from academic institutions and some possible training the trainers. We anticipate an RFP hitting the streets any day now. Again, we'll keep you posted!

7) A new twist on the Concept. We are discussing collaboration with the American Association of University Professors. General Secretary Roger Bowen has received a small Carnegie grant to explore the possibility of a program to recruit college professors to serve as pollworkers. The best of all worlds would be to merge their idea with ours.....the professors would invited students to "do like I do" and serve along with them as part of the academic course.

8) Possible International Work. In an unexpected turn of events, an international for-profit democracy building firm called "Democracy International" was intrigued by our concept and requested permission to list the Pollworker Institute as a partner/resource for a 5 year USAID "IQC" (Indefinite Quantity Contract) for international democracy building programs. We always thought that we would someday like to get in to pollworker issues at international levels but did not know it would happen this soon. We'll keep you posted. It may be some time before Democracy International knows if it has been selected as an IQC holder.

Please call us if you have any questions or suggestions!

Dear Commissioner DeGregorio :

As the deadline for implementing significant changes in voter registration looms, state and local election officials, as well as the voting rights community, have turned their attention to this critical component of the Help America Vote Act. Changing voter registration means opportunities both to expand the electorate and remedy problems that have plagued our registration system. The Pew Charitable Trusts has hired The Pollworker Institute to conduct a feasibility study to explore possible initiatives that would take advantage of these opportunities. I am writing to request a meeting to discuss this project and the U.S. Election Assistance Commission's plans in this area.

I am enclosing a summary of our project for your review. We have been meeting with state and local election officials, with technology experts, with voting rights organizations and with policy experts to examine the ways that the Pew Charitable Trusts might be helpful. Of course, in addition to learning the Commission's plans, we would welcome your feedback on what kinds of initiatives can help guarantee that HAVA fulfills the law's intended purpose: to ensure that every eligible voter is able to cast a vote and have that vote count.

We would be grateful if you could take the time to meet with us. I will follow up with your office to determine your availability.

Dear Ms. Coney:

This letter is in response to your Freedom of Information Act (FOIA) request received by the U. S. Election Assistance Commission (EAC) on May 10, 2005. The request was clarified in a May 20, 2005 phone conversation as memorialized in a letter sent to you on that same day. Your clarified request sought certain records from "March 23, 2004 to the present," including:

- Any and all transcripts, meeting minutes or similar documents memorializing the Technical Guidelines Development Committee (TGDC) meetings or hearings which are in the possession of the EAC and not publicly available on the NIST web site.
- Any and all EAC documents or communications regarding the selection or appointment of members of the TGDC.
- All Public Financial Disclosure Forms (OGE Form 278) filed by members of the TGDC.
- The recommended Voluntary Voting Systems Guidelines presented to the EAC by the TGDC.

With regard to your request for transcripts, minutes and similar documents not found on the NIST web site, the EAC has no records responsive to the request. All available minutes, transcripts and digital recordings of TGDC meetings and hearings are maintained by NIST on the web at www.vote.nist.gov.

In response to your request for documents or communications regarding the selection or appointment of TGDC members, all responsive documents have been attached (Attach. 3). A few of these documents contain redactions required by FOIA Exemption 6 (5 U.S.C. §552(b)(6)), to protect personal information and avoid unwarranted invasions of personal privacy. Generally, the redacted information included personal identifiers and contact information (i.e. home addresses and phone numbers).

As for your request for Public Financial Disclosure Forms (SF 278) filed by members of the TGDC, this information may be released under Section 105 of the Ethics in Government Act of 1978 (and 5 C.F.R. §2634.603). The law requires that prior to the release of Public Financial Disclosure Forms the requestor affirm his or her understanding of the limited use of the forms. I have attached OGE Form 201 (Attach. 4). You may use this form to meet the above requirements. The form should be sent to NIST, as the only member of the TGDC presently required to file a SF 278 is a NIST employee, Dr. Hratch Semerjian. As such, NIST is the custodian of this record.

Finally, in response to your request for the Voluntary Voting Systems Guidelines presented to the EAC by the TGDC, a copy of this document is attached (computer disk). (Attach. 5).

The EAC has decided to waive the processing fees for your request. If you interpret any portion of this response as an adverse action, you may appeal it to the Election Assistance Commission. Your appeal must be in writing and sent to the address noted on the above letterhead. Any appeal submitted, must be postmarked no later than 60 calendar days from the date of this letter. Please include your reasons for reconsideration and attach a copy of this letter.

RE: FOIA Request

Dear Ms. Coney:

Per our telephone discussion this afternoon, this letter serves to memorialize the clarifications made by EPIC regarding its Freedom of Information Act request. At a teleconference meeting between the EAC and EPIC, you were kind enough to clarify your May 10, 2005 FOIA request. Specifically, you noted that the request is limited to the following documents:

- Any and all transcripts, meeting minutes or similar documents memorializing the Technical Guidelines Development Committee (TGDC) meetings or hearings which are in the possession of the EAC and not publicly available on the NIST web site.
- Any and all EAC documents or communications regarding the selection or appointment of members of the TGDC.
- All Public Financial Disclosure Forms (OGE Form 278) filed by members of the TGDC.
- The recommended Voluntary Voting Systems Guidelines presented to the EAC by the TGDC.

I believe the above accurately reflects our conversation this morning. If you believe I have missed some element of the conversation, please let me know. I can be reached at (202)566-1392. Thank you for your assistance in this matter. You will hear from us regarding this request soon.

Sincerely,

Gavin S. Gilmour

RE: Freedom of Information Act Request

Dear Commissioner DeGregorio,

This letter constitutes a request under the Freedom of Information Act ("FOIA"), 5 U.S.C. § 552, and is submitted on behalf of the Electronic Privacy Information Center (EPIC).

We are seeking all agency records concerning the Technical Guidelines Development Committee (TGDC) from March 23, 2004 to the present (including but not limited to electronic records) including records regarding appointments to the TGDC, disclosure statements by members of the TGDC, meetings, hearings, and work of the TGDC related to voting technology standards. Please, also provide all printed meeting and hearing transcripts for the TGDC.

For purposes of FOIA fee assessments, we request that EPIC be placed in the category of "news media" requester. The U.S. District Court for the District of Columbia has determined that EPIC qualifies for "news media," fee status, EPIC v. Department of Defense, 241 F.Supp.2d 5 (D.D.C. 2003). We also request a waiver of all processing fees, as release of this information will contribute significantly to the public's understanding of the activities and operation of the government.

Thank you for your consideration of this FOIA request. As the FOIA regulations provide, I look forward to your response within 20 working days. Should you require additional information, please contact me at 202-483-1140 x 111 or by e-mail at coney@epic.org.

Sincerely,

Lillie Coney

Subject meeting ASAP

Craig,

As I may have discussed with you, the EAC would like to announce at its March 23rd first public meeting the formation of the Technical Guidelines Development Committee (TGDC) and, possibly, when their first meeting will be held. The formation of this committee will put into motion a timetable to develop and approve the voluntary standards outlined in HAVA. We would like to discuss with NIST what HAVA requires the TGDC to do--and what we can do realistically what the funds we may or may not have. We can also work on a strategy whereby we put the things we cannot do in FY04 into our (or your) FY05 budget request.

There has been some confusion in recent days over what monies NIST does or does not have available for this purpose. Today, Penelope Bonsall of my staff was told by Dr. Zevin that there was only $350,000 to work with for FY04--and that very little progress with standards could be made with it. In addition, Dr. Zevin's presentation at NASS and NASED has confused some people because they didn't quite understand that when Susan included 7 pages of "what could be done in the next six months" in her presentation, some folks thought that is what NIST will do in 2004. I understood it to be the NIST wish list and was not sure what portion will come under the TGDC umbrella. In addition to all of this, we have been reviewing the Human Factors report developed by NIST and have some questions. We would like to release this report at our March 23 meeting. We would like for representatives of NIST to be at our public meeting to discuss the TGDC and Human Factors report.

Therefore, I would like to propose that the following folks meet ASAP (Monday or Tuesday of next week; March 8 or 9) to talk about these issues.

Paul DeGregorio, EAC
Penelope Bonsall, EAC
Craig Burkhardt, DOC
Dr. Zevin, NIST
Allan Eustis, NIST

I think it might be best if the NIST folks heard from you to set this meeting up. Can you (or your designee) call Penelope Bonsall at 202-694-1097 with a time and place (we are flexible) for a meeting on Monday or Tuesday?

The agenda could be as follows:

- 1) TGDC: expectations on who will be appointed; what is it they must/can do in FY04 and FY05. What is the TGDC timetable?
- 2) Human Factors report
- 3) Dr. Zevin's "what could be done in the next 6 months";
- 4) Funding issues for all of this. Can we get money from DOD?

I am on travel on Friday, March 5 but can be reached on my federal cell phone which is 202-360-2146

Thanks for your help and attention to this important matter.

Subject Rush Holt Suggested Nominees to TGDC

Paul-

Along with the NIST voting team, I reviewed the names and biographies submitted by Congressman Holt's Office for nomination to the four "open" positions on the Technical Guidelines Development Committee. Avi Rubin, Barbara Simons and Michael Alvarez are all extremely qualified for the TGDC. In fact, during our deliberations, the NIST voting team considered each of these individuals for inclusion on our final list. However, there were important reasons for choosing the individuals we did. Rather than criticize these fine nominees, any of whom would bring expertise to the TGDC, I will list the criteria for NIST's final selection of nominees:

1. Technical Competence in Standards Development Processes,
2. Open Minded and Unbiased View points. No pre-set agendas,
3. Global view of security and usability issues related to voting systems and voting equipment
4. Unique "lifetime/career" experiences and expertise not available from other appointed TGDC members

I would also note that like Michael Alvarez, NIST nominee Ron Rivest was also a co-author of the Cal tech/MIT report. We at NIST stand by our nominees as the strongest candidates to meet our strict criteria for inclusion on the TGDC.

I hope this description of our TGDC nominee evaluation process will assist the EAC in the selection of the four "open" positions. We will shortly provide you with a "final four" list from the original list of six individuals. We have broadened our selection to include women who were on our original list.

I will send you some talking points for the March 23rd EAC meeting tomorrow morning. I am a bit swamped today having just returned from leave.

Susan-

I have forwarded your e-mail on to the Election Assistance Commission. IEEE will still likely receive a formal letter requesting a nominee, but your response is quite helpful and will speed the process of spinning up the TGDC.

Dear Allan:

Judy Gorman referred me your email query about a formal nomination of the IEEE representative to the Technical Guidelines Development (TGD) Committee of the Election Assistance Commission (EAC).

I spoke with Donald Heirman, IEEE Standards Association President Elect and IEEE-SA Board of Governors (IEEE-SA BoG) Liaison to Standards Coordinating Committee 38 (SCC38), which is the group within IEEE working on voting standards. Don asked that I write to let you know that last year, the IEEE-SA BoG named Stephen H. Berger as its choice to represent IEEE on the TGD Committee. Stephen is a member of the IEEE-SA Standards Board and Chair of SCC 38.

I hope that this email answers your questions. I would be glad to provide further information or assistance, if needed.

Anne Caldas has held the position of Director of Procedures and Standards Administration at the American National Standards Institute (ANSI) for more than eight years. In this capacity, she is the primary staff support for the work of three of the primary committees that implement the American National Standards process: the ANSI Executive Standards Council (ExSC), the ANSI Board of Standards Review (BSR) and the ANSI Appeals Board. The related program areas for which she is responsible include the accreditation and audit of standards developers (of which there are about 200), the accreditation of US Technical Advisory Groups (TAGs) to International Standards Organization (ISO), the approval of standards as American National Standards (ANS) (approximately 10,000 ANS exist) and the implementation of a multi-level appeals process. Prior to her current position, she worked for twelve years at the Human Resources Administration of the City of New York, serving in a final capacity as Director of Procedures and Analysis for the Office of Employment Services. She holds a Masters Degree in public policy.

Biography

Whitney Quesenbery is the director of the UPA Voting and Usability Project, a role she took on when she joined the board just days after the 2000 US Presidential election. This project has focused on the human side of the voting experience, and has worked to raise awareness of the need for usability and user-centered design in voting systems as with all technology. Whitney was on the advisory council for the FEC project on human factors in voting systems. A discussion group brings together usability advocates and researchers from around the world. Information is available on the UPA web site -- www.usabilityprofessionals.org

In her 'civilian' life, Whitney Quesenbery is a user interface designer, design process consultant, and highly regarded speaker. She is an expert in developing new concepts that achieve the goal of meeting business, user, and technology needs. She has extensive user interface design experience and has produced award winning multimedia products, user interfaces, web sites, and software applications.

She is the owner and principal consultant for Whitney Interactive Design, LLC (www.WQusability.com) where she continues the work begun during her dozen years at Cognetics Corporation. Whitney's projects ranged from online financial news retrieval to hospital management software, web applications, and corporate information tools for companies such as the TriZetto Group, FDA, Open University, Armstrong, Novartis, Deloitte Consulting, Dow Jones, McGraw-Hill, Siemens, Hewlett-Packard, and Eli Lilly.

Whitney is active in the user experience community as a member of the Board of Directors for the Usability Professionals' Association (UPA) and the past-manager of the Society for Technical Communication (STC) Special Interest Group on Usability.

ALICE P. MILLER

Alice P. Miller was appointed Executive Director by the Board of Elections and Ethics in July 1996, while serving as the General Counsel for the agency. Uniquely, she served in the dual capacity and was able to sustain the major operations of the Board during two major elections: the City Council Primary and Presidential election cycles. This required maintaining and promoting the Board's mission from both a legal and administrative perspective. Since her appointment as the permanent Executive Director in 1997, progress at the agency to date has included:

- modifying the training component of the pollworker unit to include professionally produced training videos that are used to supplement the in-house hands on training, and testing of election day workers; the video ultimately minimizes the costs for outside trainers, and ensures that all assigned election day workers receive uniform information about election day processes and procedures;
- reorganization of agency operations, including combining the data processing unit to function in conjunction with the registration processing component of the agency, thereby resulting in direct supervision and minimizing functions of the systems management branch;
- upgrading and enhancement of the 20 year old voter registration and ballot tabulation system to an optical scanning operation that will add ease to the voting process, reduce election day support requirements, and centralized daily in-house operations;
- implementing for the first time ever a major comparison of the local voter roll with contiguous jurisdictions and instituting procedures for making referrals of obvious violators to the Office of the United States Attorney for investigation and possible convictions;
- maintenance of the voter roll by implementing a data exchange program with other District government agencies to track individuals that may have failed to notify the Board of a change of address or residency; checking voter registration information by utilizing the National Change of Address Program (NCOA) and the National Social Security Death List;
- improvement of customer service through the development of the Board's website; the continued development of the website has evolved from an initial posting of twenty-five pages in 1997 to a current posting of 1100 pages, providing information, documents and features required in any first class "Election Website"; and the website maintains a design that allows for easy navigation and is accessible to all Internet users, regardless of their expertise or the sophistication of their equipment;

- developing thorough, comprehensive, and goal-oriented annual performance plans for fiscal year operations prior to budget approval;
- installation of signa-scan or "digital signatures" as a technology upgrade to in-house operations; the module of signa-scan, a signature verification and retrieval system, is designed to decrease the time required for verifying signatures on petitions and absentee ballots, while increasing the overall accuracy of the process.

Since Ms. Miller's tenure, the agency has made significant advancements with management and administrative control through the effective use of technology, orderly planning and procedures, development of comprehensive agency annual performance plans, and continued trouble-free elections. Public confidence in the District's election system has continued to rise and increases in voter participation in the overall process has been noted.

Professional Appointments:

Previous Employment

From 1988 to 1997, Ms. Miller served as the senior staff attorney and later the General Counsel for the D.C. Board of Election and Ethics. As the chief legal officer for the Board of Elections and Ethics, she was responsible for representing the Board in all court proceedings on matters related to the elections process and challenges thereto. In addition, she drafted and prepared for final adoption all regulations governing the election process in the District of Columbia.

Significantly, for a period of approximately eighteen month, Ms. Miller performed both the duties associated with the offices of the General Counsel and that of the Executive Director of the Board of Elections. Most importantly, the timing of this appointment of dual responsibilities came at the onset on the Council Primary and Presidential elections. Both major elections were successful and the total operations of the agency commenced without incident. The Presidential Election was eventful in that some residents of the local Georgetown area challenged the right of student voters. That challenge resulted in ongoing contentious litigation which resulted in the Board's position of allowing students access to the franchise being continuously upheld.

Ms. Miller also worked for a brief period with the Council of the District of Columbia. She has also worked as a law clerk and later associate attorney for the law firm of Jack H. Olender and Associates, P.C..

EDUCATION

Ms. Miller received her law degree from Northeastern University. She received her B.A. degree from Boston College, graduating cum laude from the College of Arts and Sciences Honors Program.

Paul-

My apologies for the mis-statement. Patrick Gannon is indeed one of the approved TGDC at large members. In my attached e-mail, I meant to print Don Norman for exclusion from the TGDC bios file and for some reason typed Patrick Gannon .

Don Norman is not one of the TGDC members, Patrick Gannon is. (Norman was one of the original seven approved and vetted "at large" candidates bios originally transmitted to the EAC. We narrowed the selection to four and included Whitney Quesenbery.)

Bottom line, the TGDC voted on the correct at-large members listed in the EAC_TGDC file dated June 8, 2004. Norman's name appears only in the EAC_BIOs file.

Again, my apologies.

Allan,

I am really confused now. Are you saying that Patrick Gannon is NOT Dr. Bement's pick for the TGDC? His name and the bio we are using was with Bement's letter of April 27, 2004 which transmitted his 4 recommendations to the TGDC.

Please advise ASAP as the commission voted today to approve all members of the TGDC.

Paul-

Per my voice mail, I am listing the corrected addresses for Whitney Quesenbery and Patrick Gannon below. The file you sent with their addresses contained erroneous title lines. Also, the bio file contains a bio for Patrick Gannon who I am fairly sure is not one of the TGDC members on whom you will be voting. You will want to delete his bio.

Subject TGDC deadlines

The EAC will announce the members of the TGDC on Thursday, June 17.

I want to remind everyone that with the first meeting set for July 9, we need to do the following:

- 1) Get out a "save the date" e-mail to the members ASAP so they can hold their calendars for the July 9 meeting (and arrive in DC the night before). Diane Savoy is to do this by COB on June 16.
- 2) No later than Friday, June 18, we need to mail and fax a formal letter out from the Chairman to the members of the TGDC of their appointment and with meeting details, including information on how to make plane/hotel reservations and file any reports they are required to. John Vergelli is doing the draft, with input from Eustis, Burkhardt and Greene.
- 3) We need to file the Charter of the TGDC with the proper committees by next Monday. John Vergelli is working on this.
- 4) Federal Register notice must be published no later than June 24 (and the FR has to be notified that it is coming). Allan Eustis is responsible for this.
- 5) The agenda for July 9 has been drafted. I am circulating it with my fellow commissioners to make sure they are OK with it.

I am assuming that once the TGDC is up and running that NIST will handle all of the administrative functions, and coordinate with the EAC as to meeting dates and the agenda.

What am I missing?

Subject draft letter to TGDC appointees

Greetings all:

Attached is the latest draft of the letter that is to be sent to the members of the TGDC ASAP. Please review and get your comments to Diane Savoy, who will facilitate getting these letters out. Perhaps Adam can assemble the attachments. I've attached a list of the members (taken from our shared drive).

John--do we need a separate version for those appointees who will not have to file the same disclosure documents as the 6 you identified (the four scientist plus the ANSI and IEEE representatives)? Please note that I asked them to submit the forms to you.

Craig--since Alan Eustis is out until Monday, you'll need to sign off on this letter (he gave us Mary Floyd's contact information; I assume she knows this).

Adam- Please go to the following file on the shared drive to find the list of members in excel and word. Please note that the word file lists two phone numbers for each person, but does not indicate which one is the fax (you can go to the excel file to confirm which one is). Please note which number is the fax number on the word file, which is the document you should send as an attachment: I:\CLEARINGHOUSE\Help America Vote Act\Boards and Committees\TGDC

Good morning,

For the recipients of the letter who are not financial disclosure filers, the third full paragraph (beginning "Before you begin ...") should be deleted.

Having the filers send the forms to me is fine.

Subject draft letter to TGDC appointees

Greetings all:

Attached is the latest draft of the letter that is to be sent to the members of the TGDC ASAP. Please review and get your comments to Diane Savoy, who will facilitate getting these letters out. Perhaps Adam can assemble the attachments. I've attached a list of the members (taken from our shared drive).

John--do we need a separate version for those appointees who will not have to file the same disclosure documents as the 6 you identified (the four scientist plus the ANSI and IEEE representatives)? Please note that I asked them to submit the forms to you.

Craig--since Alan Eustis is out until Monday, you'll need to sign off on this letter (he gave us Mary Floyd's contact information; I assume she knows this).

Adam- Please go to the following file on the shared drive to find the list of members in excel and word. Please note that the word file lists two phone numbers for each person, but does not indicate which one is the fax (you can go to the excel file to confirm which one is). Please note which number is the fax number on the word file, which is the document you should send as an attachment: I:\CLEARINGHOUSE\Help America Vote Act\Boards and Committees\TGDC

Thanks for your help.

Subject: letter to TGDC members

Joan,

Attached is a draft of the letter that is to go to the TGDC members notifying them of the first meeting on July 9. Please show it to the Chairman so that he can see it before we send him 15 letters to sign, in case he has changes to make. Please note that there will be two versions: 6 of the 15 members will receive a letter with the 3rd paragraph shown in the attached version (financial disclosure requirement). When you have a final version, please send it to Joyce, with a cc to me, Diane, Adam and John. Joyce will facilitate merging the letters and getting them out the door.

We need to get this done ASAP. Thanks.

Dear <Name>

On behalf of my colleagues on the Election Assistance Commission (EAC) and of the Director of the National Institute of Standards and Technology (NIST), let me take this opportunity to welcome you and thank you for agreeing to become a member of the Technical Guidelines Development Committee (TGDC). This letter contains important information about your service on the TGDC and plans for the first meeting.

The EAC looks forward to working with you to meet the requirements of the Help America Vote Act (HAVA) by assisting in the development of voluntary voting system guidelines. Your appointment as a member of the TGDC will begin as of the date of this letter. We have included with this letter a list of all members of the TGDC so that you can become familiar with your colleagues on this crucial committee. Also attached is a copy of the portion of HAVA that governs the work of the Committee.

Before you begin your important work with the TGDC, please be aware that the Federal Advisory Committee Act (FACA) Pub. L. 92-463, 5 U.S.C. App.1, and Federal ethics laws require that you complete the attached SF-450 financial disclosure document. This document is mandated for individuals appointed to the TGDC as general experts or otherwise unofficial representatives of the appointing authority. Please complete this form by July 2, 2004 and return it to John Vergelli at the address listed at the top of this page. This form can also be accessed on-line by going to the U.S. General Services Administration web site (www.gsa.gov) and typing "SF450" in the search box at the top right-hand side of the page. Timely submission of this form will ensure that you are able to fully participate in all actions of the TGDC. Please be assured that your information will be kept in the strictest confidence according to Federal statute.

The inaugural meeting of the TGDC will be held on July 9, 2004, in Washington, D.C. at the offices of the EAC, 1225 New York Ave, NW, Suite 1100. Under HAVA, the National Institute for Standards and Technology will serve as the Secretariat for the TGDC. Accordingly, NIST will pay roundtrip airfare, hotel, per diem and local transportation expenses for you as prescribed in the Federal Government Travel Regulations. We ask that you make your travel arrangements by calling Mary Floyd at NIST at 301-975-4612. A block of rooms has been reserved at the Washington Marriott Metro Center, which is located less than two blocks from the EAC. Ms. Floyd will handle your reservations once you confirm your attendance.

The July 9th meeting will begin at 9:00 am and will continue until approximately 3:00 pm. We are planning a very tight agenda as there is a lot that we must accomplish at this first meeting. Your participation for the entire time is very important to us. We will mail and fax the meeting agenda and other materials to you the week of June 28, 2004.

Should you have any questions, please contact Mr. Allan Eustis, Project Leader, NIST Voting Systems Standards, at 301-975-5099. We look forward to seeing you on July 9th.

Sincerely,

DeForest B. Soaries, Jr.

Dear Mr. Berger:

On behalf of Dr. Arden L. Bement, Jr., and the Information Technology Laboratory at the National Institute of Standards and Technology (NIST), I welcome the opportunity to work with you as a member of the Technical Guidelines Development Committee (TGDC). The Help America Vote Act (HAVA) of 2002 sets out an ambitious nine-month task for us to meet. I will serve as the Committee's Secretariat. Please feel free to contact me with any issues at any time.

I am including some information on our work at NIST in this package. Early next week, I will send you an agenda for our upcoming July 9, 2004 meeting as well as a straw man procedural roadmap for the TGDC. My assistant, Mary Floyd, is making final arrangements for your travel and hotel accommodations at the Marriott Metro Center Hotel, approximately two blocks from the Election Assistance Commission (EAC) Headquarters, 1225 New York Avenue, where the TGDC will meet on July 9, 2004. The Hotel, located at 775 12th Street NW, is a twenty-minute taxi ride from National Airport. We are planning a get acquainted dinner at the Metro Grille in the hotel at 7 pm on July 8, 2004. I hope you will arrive in time to attend and meet Dr. Bement, Director of NIST and chair of the TGDC.

We will begin our committee work on July 9th at 9 a.m. and end at 3 p.m. I look forward to working with you on accomplishing the tasks outlined for us in HAVA.

Craig,

I have taken a look at the statute and charter for some guidance on this issue. It appears that ANSI (whoever is the proper person to make the appointment) should notify TGDC through Dr. Semerjian and EAC that they wish to replace Ms. Caldas with Mr. Karmol including the effective date of the appointment. Not having the historical knowledge that you do, I am not sure that Ms. Caldas is the right person to be communicating on behalf of ANSI. Is she the appointing authority for ANSI? If so, then we can accept a letter or communication from her as the tool to make the change. If not, we need a communication from the appropriate person.

At the least, I suggest I have my people do the basic background vetting, which takes 3 days. Perhaps we should have Caldas send a formal message of resignation to Hratch to trigger the event. Doing so will not negatively impact TGDC operations, as Ms. Caldas was abstaining on all votes anyway. How do you think we should proceed? Regards, Craig

Dear Craig and Allan -

In follow-up to my E-mail below and in light of Craig's confirmation at the last TGDC meeting that David Karmol may replace me as ANSI's representative on the TGDC, I wondered if official confirmation is forthcoming or needed? In addition, as David will serve as the ANSI representative going forward, his name should replace mine for E-mail and hard copy distributions.

I appreciate your efforts and thank you both for your professionalism and hard work in connection with this project.

If I can ever be of assistance to you in the future, please do not hesitate to contact me.

Juliet:

We will have the vetting done on David Karmol (the ANSI replacement) on Tuesday next week. I can arrange for Semerjian to agree to the appointment immediately thereafter, and then it is just a matter for you to get assent from the EAC and issue the invitation. We can also have Hratch make the invitation, if the EAC prefers.

I know you are busy, but the EAC needs to determine if it wants to replace Ms. Turner-Bouie in advance of the April meeting. She is ill with cancer, and has asked for a "leave". Unfortunately, there is no flexibility for someone to vote or meaningfully participate in her place during the meeting, so I suggest that we replace her with the understanding that the replacement will resign and she will be reappointed when she wants to return. This is one of the slots the EAC picked from its advisory board, so NIST will agree to your replacement. We can vet this person very quickly, if you wish.

Subject Replacement of TGDC member

This morning, moments before the TGDC meeting was to begin, I was approached by David Karmol, who indicated that he was the replacement for Anne Caldas, who resigned as the American National Standards Institute (ANSI) representative on the TGDC about two months ago. Mr. Karmol said that the letter from ANSI to the EAC/NIST appointing him as the replacement for Ms. Caldas was sent concurrently with Ms. Caldas resignation. I do recall seeing a copy of the resignation and replacement letters.

Needless to say Mr. Karmol was very upset that his paperwork was not processed in a timely manner so that he could participate in this very important meeting of the TGDC. He pressed me on the status of his paperwork and I could not give him an answer because I had no idea.

It was an embarrassing incident. As the Federal Officer for the TGDC I should have been kept in the loop and should have had an adequate answer for Mr. Karmol.

Mr. Karmol's paperwork should have been processed in an expedited manner so that he could have participated in this meeting. The fact that it was not shows that there is a serious communications and process breakdown somewhere that must be fixed. I should have been kept better informed by staff on this important manner and will insist that they do so in the future.

Subject ANSI TGDC appointment

Dear Julie and Gavin:

I started today downtown and retrieved the appointment and resignation documents. They were refaxed to Gavin at his request just a few moments ago. My records show that Juliet and I telephoned and e-mailed about this in March before her vacation, during which I agreed to get the resignation/appointment letters, and perform a "basic" ethics vetting. I faxed the letters on March 29, and the vetting was completed on April 5. I communicated successful passage of the vetting and Semerjian's assent to the appointment during phone conversations with Juliet, Carol and Gavin later that week, and early the week of April 11. I also spoke with Carol about the Turner-Bouie matter, and she related the EAC would not seek to replace her at this time.

On April 12, I spoke very briefly with with Caldas and Karmol, and informed them to contact Carol if there were any questions regarding when the EAC would act to issue an appointment letter. When EAC is ready to act, all it needs to do is issue the same appointment letter used during the original round of appointments. I don't have copies of those letters, but I recall they were very summary in nature.

Gavin mentioned wanting to see a resume on Karmol in his voice mail to me this morning. Consistent with our agreement that EAC recommends and reviews the organization-specific members and NIST recommends and reviews the at-large members, NIST neither requested nor reviewed any such documents on Karmol. The basic ethics vetting only picks up ethical difficulties from our database and personnel review.

Let me know if you have any questions. I am going back out to the hearing now, so call my cell if you have a priority question. Otherwise, I'll be in the office tomorrow.

Finest Regards,
Craig

Carol,

Regarding the e-mail below.

I have some questions regarding his recollection. I obviously can't speak to anything that occurred regarding this matter before last week, However, I do know that neither Julie nor myself were involved in a group call on the 11th.

Such issues aside...

I have only spoken to the man once (alone), on or about the 12-13th of April. Per my notes, I wanted four things from him. (1) a Resume or other info on qualifications, (2) Letter from ANSI, (3) Letter from Nist (which he noted may be in a casual form like an e-mail) and (4) an Example appointment letter (if he could find one).

I have not received the above information as of yesterday.

As for the information he faxed today, it contains only two NIST letters (1 resignation letter and 1 appointment letter). In my opinion it is missing the most important part, a letter from NIST approving the candidates. HAVA requires that the candidates be approved by both NIST and EAC. We cannot issue the candidate a final appointment letter unless we have documentation that he is NIST approved. Perhaps we may hold that the various conversations and the e-mails below constitute such confirmation. I leave that matter to you. Finally, I would note that if NIST will provide no background info on the applicant, how are we to send this matter to a tally vote (and how did they approve the person)? We would be asking the Commissioners to approve an individual for the board based solely on a three sentence ANSI representation letter.

Dear Julie and Gavin:

I started today downtown and retrieved the appointment and resignation documents. They were refaxed to Gavin at his request just a few moments ago. My records show that Juliet and I telephoned and e-mailed about this in March before her vacation, during which I agreed to get the resignation/appointment letters, and perform a "basic" ethics vetting. I faxed the letters on March 29, and the vetting was completed on April 5. I communicated successful passage of the vetting and Semerjian's assent to the appointment during phone conversations with Juliet, Carol and Gavin later that week, and early the week of April 11. I also spoke with Carol about the Turner-Bouie matter, and she related the EAC would not seek to replace her at this time.

On April 12, I spoke very briefly with with Caldas and Karmol, and informed them to contact Carol if there were any questions regarding when the EAC would act to issue an appointment letter. When EAC is ready to act, all it needs to do is issue the same appointment letter used during the original round of appointments. I don't have copies of those letters, but I recall they were very summary in nature.

Gavin mentioned wanting to see a resume on Karmol in his voice mail to me this morning. Consistent with our agreement that EAC recommends and reviews the organization-specific members and NIST recommends and reviews the at-large members, NIST neither requested nor reviewed any such documents on Karmol. The basic ethics vetting only picks up ethical difficulties from our database and personnel review.

Let me know if you have any questions. I am going back out to the hearing now, so call my cell if you have a priority question. Otherwise, I'll be in the office tomorrow.

Finest Regards,
Craig

Dear Juliet:

This is to reconfirm that Dr. Semerjian has agreed to the appointment of Mr. Karmol to represent ANSI on the TGDC. The Department of Commerce previously determined that there are no pending or significant matters between the Department and Mr. Karmol, and ethics personnel have determined that there is no reason why Mr. Karmol should not be considered for the position.

Dear Mr. Gilmour:

Attached is my bio. Beyond what is listed in the bio, I have been a candidate for public office in five elections, three of which I won. I was an elected member of the Ohio General Assembly for two terms, and was a candidate in Virginia for Commonwealths Attorney for Fairfax County in 1995.

As this request for my appointment was submitted almost a month ago, it is indeed unfortunate that this request for my resume was not made to me at that time. I was told by Mr. Burkhardt at NIST that no NIST approval was required, so it may be a good idea for you to speak to him, to determine what the requirements are. I recognize the position is relatively new, but I would appreciate this request being expedited at this time.

As I do not seem to have Mr. Burkhardt's e-mail, I am copying Mr. Eustis, who I trust will share this note with Craig.

Non Election Officials Break Out Meeting April 4, 2006

Election Day Survey Comments

- Definitions
  - o State codes differ in ballots are counted
    - For example
      - absentee and early voting ballots may be consolidated at the counting site but the survey asks for the count of each type separate, there is an issue of aggregation of the data to answer the survey
  - o EAC can offer states guidance on uniformity of terms to ensure comparability of survey questions answers
- EAC can create uniform terms or use 50 different survey instruments (tailored to each state)
- There should be an effort on asking for information that has already been collected from election administrators.
- EAC should gather information already available to cut down on survey length.
  - o For example
    - The survey asked how many votes were cast for President, House and Senate. This information is generally already available.
  - o Issue if relying on existing data: Credibility
    - Suggested solution: compare the collected results to the previously published information.
    - EAC has used the previously available information to fill in survey blanks.
- What is the purpose of the data?
  - o State by state comparison?
  - o Discovering national trends, then need to aggregate the data.
- Survey Form
  - o Template that assists the states in filling out the form
  - o Web based survey that corrects in real time.
    - Issue
      - How survey filler will deal with questions that they do not have sufficient data to answer the question
      - Are the elections officials comfortable with a web based survey?
      - Will the elections officials know that they can save and return to the web survey (do not have to fill it all out at once)
- EAC should require tallying software in dbs format instead of print format
- EAC should focus data collection on states have trouble getting data, auto pilot the states that regularly submit complete data.
- Timing of sending the survey
  - o If near election day the election administrator is overwhelmed.
  - o If the election administrator has advance notice of the questions they may start collecting the information that they normally would not collect.

020428

- On many topics the administrator may have had the information at some point. Do not want to lose the information if they do not regularly keep the information
- Show the administrator how this information will help them, ie. with redistricting, to encourage participation
- Problems with questions as asked
  - Questions not applicable to some states
    - Some states used the choice of n/a while other used zero
    - Hard to determine if 0 is an answer or a n/a answer
  - Provisional voting, other issues (ie. has same day voter registration) made the questions difficult to answer
  - Roughly worded questions people interpret differently.
    - voting units – LA County said it had 200
  - Broken counters – how truthful and accurate will the election official be in answering this question?
  - Get rid of election systems failure questions because states did not answer them.
  - Question 15 b. how is this data going to be used
  - Questions on polling place accessibility
    - Some states treated 19 and 20 as the same questions, treating polling place and precincts as interchangeable terms
    - Question 21,
      - wording confusing,
      - Part A break out curbside voting
      - Should be a separate survey
- Additional questions for survey
  - Types of voting equipment by mode of voting
  - Poll workers
    - break the questions out by early voting and super centers
    - how many worked on election day
    - how many worked during early voting
    - how many were dedicated to problem voters, non problem voters
  - How many polling places did not open on time?
  - How many people work in the election offices?
- Recommendations
  - Don't assume that things that appear obvious are without merit
  - Test the survey before sending it out.
  - Customize the survey to the state while maintaining uniformity, questions that don't apply should not be asked of a state
  - Pre-design survey to the states
  - For the 2006 survey:
    - Focus on the most important information and not go for everything
    - Take the assumptions out
    - Is the target audience state election officials?

020429

- Yes. Send the survey to the state and allow them to send it to the county if they want and think the county can handle it.
          - Send out the information to be collected and build the web survey at a later date.
          - Build a web based survey (with ease and speed), pretesting not required
          - EAC can use the required public comment time as a form of pretest
  - Automated survey – allows the respondent to break the answer down by voting system or other factor where the state has more than one answer to the question.
  - If information from the local election official is required EAC might have to ask on election night to get the accurate information.
  - How likely is some of the information to change; ask background questions as “has there been a change”
  - Help states set a standard at the precinct level for how the information is reported.
  - Use the standards board
- Who is the audience?
  - Data Users: “Number crunchers” who want the precinct level data.
  - Survey Respondents: One survey for state and local, but different audience
    - Segment what the state is required to submit from the information the local election office need to submit
    - Currently the state is in charge of gathering the information from the locals
    - How much authority does the state have to compel a local office to supply the information?
- What is the EAC relationship with the information that the census bureau collects?
  - No formal relationship
  - Census might be able to help in filling in the holes in the data
- How do you deal with localities that do not follow the law?

UOCAVA

- Third survey of three to go the states. The second of two survey’s to request county level information. States spent their “good will” getting the election day survey information from the local officials.
- Problems
  - Number of ballots sent to potential voters is not an accurate question
  - No one knows how many Americans of voting age are living overseas. Should the EAC commission a study on the topic? Without information cannot figure out participation rate.
  - Overseas versus military no longer clear
- Additional Questions on:
  - Number of ballots not returned, a high number – why? Is there a problem:
    - Voter received the ballot late

- Ballot lost before voter received it
    - Lost after voter returned it the state
    - Mail delay
  - Federal Post Card Absentee's requests
  - Innovations – faxing, internet, e-mail
    - NASED?? Website contains this information, are the states sick of answering these questions over and over?
- Difference between EAC and FVAP survey
  - FVAP
    - Sample of voters
    - Run by Gallop
    - Samples of election officials
- Can the EAC combine the UOCAVA survey with the election day survey?
  - Some questions are required to answered and some are discretionary
  - Web based survey might be easier to combine

NVRA

- Public Assistance Agency Data
  - Need more useful information
  - A separate form (unlike DMV), so wide spread lack of implementation
- Additional Questions
  - How many people were supposed to get a registration form from a public assistance agency?
    - Even if do not want to answer the question is educational.
    - State agency may not be aware it was supposed to provide the voter registration forms.
  - Track the decantation form from public assistance agency
- Some state public assistance agencies collect information on their voter registration activities.
  - Can EAC survey these agencies?
  - The individual data is private but not the aggregate data
- Problem s
  - Voter registration forms are not available in the state assistance agencies.
  - Survey is very long
  - Too many open ended questions, do not lead to comparability between the states.
- Can the statewide voter registration list track the data on the performance measurements, performance, and performance metrics?
- Put the questions mandated by law first.

Would like all the survey available in electronic form with a fips code so can merge all the results into one database.

Notes for Meeting Election Officials

NVRA;

Problems;

Problems for Election Officials

- “politically loaded”
- collecting info that is required by law.
- questions from political parties

Questions 51 to 56;

- asking new questions...

41, 43, 44, 45, 46, (all new)

How does state answer for all counties? Each county is different.

If there is no State policy, than answers will vary.

Q 46 – “Doesn’t tell you anything” – I am not sure why we asked that question.
-answer does not matter.

Could you send survey to Chief Election Official? They might know all of these answers.

Q 47 – There is only one answer that should be given

Q 48 – Needs to be removed

Q 50 – Needs to be removed
2nd part – “database” – The question is important

The terminology needs to be more user-friendly. Sixth grade reading level.

FL – the FDLE was bad b/c it only had charges not convictions. That is reason for problems, flawed data.

This is not their responsibility

Problems with DMV database.

Huge turnover with ST election officials since last training.

A lot of resistance from heads of DMV – not wanting to include voter registration. Going backward

We need cooperation between social services and DMV.

Q 51 – What is purpose of the question?
There is not one since NVRA

Q “Serial #'s” – It is interesting. Not sure if it is useful

Q 54 – needs to be removed

These are things legislatures have been working on for the last 3 years to get rid of

Q 55 – Need to define “public”. Is it for sale or just available?

Social security numbers on voter registration

-we mark out the social security, the reporter holds the paper to the light and retrieves the social security #.

Q 56 – Not critical

Q 42 – Not necessary

Q 18 & 19 – You will get duplicates through social services.

Send us information through email about any concerns about the questions

Q 24 What do you gain from this question?

This seems to be a carry-over question

Q 26 This seems to be the direction we are heading. Cross checking.

At least 3 or 4 laboratories are doing it.

We have vested interest – we have to report it somehow

Double voting – fraudulent registration (FL)

Q 1 & 2 – Can we define “active” and “inactive”?

There will be a glossary.

The questions are still valid but are not understood by all States.

Election Day Survey

Any questions related to voting systems will not be asked.

Recommendation; Start the survey at state level and distribute it electronically and have it submitted electronically

-Put it on EAC website and give State's pin number

-Potential for error with keying in information. Need to be able to electronically transfer info.

-States reformatted survey into their own terms and sent it out to jurisdictions.

-Need to hone down what it is you really want to know. You will get more data.

Survey Questions;

-From terminology –

- Q 2 number of ballots counted by state
- Do you understand question
  - No.
  - What do you want to know?
  - The first part is for the State, the second is for the jurisdictions.
- Why are you asking the about the ballots counted ahead of how many ballots are cast?
- Did you want to change the order?
- Blank ballots, provisional ballots cast – not counted
- We counted ballots not voters.
  - You can see how the confusion
  - We want # of ballots counted by state and jurisdiction.
  - What is the difference between voters, ballots, etc...
  - does this include issued ballots.
  - You have cast, issued, counted
  - We have 2 ballot cards, A and B
  - Absentee ballots do not send back one of the ballots.
  - One ballot is two cards.
  - Do you count what you get back?
  - The highest number.
  - We get back different numbers for Ballots A and B
  - It looks like the question is trying to cover the whole spectrum.
  - When you send out an absentee ballot and you do not get a response back.
  - We need to bring this up with the people downstairs.
  - How can we improve this
  - We need to clarify
  - I still am not sure how to ask the questions so that everyone will understand.
  - In DC we would not count absentee ballots if they are turned in late
  - What should we be tracking?
  - How many were counted, rejected,
  - Issued, Cast, Counted
  - Let's do what we think is the right thing to do and then ask the States to comply.
  - States only wants to know how many votes and how many provisional ballots.
  - The local should keep detailed election records for verification purposes.
  - We want to know how many people go to the polling place to vote, rejected
- ballots do not always count.
- We need to track every vote but maybe not show them in the results (ex.
- Rejected ballots)
- How many people asked for a ballot and got a ballot, including absentee.
  - Will we include a question on issuing?

The media is interested by number of ballots issued and counted.

Public wants to know, Did we help America vote?

A complication, FPCA ballots. They will just show up.

The only time you should get that is if there is a dispute.

In 2000, the lawyers tried to stop these ballots but they were from valid voters.

Poll Worker Questions

These questions seemed to be confusing

- There is a huge range between different polling centers.
- Simplify by not asking for both State and local.
- Is there a correlation between rural and urban jurisdictions.

Proposed Questions;

Where you able to recruit the amount of poll workers you needed?

How many poll workers did not show up on election day?

We are just trying to fill the slots.

The political parties may not come through with their promised poll workers. So, election officials must scramble to get people.

How do you answer Q 11? – There are few incidents of over votes, in Texas it still happens. You cannot measure it effectively.

The voter cannot be held responsible. Blank votes are more commons – it might be a statement not an issue of confusion.

If you train poll workers to count votes, they will not count or keep a record of over votes/ blank ballots.

It seems that counting all of these things would be a part of auditing process.

A recount by hand will yield different results, optical votes may not count a vote that a person would because of voter intent.

I do not think that we will ask for over vote.

What have we not asked???

If it means undermining job security, do not ask it. You this as a guide. People will not tell on themselves.

Q 13 & 14 – do not worry about these questions.

Q 41B – It is either county of sub-county level.

Q 21C – we will not ask

Q 21B – Is that true? Yes

We do want to know that the State's polling places are accessible. Wheel-chair accessible is an old definition. Need to clarify.

We will think about it/

Are you trying to get to compliance with these questions?

The potential format is an issue.
I like the format, it is easy.

Eliminate the paper, send it electronically. We are thinking about getting the survey online.

You will not ever stop revising this survey. Even if corrections do not make the 2006 revision, use them for 2008.

We will give you specific time at NASED.
Only one survey. About 1 hour
In addition to voting system standards

If revisions are made, will they apply to this year's survey?
We will remove question, and use info for long term revision.

The thought of a clearinghouse for academia – Connecting info from academic and info from election officials.
Concerns form local – is this a legit group (survey)
If we can encourage people interested in this type of information to work through EAC.

Handout of current research projects current and future.

ND is proud to not have voter registration; Election Day Survey lists voter registration #'s for ND. (Brace saying that ND has 100 % registration) – This does not apply to ND

FEC did a good job representing this lack of data

Diff between citizen voting age pop and voting age pop.

Ultimately the way this data is reported is unfavorable to ND

EAC should not participate in this

UCAVA

This is a sample not a census. Required by Congress.
Are the citizens getting what they need from election officials?

Based on HAVA –

Q 6 and 8
Why did the vote not count-signature? – If so, this is an education issue.

020436

This can be used to formulate solutions.

Everyone received survey before election, so that the areas will know what to keep records of

Sampling – different for larger states – Michigan

We would like for the two survey instruments to complement each other.

We (EAC) are required by law to ask how many votes are cast and counted. Response rates are low. If we need to cut the survey down to the basics than it should be a consideration.

The UCAVA survey is simple and straightforward.

The EAC and UCAVA should be using same language

Three separate survey instruments are too many.

Some jurisdictions are only counting FPCA's.

FVAP does mention FPCA.

If you have people in active duty, they will get ballots for two elections regardless of their current status. There is no required way to get a person's military status.

We need EAC help to explain the difficulty in getting this information.

This will become more difficult because of increasing mobility of armed forces.

It is important for election officials to track voters, through mailings. New addresses, military status.

I hope we can support getting FVAP back into electronic initiative. – UCAVA is required to create standards

Internet is ideal for UCAVA, but not for widespread internet voting.

Secure internet voting possible

HAVA 703 – every election cycle requirements UCAVA

There are barriers to data collections. Does this make it difficult

It is possible to report these numbers

Did not separate absentee voters from UCAVA voters

The law is saying that the States are required to give information.

020437

- Barriers; How do the States separate absentee voters from UCAVA reports.
EAC got resistance from States.
- This was not a question that was ever required before. The other States cannot be faulted, it was not an issue to most States.
  - EAC must educate States so that the new requirement is known.
  - In most states you cannot tell an absentee vote from an absentee vote.

Meeting Part 2

Overview of meeting downstairs

- Started with EDS, UOCAVA, then NVRA
- Kim Brace – detailed problems with EAC and data

EDS

- Problematic categories
  - Voting equipment
  - Accessibility
- Could the EAC take a sample? Pretest? (In order to test the instrument) Who is the primary audience? (State election official?)
- Who should be asked to complete the survey.
- Who are the results for? Is it the same as who is completing survey?
- Web-based application of survey.

UOCAVA

- Difficulties in definition of voters
- EAC is mandated to do UOCAVA survey
- Learn more about problems/challenges of identifying UOCAVA voter
- Can EAC gain a better understanding of process that other agencies use to offer voter registration

NVRA

- Too long
- Can it be reduced to a check-off list.

Overview Election Officials

Accessibility, Voting equipment (information will be obtained elsewhere), NVRA can be shortened and simplified, UOCAVA – most problematic, limit questions that are required by HAVA.

Generally the conclusions seem to be the same except for sampling suggestion.

TECHNICAL PROPOSAL

1. PROVIDE A PROPOSED PROJECT WORK PLAN THAT DESCRIBES HOW THE CONTRACTOR WILL ACCOMPLISH EACH OF THE PROJECT TASKS, INCLUDING A PERT OR GANTT CHART INDICATING MAJOR ACTIVITIES AND MILESTONES. ASSUME A PROJECT START DATE OF SEPTEMBER 20, 2005. DISCUSS EACH TASK IN THE STATEMENT OF WORK.

The project work plan is outlined in the Excel chart in Attachment A. The work plan enumerates the major activities proposed to accomplish tasks specified by the Statement of Work over a 15-month period, from September 20, 2005, the project's start date, to December 31, 2006, the deadline for the final project report. The matrix in Attachment B shows the number of hours that have been allocated for the proposed activities to each member of the project team. The section details how the IFES-PI team will approach the required tasks: conducting a series of focus groups, developing an extensive manual, implementing pilot programs using strategies and materials from the manual, providing recommendations for revisions to the manual and for future activities to benefit efforts to recruit, train, and retain pollworkers. The discussion of the work plan concludes with summaries of the work experience of senior members of the proposed project team.

Project milestones are the deadlines for delivery of the following items:

Summary of State requirements (4.5)	January 6, 2006
Summary of Focus Groups (4.7)	February 3, 2006
Outline of Manual (4.8)	February 24, 2006
First draft of Manual (4.8)	April 14, 2006
Version 1.0 of Manual (4.8)	June 1, 2006
Written Reports of Pilot Programs (4.9)	As agreed with COR
Draft project report and recommendations	December 4, 2006
Final project report and recommendations	December 31, 2006

Discussion of Specific Tasks

The discussion of specific tasks begins with Task 4.4 and includes a description of each task outlined in the RFP's Statement of Work and how the IFES-PI team proposes to accomplish each task.

Task 4.4 – Develop a Project Working Group

Task 4.4 requires the Contractor to develop a working group composed of 5 individuals considered experts in the fields of elections, training, education, or possess other experience deemed relevant that would assist in the administration of the project. To accomplish this task, the IFES-PI team proposes to form a Working Group composed of five members, including the following:

- An experienced state election administrator who has demonstrated a commitment to innovative pollworker recruiting and training development programs. Recommendation:

- An experienced local election administrator with a demonstrated a commitment to innovative recruiting and training programs. Two recommendations are: [REDACTED]
- An adult learning expert. Recommendation: professional trainer for the American Red Cross or trainer for the new U.S. Department of Homeland Security.
- A representative from a public interest organization dedicated to protecting the rights of voters with limited English proficiency, e.g., the Mexican American Legal Defense Fund (MALDEF), National Association of Latino Elected Officials (NALEO) or voters with disabilities, e.g., The Access Board, the American Association of People with Disabilities or Paralyzed Veterans of America.
- An experienced researcher in the area of elections. Recommendations: [REDACTED]

The Working Group will be asked to undertake the following:

- assist in identifying current research on State requirements relevant to pollworker programs; identifying best practices for pollworker recruitment, retention and training; encourage colleagues to respond to requests for information, particularly responding to a survey that will be developed to gather models and samples.
- review summary of best practices from jurisdictions already implementing innovative or cost-saving programs and make recommendations for how to effectively share these practices in the manual
- assist in designing questions for the focus group discussions
- advise on the outline of the manual and review the final draft of the manual
- review the results of the pilot programs
- review the final report to the EAC

The Working Group will meet three times, initially in Washington, D.C., and, subsequently, at other locations around the country, preferably in conjunction with another event such as an EAC hearing or project focus group. Each meeting is scheduled to last a day. In addition, and to minimize costs, a monthly telephone conference will be conducted to brief members and solicit their feedback. Documents, including reports requiring the Working Groups review and comment such as drafts of the manual, will be submitted electronically. Members will be encouraged to return comments electronically as well.

Additional Pro Bono Advisors. Additionally, the IFES-PI team will benefit from the extensive pro bono contributions from the Pollworker Institute Board of Directors and Board of Advisors.

The Pollworker Institute Board of Directors includes:

- Beverly Kaufman, County Clerk, Harris County, Texas
- Conny B. McCormack, Los Angeles County Registrar-Recorder/County Clerk

- o Leonard Shambon, a D.C.-based attorney who served as counsel to congressional sponsors of the Help America Vote Act and to the Ford-Carter and Carter-Baker National Election Reform Commissions

Task 4.5 – Research State requirements for pollworkers and poll assistants

Task 4.5 requires the Contractor to review available information and where, necessary, conduct research on state requirements for pollworkers and poll assistants.

Task 4.5 and Task 4.6 both require the Contractor to solicit and compile information relevant to poll-worker programs, including state laws and regulations as well as local policies and practices. Because the IFES-PI team sees these two research tasks as linked, we will be using one survey instrument (described below) to accomplish both tasks.

Taken together, the results of these two research tasks will form the beginning of a data collection effort long overdue. The IFES-PI team believes that better and more accessible information about how election officials run this vital part of the election system will be invaluable as we take steps to enlarge and enhance the pool of available pollworkers.

To complete this task, the IFES-PI team will undertake the following:

- research existing information and research on State requirements for pollworkers, such as data compiled by Electionline.org and the National Council on State Legislators
- develop a web-based survey to verify the research results
- disseminate the survey; collect and compile responses from state and local election officials
- provide a written summary of the requirements and an analysis of how these requirements such as requiring political parties to nominate pollworkers or requiring that the pollworker live within the precinct can affect pollworker programs
- provide a 50-state chart containing all laws and regulations pertinent to pollworker management

The IFES-PI team intends to build on already available data such as the state-by-state pollworker requirements compiled by Electionline.org and information available from the National Association of Secretaries of State (NASS). The team will also draw from the data collected through the 2004 Election Day Survey.

Use of web-based survey. The IFES-PI team plans to develop and institute a web-based survey collection tool so that individual jurisdictions can directly enter information on the subject of this proposal. First proposed to the EAC by team member Election Data Services in their recommendations for improvements to the Election Day Survey, the survey tool will save on data entry costs associated with other paper based surveys. In addition, this will allow for immediate and on-going tallying of responses for summary reporting.

The survey instrument would be designed so that a county or jurisdiction would log in with an ID and password that would be e-mailed to them ahead of time. This ensures that only the authorized jurisdiction contact is providing valid information, and will prevent hackers from contaminating the results. This also means that the survey could be rolled out to just certain selected jurisdictions or could be opened up to allow all jurisdictions in a state to fill in their information.

The adoption of this structure allows any Census data to be joined to the instrument, or any other data that is tied to the Federal ID. All of the data already compiled from the Election Day, the National Voter Registration Act (NVRA) and the UOCAVA surveys would also be joinable to the survey if needed or when desired.

Once a jurisdiction's representative has logged into the web-based survey we envision them being presented with some basic information about their jurisdiction, i.e., the county name, the contact information we have in the file. The representative would be able to correct and update any of the information and generate a change record for the system. The representative would then move to the survey section on pollworker recruitment, training and retention as described below under Task 4.6.

The web-based survey instrument could be used for other areas of interest to the EAC, and even other projects seeking information from local jurisdictions. We envision a representative could complete part of a survey and then come back the next day to finish the information. Each time they enter the instrument they would see all the data they have already filled out. Because this concept is interchangeable, it is incorporated in other proposals that Election Data Services is a team member.

To ensure a sufficient response rate to the survey, we will enlist the team's extensive network of contacts, as well as the Election Center and The Pollworker Institute's Board of Directors, in an effort to encourage states to respond. We believe that the EAC's Advisory Board could also be a helpful partner in encouraging election officials to respond to the survey.

Task 4.6 – Review existing resources on pollworker recruitment and training
Task 4.6 is vitally important to the success of the overall program.

The decentralization of our elections makes the systematic compilation of information about both "best practices" and standard practices extremely difficult. By compiling information and materials on pollworker programs – management tools, recruitment materials, performance assessments, the EAC will provide an invaluable service to election officials. The compilation and analysis of these programs and materials will provide an important first step in the development of models that can be tested in the 2006 elections.

While it is important to gather State-level data on pollworker requirements, in reality there is great variation across multiple jurisdictions. States do make macro policy decisions on the overall conduct of elections, however, micro-level policy decisions with respect to pollworker recruitment, training, and retention are largely left to counties and in many cases municipalities. Ideally, data collection efforts will encompass these multiple levels of election policy and operation.

With more than 3,000 counties across the nation, and tens of thousands of cities, such an undertaking is obviously beyond the scope of this project. That said, this proposal suggests preliminary steps in an effort to obtain this important information. Therefore, we propose identifying 100 to 150 counties across the nation and gathering detailed information about the county, about the county's pollworker program and about the county's pollworkers. These counties would be selected on the basis of factors that lead to the accumulation of a representative sample.

In general, the IFES-PI team will undertake the following:

- review published pollworker recruitment, retention and training “best practices”
- reach out to the team’s network of contacts in the elections community to solicit additional pollworker program models
- review existing and ongoing research on pollworker issues
- survey state and local election officials and other stakeholders on current practices and methods to recruit, train and keep pollworkers
- identify 100 – 150 counties that can serve as a representative sample; conduct follow-on interviews to collect additional information
- gather and compile materials such as marketing materials, recruitment plans, RFP’s for outsourcing recruitment and training, timelines, and evaluations or reports
- analyze the programs using the methodology described below to identify successful strategies and potential pitfalls
- produce a written summary highlighting successful program components and problem areas

Best practices. Although the term “best practices” is frequently used, little systematic research has been conducted to measure the effectiveness of specific practices or methods in the area of pollworker recruitment, training and retention. Election officials and other stakeholders have relied primarily on experience and anecdotal evidence when deciding what to include in “best practices” guides. The follow-on interviews to survey respondents, the focus groups (Task 4.7 ) and the pilot programs (Task 4.9) present an opportunity to gather data about specific practices to enable a more accurate evaluation.

That being said, the IFES-PI team will collect best practices, such as the EAC’s “Best Practices in Administration, Management and Security in Voting Systems: A Toolkit for Election Administrators and Stakeholders” and information and materials collected for the Election Center’s Professional Practices program. The team will also make use of the comprehensive Administration and Cost of Elections (ACE) Project, developed by IFES in cooperation with the International Institute for Democracy and Electoral Assistance (IDEA) and the United Nations Department of Economic and Social Affairs (UNDESA). ACE is an ongoing project to create a globally accessible repository of information and materials on election practices, including pollworker programs.

The IFES-PI Team will solicit information and materials from counties who responded to the survey. In this effort, the team will seek out, in particular, materials targeted to working with bilingual pollworkers, such as Los Angeles County’s “Pollworker Connections” manual developed by Jennifer Collins-Foley; materials designed for working with pollworkers with disabilities, such as North Carolina’s video presentation; and materials designed for election officials who are implementing new voting systems, such as “Introducing a New Voting Systems from a Local Election Official’s Perspective,” developed by Connie Schmidt.

Survey on standard local practices. In addition, the IFES-PI team will review the results of the survey carried out in Task 4.5 to gain information on standard practices. We will conduct follow-on interviews with both election officials and pollworkers to gather the following information:

- description of the jurisdiction – size; demographic make-up; rural, urban or mixed

- number of pollworkers needed; number who serve; number recruited through specialty recruitment efforts, e.g., corporate partnerships or college recruitment
- demographic make-up of the pollworkers?
- technological capacity of the election official – does the election official use its web-site to recruit pollworkers, for example?
- use of intermediary organizations, such as a corporations, county government, schools or community organization, to assist in recruitment; how was the recruiting accomplished within the sponsoring entity? Did the election official or sponsoring organization attempt to gauge the motivation of the pollworkers to serve?
- use of computer-based voting technology in pollworker management; use of computer-based technology to monitor the success of the pollworkers in assimilating the new technology and related procedures?
- requirements, if any, to provide written and oral assistance to limited-English proficiency voters
- who trains the pollworkers?
- what training methods are used? Were adult learning methodologies employed in the training?
- Post-election activities, e.g., assessment of pollworker program, soliciting feedback from the pollworker, post-election communication with the pollworkers

Materials collected will include:

- sample marketing materials, including materials in electronic formats such as radio PSAs, television PSAs, web-based communications
- sample training materials, such as orientation materials, training manuals, Election Day job guides and checklists, toolkits, web-based training modules
- sample pollworker communications, such as newsletters, notices, letters of appreciation, evaluation forms
- pollworker management materials, such as timelines, workplans, checklists, database spreadsheets

Research. The IFES-PI team will review existing research on pollworker programs, including, where available, reports and audits, such as the report issued by the Miami-Dade County Inspector General on the conduct of the 2002 election. The team will also make an effort to catalogue ongoing research, such as the extensive survey of pollworkers being conducted in by Professor Thad Hall at the University of Utah.

Task 4.7 – Conduct Focus Groups

Task 4.7 requires the Contractor to conduct focus groups consisting of election officials, pollworkers, representatives of community-based organizations, corporate leaders who are active in encouraging employees to serve as election workers and any other relevant groups such as service clubs or charities.

The IFES-PI team will partner with the League of Women Voters Education Fund (LWVEF) to conduct a series of focus groups in five jurisdictions across the nation. The purpose of these sessions will be to identify successful strategies to use in the recruitment, training and retention of poll workers and to identify “potential pitfalls when replicating and adapting” these strategies in other localities.

In planning and conducting the focus groups, the LWVEF will:

- finalize locations for focus groups
- create discussion guides for each focus (preliminary discussion formats are provided below)
- partner with election officials and appropriate local Leagues of Women Voters and other civic organizations to recruit focus group participants
- coordinate and conduct a total of 20 focus groups in five locations across the country
- draft report summarizing results of focus groups

Focus group sites. Locations will be chosen to reflect a range in jurisdiction size, geographic location, and demographic composition, as well as a range in current poll worker recruitment and training practices and election administration practices. Possible locations for focus groups include sites in California, Georgia, Kansas, Minnesota, Pennsylvania, South Carolina and Texas

In order to identify successful recruitment, training and retention strategies, it will be necessary to obtain the views of three clusters of stakeholders: election practitioners or workforce; members of the public, that is, potential poll workers; and those intermediary groups in a position to facilitate the participation of potential poll workers—employers, non election related government officials and school administrators. Representatives from each of these three clusters will therefore be engaged in the focus groups. Focus groups will also reflect as much diversity as possible in terms of ethnicity, gender, language, age and national origin.

The LWVEF plans a total of five to eight focus groups. Each will address recruitment, training and retention issues, but to varying degrees, depending on which cluster composes the focus group. Questions will be tailored to fit the particular cluster.

The three clusters can be broken down as follows:

Members of the Public

- High school students
- Members of the public who speak English as a second language (ESL)
- Members of the public with disabilities
- Representatives of community-based organizations, including service clubs and charities

Intermediaries

- School administrators
- Local government officials that do not typically have a role in elections, such as the Department of Motor Vehicles
- Corporate leaders who are active in encouraging employees to serve as poll workers

Elections Workforce

- Poll workers
- State and local election officials
- Full time poll worker recruitment and training staff
- Temporary poll worker recruitment and training staff
- Poll worker recruiters from political parties

Focus group recruitment. The League will be responsible for focus group participant recruitment, including ensuring the necessary diversity of participants. The League's network of members and leaders in the selected focus group communities will be utilized in order to identify focus group participants from each cluster. In addition, the League's national coalition partners, such as Mexican American Legal Defense Fund, National Coalition of Black Civic Participation, American Association of People Disabilities and the Asian American Legal Defense and Education Fund, will assist the League in identifying participants to ensure a diverse pool of participants.

Focus Group topics: recruitment. Focus group questions about recruitment will explore the different types of messages that have been or would be successful at engaging different audiences in becoming poll workers, and how these messages can be tailored to specific audiences (e.g.: students, ESL, disabled). This line of questioning is aimed at developing a greater understanding of the public's knowledge gaps and barriers to involvement, and what motivating language might be used to help them overcome these barriers.

Focus group questions posed to members of the public will explore such issues as: what is the individual's understanding of being a poll worker; what challenges do they perceive to participating as a poll worker; what incentives might make participating as a poll worker attractive; what are their feelings towards mandatory vs. voluntary training; what messages might serve as a motivating call to action; how do they feel about the amount of time required of poll workers for training and on Election Day; and what other factors, such as participation in civic organizations, are indicators of likely participation. Questions will also explore citizens' attitudes and experiences with voting; their knowledge about electoral processes and being a poll worker; and the likelihood of their participating as a poll worker having been a part of the focus group process.

Focus group questions posed to election practitioners will probe their perspective on the questions above, as well as: do they currently have enough poll workers to meet their needs, including language assistance; what their current practices are for recruiting poll workers; which of their current practices seem to work the best and what are the demographics of their current poll workers; what type of media do they use (print, radio, TV, Internet, word-of-mouth) to recruit; how many times do they advertise; do they vary their methods for primary vs. general elections; the impact of allowing poll workers to "split-shifts"; the impact of election administration issues, such as early voting; and do they target certain demographics (e.g. multi-lingual citizens).

Among other things, focus group questions posed to the intermediaries will examine the possibilities of building poll worker service into student government activities or volunteer requirements; strategies for cross-training non-election related government employees for poll worker service; and incorporating poll worker service opportunities into corporate social responsibility/community service programs. Additional focus group questions will examine motivation or incentives for these intermediaries to participate.

Focus group topics: retention. Focus group questions about retention are intended to develop a greater knowledge of current retention practices used by election officials in various localities and to gauge the attitudes of current poll workers about both their service and intentions to serve.

Focus group questions posed to current poll workers about retention issues in particular will examine such matters as: whether they intend to serve as poll workers again; what they think worked well and where they see a need for improvement; and what factors affect whether they feel they want to serve again. Focus group questions posed to the other segments of the election workforce – state and election officials – will explore such issues as: what tools are used to communicate with poll workers after Election Day; the extent to which there is communications in between elections; and what type of communication would they like to receive.

Focus group questions posed to intermediaries and members of the public about retention issues will examine such things as what practices they expect a retention strategy to include and how these strategies can be built into the networks already in place (e.g. community groups, corporate activities and student-based organizations and activities).

Focus group topics: training. Focus group questions about training are intended to gain a better understanding of the range of training practices currently used in various localities, gather information about which methods work best and learn more about the needs of poll workers.

Focus group questions posed to current poll workers about training issues in particular will solicit feedback about: the type(s) of training they received (e.g. hands-on, Internet, video, role-playing etc); how many hours of training they received and was it a single or multi-day training; was training a one-type fits all for new and returning poll workers; how many times was training offered; was there compensation for training and does it make a difference in their decision to attend; and recommendations for strengthening training.

Focus group questions posed to the other segments of the election workforce (aka state and election officials, etc) will examine similar issues as well as: the current training protocols, including length of training, requirements for participation and compensation; qualifications of trainers; are trainers permanent or temporary staff and what are the costs and benefits of this; are their different training materials and/or sessions for new vs. returning poll workers or bilingual poll workers; and certification of poll workers.

Focus group questions posed to members of the public who are potential poll workers will explore such matters as what form of training they might prefer (e.g.: in-class, video for home use, role-playing, etc.) and issues similar to those as mentioned above.

Focus group questions posed to intermediaries about training issues will examine such things as the amount of time off that employers and school administrators would be willing to allow their employees for training and using corporate and/or school facilities for training.

Focus Group Results. All focus group results will be summarized; their implications for the project outcomes will also be analyzed. These results will then stand ready to inform the recommendations and materials for poll worker recruitment, retention and training that are developed in the next phase of the project and tested in the project's pilot phase.

Task 4.8 – Develop and produce a “How to” Manual

Task 4.8 requires the Contractor to develop a manual that will be available to all interested parties that will describe best practices in the field of pollworker and poll assistant recruiting, training and retention. The contractor is also required to design the manual so that it will supplement established recruitment and training programs as well as serve as a "how to" guide for new programs.

A word on the IFES-PI approach to the manual: too often instructional guides require too much reading on the part of the user – who, in this instance, is likely to be an over-committed election official. Where possible, therefore, we will reduce the amount of narrative text, opting instead for a manual that offers a wealth of sample materials and models easily adapted by diverse users.

In creating this manual the IFES-PI team will follow the steps outlined below:

- conduct a two-day meeting of team members to review materials and information collected, review the focus group reports, draft a manual outline and develop a workplan
- submit manual outline to the Working Group and the EAC
- develop criteria for selection of materials to be included in the manual
- design a user-friendly template for each section
- draft and edit the manual (detailed below)
- develop compendium of resource materials
- submit draft manual the Project Working Group and the EAC Standards Board and the EAC Advisory Board prior to final production

Planning meeting. The IFES-PI team will bring the Working Group and IFES-PI team together for a one-two day work session in mid-January 2006 to begin to develop the manual. The session will include:

- discussion of goals and purpose of the manual, and the universe of potential users
- discussion and review and assess the summary of state requirements and the summary of existing resources and materials, including best practices, with regard to their application to the manual
- discussion and review of focus group reports
- development of criteria for including materials or model practices in the manual
- drafting the manual outline

In order to reduce travel costs, this Working Group meeting will be held if possible before or after the Joint Election Officials Legislative Committee annual meeting in Washington, DC, when many of the Working Group and the PI Board of Directors will be in Washington.

Drafting of the manual. In consultation with the Working Group, a team of editors experienced in producing practical, user-friendly manuals will develop an initial draft. The Consultants will work separately and then together to bring together a manual that can be tested in the pilot projects.

Materials and models included in the manual. Listed below are the kinds of model programs and materials that may be included in the manual.

- Model recruitment programs such as high school student pollworker programs; bilingual pollworker programs; corporate pollworker programs; split shift options; Adopt-a-Poll programs.

- Model retention programs such as pollworker newsletters; appreciation ceremonies; pollworker pins; post-election critiques involving pollworkers
- Model training approaches such as outsourcing the pollworker training to professional trainers and educators; Introducing adult learning and experiential methods such as promoting hands-on and role playing opportunities during training classes (see text box below); customized training for specific pollworker audiences such as corporate, county or student programs; on-line training programs, the set up and employment of “mock” polling place equipment in to the training, issuing training materials in advance of the training class for pollworkers to review and ask better questions as a result, better training materials such as laminated “job cards” instead of long descriptions of each pollworkers responsibilities and role.
- Other innovative pollworker programs such as programs to track and evaluate pollworker performance or programs such as Early Voting which may reduce the number of pollworkers needed.

Task 4.9 – Develop and implement pilot programs.

The pilot programs will be key to ensuring the manual’s usefulness and will yield valuable information about the strategies and models recommended. Moreover, pilot programs will allow researchers an ideal opportunity to test the impact of specific recruitment and training methods.

In carrying out this task, the IFES-PI team will undertake the following:

- finalize, with the EAC, pilot program locations and partners
- develop and finalize agreements (memoranda of understanding) with all partners
- work with partners to develop a timeline for each project
- work with partners to develop and carry out recruitment plans
- conduct training workshops for election official training staff
- monitor training
- monitor Election Day activities
- conduct post-Election survey of all participants

Pilot program locations. In consultation with the EAC, locations for the pilot programs will be selected, to represent all regions of the country. In addition, at least one of the sites will be located:

- in a jurisdiction required to provide bilingual assistance at the polls under the Voting Rights Act
- in a rural jurisdiction
- in a high-density urban jurisdiction
- in a jurisdiction where elections are conducted by a small town-ship or municipality
- in a jurisdiction where the state election office plays a key role in directing and administering the pollworker program
- in a jurisdiction implementing new voting systems
- in a jurisdiction where voters from multiple precincts vote in the same polling place

Possible sites include jurisdictions in the following states: Washington, Michigan, Texas, Missouri, North Carolina or Rhode Island.

Selection of polling place partners. In order to ensure the success of pilot programs, the IFES-PI team will select potential election official partners carefully and develop a memorandum of understanding for all participating organizations to sign. The MOU may include agreements on the following:

- specific descriptions of the roles of each partner
- IFES-PI access to pollworker database and voter registration file
- materials to be provided by IFES-PI, e.g., marketing materials, PSA copy
- resources to be provided by IFES-PI such as an online training module or workshop on adult learning
- data on outcomes

Workplans. Once the MOU has been signed, the IFES-PI team will work with the partner to develop a project workplan. The project workplan would include the following:

- Timeline of deliverables
- Meeting schedules
- Staffing assignments

Timing. Pilot programs will be conducted during the 2006 election cycle, and will include June, August or September Primaries, as well as the November 2006 General Elections.

Pollworker recruitment. Strategies and action plans for pollworker recruitment will be drawn from the collection of best practices included in the manual and will be selected for testing in pilot programs according to criteria that include the following:

- innovative use of new technology
- innovative use of new media
- innovative approaches to communication with hard-to-reach sectors of the population, e.g., people with disabilities and voters with low English proficiency
- innovative approaches to specialty recruitment drives

The IFES-PI team anticipates that some recruitment strategies will be common to all pilot projects, e.g., specialty recruitment drives, while others may be used in only one jurisdiction, e.g., recruitment of bilingual voters or web-based recruitment.

Training. Despite the critical importance of training those people who will be making sure that eligible citizens can cast their vote and have that vote counted accurately, pollworker training is low on the list of election official priorities. Often, the staff responsible for training has no relevant experience in adult training. In some jurisdictions, officials have brought in professional trainers to develop materials and conduct the training, recognizing that training requires specialized, professional expertise.

Too often, training consists of nothing more than a simple review of manuals. The time allotted does not allow for using techniques, such as hands-on demonstrations and role-playing, proven to promote better understanding and retention.

Professionalizing and improving training could significantly improve the conduct of elections. For this reason, the IFES-PI team will bring in an expert in adult learning techniques to conduct training workshops for appropriate staff.

The IFES-PI team anticipates that some training methods will be common to all pilot programs, e.g., the use of hands-on role-playing, a mock polling place and job guides, and some may be used in only one jurisdiction, e.g., online training modules.

Pollworker retention. Pollworker retention can only be accurately measured from one election cycle to the next. The IFES-PI team will implement pollworker retention strategies as part of the pilot program; however, we will not be able to evaluate their effectiveness in the course of this project.

Reporting results. Prior to conducting the pilot programs, we will develop a research plan to define the variables and measurable outcomes. At the conclusion of the pilot programs, we will survey the participants and provide a report on each pilot program.

Task 4.10 – Make recommendations for future action regarding college pollworker programs
At the conclusion of this project, the Contractor is required to provide the EAC with written report on the project. This report will include specific lessons learned, recommendations for revision of the manual developed for the project, and recommendations for future activities in support of college pollworker programs.

The IFES-PI team will carry out the following to complete Task 4.10:

- review the pilot project reports and data
- conduct follow-on interviews with selected participants
- draft report
- disseminate draft to Working Group and team members for comment
- submit edited draft report to EAC for review
- edit and submit final draft

The IFES-PI team will provide a draft of the report for review before producing the final report. The IFES-PI team shall provide to the EAC one electronic copy (in an agreed upon format) and ten hard copies of the final report.

EAC RFP #05-05, EFFECTIVE STRATEGIES AND BEST PRACTICES FOR POLL-WORKER RECRUITMENT, RETENTION AND TRAINING

Dear Ms. Mortellito:

Dr. Bergman has been active in local and statewide politics for more than 10 years, serving on campaigns and as a lobbyist in Sacramento; most recently as a consultant to the Association of Los Angeles Deputy Sheriff's (1996-1997). As a consultant for the American Psychological Association (1993-1994), Bergman advised the member associations in California, Oregon, and Washington on effective mobilization techniques, grass-roots organization, and political communication related to healthcare issues. In 1992, Bergman co-founded a Los Angeles political non-profit 501(c)(3) for the twin purposes of providing campaign training and fundraising assistance to women running in local elections. She has been recognized for her work in numerous publications, including the Los Angeles Times, and on local radio.

Kim Brace

Kim Brace, founder and president of Election Data Services, Inc., has 25 years of experience with the development and delivery of election-related products and services. Mr. Brace was the principal investigator for the project providing survey analysis support to the EAC in 2005 and managed several studies on voter registration systems for the Federal Election Commission and the three state boards of elections and election departments from 1995 to 1998. He supervised the development the GIS-based PRECIS® Precinct Information System as well as the construction and maintenance of nationwide databases of election returns, electoral district boundaries, and voting equipment. Mr. Brace has conducted congressional reapportionment studies and also has supervised the construction of databases for redistricting and the delivery of redistricting consulting services to some 35 redistricting commissions and state and local legislative organizations throughout the United States.

He maintains affiliations with organizations such as the American Political Science Association and the Association of Public Data Users. In 1992 he edited The Election Data Book: A Statistical Portrait of Voting in America (Bernan Press). Prior to founding Election Data Services, he was an associate editor of the biweekly newsletter, Election Administration Reports. Mr. Brace is a graduate of American University in Washington, D.C.

Karen Buerkle

Dr. Buerkle is a seasoned practitioner of general and special population surveys and has surveyed such hard-to-reach populations as U.S. Senate-confirmed presidential appointees, school-based health practitioners, and local government officials in Pakistan. In her capacity as senior researcher, she formulates original research projects and implements research projects in conjunction with IFES programmatic activities. Her primary responsibilities include survey and sample design, questionnaire construction, project management, and survey data analysis. Dr. Buerkle also specializes in teaching research methods and helping indigenous research organizations build their research capacity.

Charlotte Cleary

Charlotte Cleary served as General Registrar for Arlington County, Virginia from 1985 until 2003. As General Registrar, Cleary administered the elections, including developing and conducting training programs for staff and pollworkers and writing the office procedure manual. Cleary has served on State and national committees relating to elections, including Member, Federal Election Commission Advisory Panel, 1998-2003; the Joint Election Officials Legislative Liaison Committee, 1997-2003; the Voter Registrar Association of Virginia, 1985-2003; the International Association of Clerks, Recorders, and Election Officials 1987-2003; and the Election Center 1990-2003. Jennifer Collins-Foley

(See "Principle Investigator's qualifications" below.)

Mario Henriquez

After receiving his education in International Relations and Global Systems from George Mason University, Mario Henriquez began working for IFES in 1998. Starting as a program assistant working on projects in Haiti and San Salvador, Mario rapidly ascended the management ladder at IFES culminating with his most recent promotion to the position of Program Officer in 2002. As program officer, Mario has works with direct supervision from the director of programs, overseeing projects in Honduras, Guatemala, Dominican Republic, Iraq, Jordan, Haiti and other parts of the Americas. Mario recently began focusing on the relatively new territory of U.S. elections. With experience in both Washington and the field, Mario plays a vital role at IFES where his language skills and background help the organization continue to reach its goals.

Jeannette Senecal

Jeanette M. Senecal is currently the Senior Manager of Elections of the League of Women Voters Education Fund. Ms. Senecal originally joined the League staff as part of the e-democracy team. Her primary focus was building the League's DemocracyNet project, a first of its kind voter information website designed to disseminate candidate and other election information for local, state, and federal elections nationwide. Jeanette recruited, trained and oversaw the work of over 500 employees and volunteers nationwide working on DemocracyNet.

As Senior Manager of Elections, Jeanette manages and coordinates various get-out-the-vote, election reform, and civic engagement activities, including efforts to engage new and underrepresented citizens, and educate League leaders and other interested parties on the implementation of the Help America Vote Act. Ms. Senecal provides technical assistance and training to Leagues through written materials, phone consultation, online discussion and field trainings to support these activities.

Tracy Warren

Tracy Warren has more than 15 years of experience in public policy, focusing on campaigns and elections, good government and constitutional issues. She served as director of the Constitution Project's Election Reform Initiative until January 2003. Her election reform background and capabilities include: detailed knowledge of the Help America Vote Act; broad knowledge of state election law and procedures; skills in research and analysis, consensus-building and communications; and a network of contacts that include state and local election officials, congressional staff, voting rights advocates and policy experts. Following passage of the Help America Vote Act, Ms. Warren consulted on implementation with the District of Columbia and Puerto Rico. She has researched, written and published articles and reports on interpreting and implementing the new law. She has provided consulting services for the U.S. Election Assistance Commission, drafting a report on the EAC's first public hearing on voting technology and security issues. She assisted in compiling, drafting and editing a "tool kit" of best practices in election administration for the EAC. Warren worked with HAVA Partners to develop a template for the online management and training of pollworkers. The HAVA Partners program was deployed in Arlington County, Virginia, in 2004.

Connie Schmidt

Connie Schmidt recently retired as the Election Commissioner for Johnson County, Kansas, after having been appointed to that position in 1995 by Kansas Secretary of State, Ron Thornburgh. She has been an active and innovative local official for 31 years, during which time she has received a number of important awards. Most recently, she received in December 2004 the National Association of Secretaries of State (NASS) Medallion Award for outstanding service to American Democracy. As Election Commissioner for Johnson County, she introduced many new voter outreach and education programs, including one of the first election office web sites. She has served as the chair of the Professional Education Program Certification Boards for The Election Center and as a member of the Voting Systems Standards Board of the National Association of State Election Directors (NASED).

3. PROVIDE A BRIEF DESCRIPTION OF THE QUALIFICATIONS OF THE PRINCIPAL INVESTIGATOR RELATIVE TO PERFORMING THE TYPES OF ACTIVITIES DESCRIBED IN THE STATEMENT OF WORK.

Jennifer Collins-Foley has more than 16 years of experience developing and managing international and domestic local democratic governance programs, training and voter registration/outreach/education programs.

She recently consulted on election administration and policy for the League of Women Voters of the U.S (a survey of implementation of federal legislation) and for the U.S. Election Assistance Commission ("Best Practices in Election Administration and Management"). As a consultant for the International Foundation for Election Systems (IFES), Collins-Foley, developed pollworker training materials, training curriculum and election management recommendations for the Republic of Kyrgyzstan, the Republic of Tajikistan, Miami-Dade County, Florida, and the District of Columbia.

Collins-Foley served as Assistant Registrar Recorder/County Clerk for Los Angeles County, CA, where her responsibilities included recruiting and training 22,000 pollworkers and managing 5,000 polling places (1996-2004). Collins-Foley was Director for the National Democratic Institute in Moscow overseeing democratic institution building and training in Russia (1994-1996) and also Program Officer for Central and Eastern Europe, United Nations Division on Economic and Social Development (UNDESD) (1989-1992). In 2003, Collins-Foley authored a practical manual for election administrators titled "Pollworker Connections: Specialty Recruitment for Student, County Employee and Bilingual Pollworkers."

Three examples of comparable work performed by Collins-Foley over the past five years are as follows:

1) "Pollworker Connections": A Manual on Specialty Recruitment for Student, County, and Bilingual Pollworkers (2003)

The "Pollworker Connections" manual was first developed in February 2002 for a training session conducted by Collins-Foley at an Election Center program. The target audience was election officials seeking new ways to recruit, retain and train a new crop of pollworkers to shore up the diminishing pool of veteran pollworkers. It was updated in 2003 to reflect lessons learned and to include new materials.

2) "Best Practices in Administration, Management and Security in Voting Systems: A Toolkit for Election Administrators and Stakeholders"

Collins-Foley led a team that included Tracy Warren and Thomas Wilkey in coordinating a working group of local election officials to develop a compilation of best practices. The EAC published the toolkit prior to the 2004 election to assist local election officials confront a series of challenges, including new security concerns.

3) Introduction and implementation of specialty recruitment programs in Los Angeles County, California

As Assistant Registrar-Recorder/County Clerk for Los Angeles County, California, Collins-Foley was responsible for the recruitment, retention and training of 22,000 pollworkers deployed to 5,000 polling places on Election Day. In this position, Collins-Foley implemented a number of innovations in the county's pollworker program. Most pertinent to this proposed project, Collins-Foley was instrumental in launching a series of specialty pollworker recruitment programs including programs to recruit high school pollworkers, county pollworkers, college pollworkers and bilingual pollworkers. These specialty recruitment efforts are now responsible for the recruitment of 66 percent of the county's 22,000 pollworkers.

Collins-Foley designed the kit for election officials seeking new ways to recruit, retain and train new pollworkers. The manual included recruitment strategies to help expand and enhance the diminishing pool of pollworkers. The manual was updated in 2003 to reflect lessons learned and to include new materials.

II. IFES: Recruitment and training of pollworkers for the District of Columbia Board of Elections and Ethics for the 2004 Presidential Election

The 2004 Pollworker Training and Recruitment Project, undertaken on behalf of the Government of the District of Columbia's Board of Ethics and Elections (BOEE or the Board) and directed by IFES Project Manager, Gwenn Hofmann, was designed to meet the specific training requirements of the Help America Vote Act (HAVA), a Federal law enacted in 2003. Additionally, the Board sought to address future BoEE needs for Pollworkers, especially those who speak Spanish. The Board, a permanent electoral body, is responsible for administering elections in Washington, D.C., a federal district and capital of the United States of America. The period of performance of the project was July 20, 2004, to January 31, 2005.

It has been standard Board practice that every Pollworker in the District of Columbia be trained regarding new laws, procedures, and requirements prior to each election. New in 2004 was the requirement that this training include orientation to provisions of the new HAVA law, especially educating Election Day workers regarding their responsibilities and limits with respect to technical aspects of voter education and assistance.

The training program developed by IFES for the September 2004 Primary Election and the November 2004 General Election included the new requirements of the HAVA as well as a review of all legal and procedural requirements of the Board. HAVA mandated that specific training be given to poll workers so that they would have an understanding of what constituted a "provisional ballot"; the qualifying and processing of voters; how to ensure that every voter had information pertinent to the types of voting equipment options, and to explain to voters how and when their votes would be counted.. The training program included information about the two types of voting equipment, (Optical Scan and Direct Electronic) and the audio system of voting for visually impaired voters. For many voters and poll workers, this election cycle was the first time the Direct Electronic with audio voting capability was used.

III. Elizabeth Bergman, PhD.: California State Polytechnic University Student Pollworker Recruitment '04

California State Polytechnic University (Cal Poly Pomona) and the Los Angeles County Registrar Recorder/ County Clerk's office (LACRR/CC) developed a program to recruit and train college students to serve on Election Day 2004. The program covered two quarters of the school year, beginning in the summer and extending into the fall quarter of 2004. Students were recruited from Introduction to American Government courses. A total of five classes with 300 students were given the opportunity to participate in the program. More than 120 Cal Poly students participated in the traditional pollworker training program. The program offered students both "extra credit" and financial remuneration. Extra credit equivalent to 5% of the course grade was offered to participating students. In order to receive the extra credit, students were required to attend a two-hour training session and complete a 30-question survey that addressed their motivation for participating in the program, their level of political awareness, and their attitudes about civic duty. Class extra credit and pollworker service were decoupled because the summer courses and training were conducted "off cycle."

In addition, the LACRR/CC paid participating students $25 for attending the two-hour training and $55 for being a pollworker on Election Day. The financial payment was conditioned on participation in both the training and pollworker activities; students could not collect partial payment for partaking in only one element of the LACRR/CC program. Training was conducted and curriculum provided by the LACRR/CC. The training occurred at a facility located on the Cal Poly campus. Training curriculum and trainers were the same as those utilized by the County to train all other pollworkers. Forty-four students served as pollworkers on Election Day November 2004.

IV. Election Data Services: EAC Survey Analysis Support (2005)

In February 2005, Election Data Services (EDS) was contracted by the EAC to provide assistance with tabulating, analyzing and reporting the results of three surveys conducted by the EAC: the Election Day survey, Military and Overseas Absentee Ballot survey and the National Voter Registration Act (NVRA) survey. Responses to the survey covered 6,568 local election jurisdictions. The project included an analysis of some 43 survey questions. The results were reported in a series of 14 data tables covering voter registration and turnout, absentee voting, provisional ballots, voting equipment, pollworkers and the accessibility of precincts. A report of the survey findings included some 40 recommendations on future data collection.

V. The Pollworker Institute: A Report to the Pew Charitable Trusts Exploring the Feasibility of Initiatives to Improve and Strengthen the Nation's Voter Registration Systems

In 2005, The Pollworker Institute was contracted by the Pew Charitable Trusts to survey state and local election officials and a broad spectrum of elections stakeholders on voter registration issues and approaches to making voter registration lists more secure and accurate. Jennifer Collins-Foley, working with Tracy Warren, conducted extensive interviews with elections officials to gather information on innovative models and registration practices. The results of these conversations were compiled into a reader-friendly report with a concise list of potential actions and research projects.

5. DISCUSS WHAT YOU CONSIDER THE THREE (3) MOST SIGNIFICANT RISKS FOR SUCCESSFUL COMPLETION OF THE PROJECT. EXPLAIN WHY YOU FEEL EACH IS A RISK AND HOW YOU PLAN TO MANAGE THESE RISKS.

The three most significant risks to this project – both the development of a user-friendly manual suitable for users that include both election officials and academic partners and pilot projects in geographically and demographically diverse locales – are as follows:

- Potential problems in recruiting local partners for pilot projects
- Potential problems in recruiting appropriate focus group participation
- Potential cost overruns

Local election officials are universally short on resources and time, and at the very moment in the election cycle when recruitment and training of pollworkers begins, all the other demands of running an election rise exponentially. In the 2006 elections, these demands will be even heavier owing to HAVA's January 2006 deadlines for the implementation of new voting systems and statewide registration systems. Election officials will likely want pollworker recruitment and training to be as efficient and trouble-free as possible. Accordingly, the challenge of implementing a new recruitment and training programs may seem daunting. The IFES-PI team anticipates that it may be difficult under these circumstances to recruit partners for the pilot projects.

The IFES-PI team, which has experience in creating and facilitating these partnerships, seeks to mitigate this risk by enlisting the extensive network of election official contacts and by offering potential partners an array of resources – templates, materials, timelines, training workshops and, not least, labor – that can reduce the burden of implementing a new program. The IFES-PI team believes the projects will only be successful if the local election official is fully committed to making the project work and overcoming the hurdles of complicated logistics, demanding schedules and unfamiliar tasks and people. The team will educate all potential partners in the requirements, risks and benefits before asking for a commitment. Once the partners agree to commit, the team will require partners to sign a memorandum of understanding defining tasks and timelines for the project.

The IFES-PI team anticipates that it may be difficult to recruit participants and, equally important, recruit participants in adequate numbers from each of the stakeholder groups. The League of Women Voters Education Fund, with access to local Leagues and other civic groups across the country, has a proven ability to reach into the community and engage members in civic participation. In addition, Karen Beurkle

This project has several components and many variables. Accordingly there is a risk that any one of the tasks will consume more hours than allowed for in the proposal. The IFES-PI team will be tracking the time and money spent and reviewing the status of the project on a monthly basis. By prompt action, we will be able to take immediate steps to address the cause of the cost overrun. In addition, we may modify the workplan accordingly. Some potential modifications include: changing focus group locations to less expensive sites and seek other options for reducing the travel costs associated with this project.

6. DISCUSS THE TOP FIVE (5) REASONS THAT MAKE YOUR TEAM THE BEST QUALIFIED CANDIDATE TO PERFORM THIS WORK.

1. Extensive experience conducting pollworker programs in diverse localities. The IFES-PI team has rich background in pollworker programs. Three members of the team – Jennifer Collins-Foley, Connie Schmidt and Charlotte Cleary – have all had responsibility for pollworker management, recruitment, training and retention in jurisdictions with highly diverse populations. And each has a demonstrated commitment to innovation and quality. In addition, both Connie Schmidt and Charlotte Cleary oversaw pollworker training in jurisdictions that implemented new voting systems and have a first-hand knowledge of the challenge of change-management in the context of working with volunteers. Connie Schmidt's manual "Implementing a New Voting System from a Local Election Administrator's Perspective," addressed some of the challenges in training pollworkers to use new voting systems. Most pertinent to this proposed project, Collins-Foley was instrumental in launching a series of specialty pollworker recruitment programs including programs to recruit high school pollworkers, county pollworkers, college pollworkers and bilingual pollworkers. Specialty recruiting now accounts for 66 percent of the county's 22,000 pollworkers. Warren worked with HAVA Partners to develop a template for the online management and training of pollworkers. The HAVA Partners program was deployed in Arlington County, Virginia, in 2004.

2. Wide network of election official contacts. With decades of elections experience, the IFES-PI team has a wide network of election colleagues. Jennifer Collins-Foley and Connie Schmidt have worked closely with the Election Center, a prominent national organization for election officials, and several other national organizations, such as IACREOT. As director of the Constitution Project's Election Reform Initiative and the author of several studies and surveys of election practices, Warren has worked with every national organization serving election officials, including NASED, NASS, NACREOC, IACREOT and NACo. Former Maryland Secretary of State, John Willis, was active in the National Association of Secretaries of State and developed contacts at the state level. Together, Warren and Willis bring a state-level perspective to the project.

The Pollworker Institute's Board of Directors is also an important resource for the IFES-PI team and will commit substantial pro bono assistance. The Pollworker Institute Board of Directors includes:

- o Beverly Kaufman, County Clerk, Harris County, Texas
- o Conny B. McCormack, Los Angeles County Registrar-Recorder/County Clerk
- o Leonard Shambon, a D.C.-based attorney who served as counsel to congressional sponsors of the Help America Vote Act and to the Ford-Carter and Carter-Baker National Election Reform Commissions

Through the team's close connections to these individuals and organizations, the IFES-PI team can draw on vast experience and intellectual capital.

3. Experience in compiling best practices for election officials in a user-friendly format. Prior to the 2004 Presidential election, team members produced three best practices guides for election officials. Jennifer Collins-Foley and Tracy Warren worked together to compile "Best Practices in Administration, Management and Security in Voting Systems: A Toolkit for Election Administrators and Stakeholders" for the U.S. Election Assistance Commission. Consultant Connie Schmidt has produced a number of user manuals, including the "Implementing a New Voting System from a Local Election Administrator's Perspective." In addition, Tracy Warren has compiled two best practices reports for the League of Women Voters of the U.S.: "Helping America Vote: A Guide to Implementing the New Federal Provisional Ballot Requirement" and "Helping America Vote: Safeguarding the Vote."

In addition, IFES developed the comprehensive Administration and Cost of Elections (ACE) Project, produced in cooperation with the International Institute for Democracy and Electoral Assistance (IDEA) and the United Nations Department of Economic and Social Affairs (UNDESA). ACE is an ongoing project to create a globally accessible repository of information and materials on election practices, including pollworker programs.

4. Research experience. Although the primary product of this project is a manual for election officials, in order to ensure the effectiveness and usability of the manual requires research and a sound methodology for analysis. The IFES-PI team includes three members who combine a research background and elections experience. Dr. Elizabeth Bergman has conducted research on college pollworker programs, studying the results of the Los Angeles County pollworker program. In March of 2005, Bergman presented findings at two key gatherings of experts in the field, the Western Political Science Association annual meeting and the Southwestern Political Science Association Conference, where panelists called for more research on the topic of pollworkers in U.S. elections.

Karen Buerkle, at IFES, implements research projects in conjunction with IFES program activities in the field and reviews IFES surveys and research projects to ensure they meet high methodological standards. Buerkle's experience developing indicators and evaluation mechanisms to measure success of IFES field activities will be invaluable as the IFES-PI team develops a methodology to evaluate existing college pollworker programs.

The IFES-PI team will also draw on the resources of IFES's Applied Research Center on Democracy and Elections (ARC) has more than ten years of experience conducting innovative and effective public opinion research around the world. IFES' experience and methodological rigor in its approach to survey research led Foreign Policy Magazine to name IFES the leader in democracy and governance surveys in 2003. To date, IFES has conducted more than 60 surveys and focus group activities in the United States and dozens of countries around the world.

Kim Brace, founder and president of Election Data Services, Inc., was the principal investigator for the project providing survey analysis support to the EAC in 2005 and managed several studies on voter registration systems for the Federal Election Commission and the three state boards of elections and election departments from 1995 to 1998. Mr. Brace has conducted congressional reapportionment studies and also has supervised the construction of databases for redistricting and the delivery of redistricting consulting services to some 35 redistricting commissions and state and local legislative organizations throughout the United States. In 1992 he edited The Election Data Book: A Statistical Portrait of Voting in America (Bernan Press). Prior to founding Election Data Services, he was an associate editor of the biweekly newsletter, Election Administration Reports. Mr. Brace is a graduate of American University in Washington, D.C.

5. Understanding of the needs and resource limitations of the target audience. Every member of the team has experience working with local election offices, including members of the educators team, and understands the constraints that make innovation so difficult. This understanding will guide the team as it develops a manual that has sufficient detail and practicality to replicate the model strategies and programs in jurisdictions around the country.

RFP #05-05

PERIOD OF PERFORMANCE: SEPTEMBER 20, 2005—DECEMBER 31, 2006

BUDGET NOTES

In accordance with OMB Circular A-122, "Where an item of cost requiring prior approval is specified in the budget of an award, approval of the budget constitutes approval of that cost. Consequently, an award containing a budget constitutes prior approval of the direct cost item in the budget, unless otherwise annotated."

Accordingly, IFES shall consider that this budget submission, if approved, constitutes prior approval of the cost items designated as requiring prior approval by OMB Circular A-122, unless the award is otherwise annotated.

1. Direct Labor

All salaries are based on estimated workload and actual labor costs. Salaries are in keeping with IFES pay scales for the stated positions. Only actual costs are billed to the project.

IFES' employee labor year is based on an estimated 235 billable days out of 260 - the other 25 days are accounted for in fringe benefits.

IFES is required to adhere to the Fair Labor Standards Act with regard to payment of overtime at time and a half for IFES' non-exempt employees. Pursuant to OMB Circular A-122, Cost Principles for Non-Profit Organizations, payment of premiums for overtime work are allowable as a direct cost only with the prior approval of the awarding agency. Therefore, the budget and proposal as submitted for approval anticipate this need for occasional overtime to be worked by non-exempt staff.

1) Home Office Assistance

The Senior Director of Programs is responsible for the planning, development, and delivery of projects, assuring that project

020471

The Program Officer, under the direction and supervision of the program director, will provide day-to-day management/oversight of the project. The program officer is responsible for the implementation and management of the project.

ii) Travel Assistance

The Senior Researcher will take six trips to the field in order to implement the 6 six focus groups described in the technical proposal.

The Program Officer is scheduled for one trip to the field in order to assist the management and development of the project.

iii) Fringe Benefits

Fringe benefits for IFES employees are allocated at 40% of salaries in accordance with IFES' anticipated FY06 rates under its Negotiated Indirect Cost Rate Agreement (NICRA), which is issued and approved by its cognizant audit agency, United States Agency for International Development (USAID).

2. Sub-Awards

IFES ensures that sub-awardees and subcontractors are chosen and monitored in accordance with US Government regulations and IFES' strict internal procedures.

IFES will build on its established methodologies to award at least two sub-awards. The first award will be provided to the League of Women Voters in the amount of $32,500.00. The services provided by the League of Women Voters are fully discussed in the technical proposal.

The second award will be provided to the Poll-Worker Institute in the amount of $274,871.00. A description of the services to be provided can be found in the technical proposal. Additionally, as this proposed sub-award exceeds $100,000.00, please find a detailed breakdown of this budget with accompanying budget notes located in the appendix of this cost proposal.

3. Other Direct Costs

A. Travel

i) Airfare

The major activities proposed to accomplish tasks specified by the Statement of Work from September 20, 2005, the project's start date, to December 31, 2006, the deadline for the final project report. The matrix in Attachment B shows the number of hours that have been allocated for the proposed activities to each member of the project team. The section details how the IFES-PI team will approach the required tasks: conducting a series of focus groups, developing an extensive manual, implementing pilot programs using strategies and materials from the manual, providing recommendations for revisions to the manual and for future activities to benefit efforts to recruit, train, and retain pollworkers. The discussion of the work plan concludes with summaries of the work experience of senior members of the proposed project team.

Project milestones are the deadlines for delivery of the following items:

Summary of State requirements (4.5)	January 6, 2006
Summary of Focus Groups (4.7)	February 3, 2006
Outline of Manual (4.8)	February 24, 2006

Discussion of Specific Tasks

The discussion of specific tasks begins with Task 4.4 and includes a description of each task outlined in the RFP's Statement of Work and how the IFES-PI team proposes to accomplish each task.

Task 4.4 – Develop a Project Working Group

Task 4.4 requires the Contractor to develop a working group composed of 5 individuals considered experts in the fields of elections, training, education, or possess other experience deemed relevant that would assist in the administration of the project. To accomplish this task, the IFES-PI team proposes to form a Working Group composed of five members, including the following:

- An experienced state election administrator who has demonstrated a commitment to innovative pollworker recruiting and training development programs. Recommendation: Sarah Ball Johnson, Executive Director

- An experienced local election administrator with a demonstrated a commitment to innovative recruiting and training programs. Two recommendations are: Sara Harris, Deputy Director of the Montgomery County Board of Elections, or Beverly Kaufman, County Clerk in Harris County, Texas.
- An adult learning expert. Recommendation: professional trainer for the American Red Cross or trainer for the new U.S. Department of Homeland Security.
- A representative from a public interest organization dedicated to protecting the rights of voters with limited English proficiency, e.g., the Mexican American Legal Defense Fund (MALDEF), National Association of Latino Elected Officials (NALEO) or voters with disabilities, e.g., The Access Board, the American Association of People with Disabilities or Paralyzed Veterans of America.
- An experienced researcher in the area of elections. Recommendations: Stephen Ansolabehere at MIT, Henry Brady at the University of California-Berkeley, Michael Alvarez at CalTech, or Thad Hall at the University of Utah.

The Working Group will be asked to undertake the following:

- assist in identifying current research on State requirements relevant to pollworker programs; identifying best practices for pollworker recruitment, retention and training; encourage colleagues to respond to requests for information, particularly responding to a survey that will be developed to gather models and samples.
- review summary of best practices from jurisdictions already implementing innovative or cost-saving programs and make recommendations for how to effectively share these practices in the manual
- assist in designing questions for the focus group discussions
- advise on the outline of the manual and review the final draft of the manual
- review the results of the pilot programs
- review the final report to the EAC

The Working Group will meet three times, initially in Washington, D.C., and, subsequently, at other locations around the country, preferably in conjunction with another event such as an EAC hearing or project focus group. Each meeting is scheduled to last a day. In addition, and to minimize costs, a monthly telephone conference will be conducted to brief members and solicit their feedback. Documents, including reports requiring the Working Groups review and comment such as drafts of the manual, will be submitted electronically. Members will be encouraged to return comments electronically as well.

Additional Pro Bono Advisors. Additionally, the IFES-PI team will benefit from the extensive pro bono contributions from the Pollworker Institute Board of Directors and Board of Advisors.

The Pollworker Institute Board of Directors includes:

- Beverly Kaufman, County Clerk, Harris County, Texas
- Conny B. McCormack, Los Angeles County Registrar-Recorder/County Clerk

Dear Ms. Abramson:

This letter is in response to your Freedom of Information Act (FOIA) request received by the U. S. Election Assistance Commission (EAC) on July 3, 2006. The request sought certain agency records concerning the agency contract awarded to The Cresston Company, LLC. Specifically, the request sought records pertaining to:

1. The full proposal submitted by the Cresston Company, LLC d.b.a. Compass Languages for RFP 06-02 (RFQ 142611);
2. A list of all offerers and the costs proposed for each; and
3. Our scores on each component of the evaluation criteria for the technical proposal and the scores of the Cresston Company technical proposal. The criteria includes:
  - a. Relevant organizational experience
  - b. Quality and look of samples
  - c. Compliance with proposal instructions
  - d. Results of reference checks

Responsive Records. The EAC has found records responsive to item # 1 above. Please find the responsive document attached. Some of the information has been redacted. The removed portions contain confidential commercial information, such as bank account information and the names of subcontractors that must be withheld pursuant to FOIA exemption 4.

No Records. After a review of its files the EAC has determined that it has no list of all offerers and the costs proposed for each, in reference to item #2 noted above. However, the EAC does have an incomplete list of offerers, which does not include the Cresston Company, that we have provided.

Withheld Records. The four pages of documents responsive to item # 3, your scores on each component of the evaluation criteria for the technical proposal and the scores of the Cresston Company technical proposal, are protected by the Deliberative Process Privilege and exempted from release under 5 U.S.C. §522(b)(5). The documents sought are pre-decisional policy recommendations. Such documents are exempt from release (1) to encourage open and frank discussions on policy matters between agency subordinates and superiors, (2) protect against premature disclosure of proposed policies and (3) to protect against public confusion that might result from disclosure of rationales that were not in fact the ultimate basis for agency action.

The EAC has decided to waive the processing fees for your request. If you interpret any portion of this response as an adverse action, you may appeal it to the Election Assistance Commission. Your appeal must be in writing and sent to the address noted on the above letterhead. Any appeal submitted, must be postmarked no later than 60 calendar days from the date of this letter. Please include your reasons for reconsideration and attach a copy of this letter.

Sincerely,

Jeannie Layson

2043 Anderson Road
Suite C
Davis, California 95616-0672

Dear Ms. Abramson:

This letter is in response to your Freedom of Information Act (FOIA) request received by the U. S. Election Assistance Commission (EAC) on July 3, 2006. The request sought certain agency records concerning the agency contract awarded to The Cresston Company, LLC. Specifically, the request sought records pertaining to:

1. The full proposal submitted by the Cresston Company, LLC d.b.a. Compass Languages for RFP 06-02 (RFQ 142611);
2. A list of all offerers and the costs proposed for each; and
3. Our scores on each component of the evaluation criteria for the technical proposal and the scores of the Cresston Company technical proposal. The criteria includes:
  - a. Relevant organizational experience
  - b. Quality and look of samples
  - c. Compliance with proposal instructions
  - d. Results of reference checks

Response → No Records. After a review of its files the EAC has determined that it has no list of all offerers and the costs proposed for each, in reference to item #2 noted above. However, the EAC does have an incomplete list of offerers, which does not include the Cresston Company, that we have provided.

Withheld Records. The ?four pages of documents responsive to item # 3, your scores on each component of the evaluation criteria for the technical proposal and the scores of the Cresston Company technical proposal, are protected by the Deliberative Process Privilege and exempted from release under 5 U.S.C. §522(b)(5). The documents sought are pre-decisional policy recommendations. Such documents are exempt from release (1) to encourage open and frank discussions on policy matters between agency subordinates and superiors, (2) protect against premature disclosure of proposed policies and (3) to protect against public confusion that might result from disclosure of rationales that were not in fact the ultimate basis for agency action. ~~The score sheets are predecisional, created before the contract was awarded. The score sheets are deliberative, created as part of the process in the selection of a Contractor.~~

Responsive Records. The EAC has found responsive records to item # 1 requested above. Please find responsive document attached. Some of the information in this has been redacted. The removed portions contain financial information, such as banking account information and the names of subcontractors, based on a FOIA exemption that covers confidential commercial information. + but must be withheld based to FOIA Exemption 4

The EAC has decided to waive the processing fees for your request. If you interpret any portion of this response as an adverse action, you may appeal it to the Election Assistance Commission. Your appeal must be in writing and sent to the address noted on the above letterhead. Any appeal submitted, must be postmarked no later than 60 calendar days from the date of this letter. Please include your reasons for reconsideration and attach a copy of this letter.

SERVICES AGREEMENT

This Compliance Validation Services Agreement ("Agreement"), is made by and between AmbironTrustWave operating under TrustWave Holdings, Inc, a Delaware Corporation ("ATW") and Comlink, a _____ Corporation ("Comlink"), and shall be effective as of the date of execution by both parties. ATW desires to provide Compliance Validation Services to Comlink to address the PCI Payment Application Security Standard (PASS) and Comlink wishes to receive such services.

Statement of Work

The ATW TrustedApp® Program consists of many distinct components that are described below.

Application Assessment

For each application, ATW leverages its application best practices methodology to properly address the review of the payment-based application. This methodology reviews the PCI Payment Application Security Standard (PASS) assessment requirements listed below:

1. Do not retain full magnetic stripe or CVV2 data
2. Protect stored data
3. Provide secure password features
4. Log application activity
5. Develop secure applications
6. Protect wireless transmissions
7. Test applications to address vulnerabilities
8. Facilitate secure network implementation
9. For Internet-based applications, store cardholder data in internal network only
10. Facilitate secure remote software updates
11. Facilitate secure remote access to application
12. Encrypt sensitive traffic over public networks
13. Encrypt internal administrative access

The TrustedApp® process can consist of a both remote and onsite assessment activities. The following is an overview of the TrustedApp® process. A more detailed description of each step is provided after this summary.

Kickoff Meeting - The ATW security consultant provides an overview of the TrustedApp® process and answers questions regarding the application assessment process.

Information Gathering - Remote process to gather and analyze application design and implementation information prior to the formal application review. Application architecture, coding, and development practices will be examined.

Application Review - Remote (or on-site, if applicable) review of the application by an ATW security consultant following the PCI PASS assessment procedures dictated by the credit card associations.

Application Penetration Test - As required by PCI PASS, ATW will perform an ethical hacking exercise of the application(s) being reviewed.

Reporting - ATW will develop the assessment report and identify areas of Compliance/Non-compliance with the program's best-practices. If the report is found to be fully compliant, then it will be submitted to the card association for review and acceptance as a PCI PASS compliant application.

Client Debrief – The compliance report is delivered to Comlink. Comlink then has the opportunity to comment on findings, request clarifications, or provide additional documentation on areas of non-compliance or remedied issues.

Remediation Assistance– In the event that the application is found to be non-compliant in any number of PCI PASS areas, ATW can provide remediation assistance. Using the experience in assisting a large number of application vendors to meet PCI PASS compliance, ATW will work with Comlink to address each non-compliant item and prepare for a second round of review.

2nd Application Review– The Remote (or on-site, if applicable) review of the application by an ATW security consultant following the PCI PASS assessment procedures dictated by the credit card associations.

Final Reporting– ATW will develop the assessment report and identify areas of Compliance/Non-compliance with the program's best-practices. If the report is found to be fully compliant, then it will be submitted to the card association for review and acceptance as a PCI PASS compliant application.

Kickoff Meeting

ATW will schedule a kickoff meeting. The kickoff meeting is typically a short, targeted call intended to explain the goals of the assessment to the participants, as well as to describe the assessment methodology and final deliverables. Typical client participants in this meeting will include the primary point of contact, lead developer(s), and a senior level representative. During the kickoff meeting, ATW will discuss the TrustedApp® process, arrange for copies of software or specialized hardware to be shipped to the testing labs, and receive a preliminary overview of the application from Comlink.

Information Gathering

ATW will work with Comlink to gather and analyze information on Comlink's application. During this phase of the assessment, ATW will conduct telephone interviews with system architects, application developers, database developers, and other members of the application team. ATW will examine applicable documentation, and may request a remote demonstration of application capabilities. The goal of this phase of work is to maximize our understanding of the application's functionality, data handling processes, and design parameters, before conducting application review portion of the assessment. Specific questions to be answered during this phase of work include the following:

- Brief description of the application - to be made available to the credit card associations upon completion of the PCI PASS assessment.
- Application Name and Version Number, Operating Systems supported, Operating Systems used for development and testing
- List of dependent third-party applications and development tools used during design, code development and application integration
- Functional design and technical design documentation including description of application's data handling processes, design schema(s), data logging and error handling behavior
- Data encryption implementation technique including integration with any 3rd party secure payment card database encryption application
- Payment card application interface document illustrating application interaction and data flow exchange with 3rd parties and merchant data networks

020503

- Transaction flow diagram illustrating the payment application's inputs, outputs to and from a merchant's network for payment card processing
- Description of payment application components that become part of the merchant's network or applications
- List of lab application testing tools, description of payment application test scripts and application test environment documentation for card processing and settlement
- Client implementation documentation including secure application integration procedures and recommendations for application integration in to merchant environment

RE: Freedom of Information Act request from Transcend dated June 28, 2006

The memo covers recommendations on documents that should be released to Transcend, the justification for the redaction of certain information contained in the responsive documents, and justification for withholding certain documents.

Background

The EAC received a Freedom of Information Act (FOIA) request from Transcend on July 3, 2006; the letter is dated June 28, 2006. Transcend requested (1) the full proposal submitted by The Creston Company, LLC d.b.a. Compass Languages for RFP 06-02 (RFQ 142611); (2) list of all offerors and the costs proposed for each; (3) Transcend's scores on each component of the evaluation criteria for the technical proposal and the scores of the Creston Company technical proposal.

Approach

In order to locate the responsive documents you sent an e-mail to all EAC staff on July 7, 2006. In the e-mail you asked for all responsive documents mentioned above. As a response to the e-mail I turned over a copy of the technical evaluations for Creston and Transcend, a copy of Creston's proposal to RFP 06-02 and a list of submitters to RFP 06-02.

Responsive Documents

A Federal agency cannot disclose proposals submitted to it in response to a solicitation request unless the proposal is incorporated by reference into a contract.<sup>1</sup> In this case the EAC issued a purchase order against a GSA Schedule contract. In a telephone discussion with Linda Dunbar at GSA on or about July 9, 2006; she explained that if the proposal is mentioned as part of the purchase order then it is "incorporated". On review of the SF 300

(a) A proposal in the possession or control of the Government, submitted in response to a competitive solicitation, shall not be made available to any person under the Freedom of Information Act. This prohibition does not apply to a proposal, or any part of a proposal, that is set forth or incorporated by reference in a contract between the Government and the contractor that submitted the proposal. (See 10 U.S.C. 2305(g) and 41 U.S.C. 253b(m).)

form for Creston it states "see attached for further description". A copy of the Creston proposal was attached, as such it is deemed incorporated. The FAR exception to release of proposals applies and the proposal (item 1) should be released.

RFP 06-02 was limited to GSA schedule vendors and the order for translation services was placed against the GSA schedule. I called the National GSA Information Center 800 number on July 21, 2006 and spoke to Nancy and was told that all vendors have access to other vendors postings. Creston's posting on the e-buy system is not working properly, but Leo Brinnkinmeyer of Creston reconfirmed that the prices Creston charged the EAC for the translation are the GSA schedule contract prices. The cost proposal should be released.

The EAC does not have a document responsive to Transcends second request but it does have an incomplete list of offerors, the winner Creston Company is not of the list. This list does not contain the price quotes. In a call to Deon, a Department of Justice FOIA Counselor, on July 21, 2006, she stated that as long as there is no competitive harm to releasing the incomplete list then the EAC can release the list. I do not see any competitive harm to releasing the list. This partial list (item 2) should be disclosed. The EAC is not required to create a document in response to a FOIA request, meaning the EAC does not have to add Creston or the price information to the list.

Redaction

The subcontractors names in the Creston proposal (item 1) should be redacted from the responsive documents based on FOIA exemption 4, which covers confidential commercial information such as names of key personnel and suppliers<sup>2</sup>. When Creston Company was informed about the FOIA request they asked that the names of their subcontractors not be revealed. Creston puts significant time and effort into evaluating and selecting their subcontractors. Divulging the names would put them at a disadvantage as other translating companies may attempt to steal their human capital. Creston makes a compelling argument. I recommend that the names of the translators be redacted to protect Creston's interest.

Withheld

The technical evaluations (item 3) should be withheld based on FOIA exemption 5, the deliberative process privilege. The privilege is designed to "prevent injury to the quality of agency decisions."<sup>3</sup> One of the goals of this exemption is to encourage open, frank discussions on matters of policy between subordinates and superiors.<sup>4</sup> In order for a document to be withheld as predecisional it must be "antecedent to the adoption of an agency policy."<sup>5</sup> It must be "a direct part of the deliberative process in that it makes recommendations or expresses opinions on legal or policy matters."<sup>6</sup> Technical evaluations of a Source Selection Board, a Board which does not have authority to make a final decision, are predecisional if the results are given to a Source Selection Authority

- Technical Evaluation of Creston's proposal in response to RFP 06-02 (2 pages)
- Technical Evaluation of Transcend's proposal in response to RFP 06-02 (2 pages)

Recommendation

The responsive documents identified should be turned over to Transcend with the recommended redactions; with exception for the documents identified under the deliberative process exception discussed above.

U.S. ELECTION ASSISTANCE COMMISSION
1225 New York Ave. NW - Suite 1100
Washington, DC 20005

March 10, 2006

Ms. Lillie Coney
Associate Director
Electronic Privacy Information Center (EPIC)
1718 Connecticut Ave, NW
Washington, DC 20009

Dear Ms. Coney:

This letter is in response to your two Freedom of Information Act (FOIA) requests received by the U. S. Election Assistance Commission (EAC) on February 3, 2006.

FOIA Request Number One

The first request sought records pertaining to all agency records concerning agency contracts awarded between July 9, 2004 and the date of your FOIA request, specifically documents regarding contracts involving employment of:

1. Britain Williams
2. Paul Craft
3. Current or former members of the Technical Guidelines Development Committee (TGDC)

No Records. After a review of its files the EAC has determined that it has no records pertaining to item 2.

Responsive records. Please find the responsive documents attached regarding Britain Williams (item 1). One three page document has been withheld. This document is covered by the Deliberative Process Privilege and exempted from release under 5 U.S.C. §522(b)(5). The document sought was a pre-decisional policy recommendation from EAC Counsel. Responsive records regarding item 3 (members of the TGDC), are similarly attached. The responsive records relate to Mr. Stephen Berger. Please note that your previous FOIA submissions also requested information pertaining to Stephen Berger, which EAC provided. Therefore, the information attached includes only new materials related to Stephen Berger that have been generated since your prior FOIA requests. Some of the communications responsive to request number one have been redacted in part. The removed portions contain personal information (such as home and e-mail addresses, bank accounts and Social Security Numbers). This redaction is required by 5 U.S.C. §522(b)(6).

FOIA Request Number Two

The second request you submitted sought records concerning the EAC contract with Kennesaw State University, and the Voluntary Voting System Guidelines (VVSG) public comment process. Specifically, you requested the following:

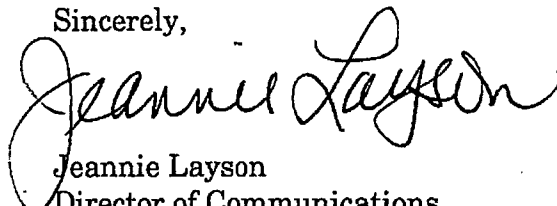

1. Database of comments filed with the EAC on the Voluntary Voting System Guidelines tracking and management system.
2. The individuals or organizations and their comments on the Voluntary Voting System Guidelines.
3. The records related to the assignment of reference numbers as listed in the Tracking Management System.
4. Records that define or explain the meaning of the "Accept/Reject" designation in the Section Comments Sorted by Section Number document EAC provided under an earlier FOIA request.

No Records. EAC has determined that it has no documents related to items 3 and 4. However, even though it is not required by FOIA, we would like to take the opportunity to provide an explanation for items 3 and 4. In regards to the assignment of reference numbers, they were assigned in chronological order automatically by the database system as the comments were received. Regarding the meaning of "Accept/Reject," every comment received was reviewed. If a comment was labeled "accept," the entire comment or part of the comment was incorporated into the formation of the final VVSG. If a comment was labeled "reject," it was because it was not germane to the VVSG, or it was the same or similar to other comments. There was a third category of comments, labeled "carry-over." These comments were not incorporated into the 2005 VVSG, but were considered germane to ongoing voting system guidelines work, and were submitted to the National Institute of Standards and Technology and the Technical Guidelines Development Committee for future consideration.

Responsive Records. Regarding items 1 and 2, this information is available to the public on the EAC website at www.eac.gov by clicking on the VVSG link.

The EAC has decided to waive the processing fees for your request. If you interpret any portion of this response as an adverse action, you may appeal it to the Election Assistance Commission. Your appeal must be in writing and sent to the address noted on the above letterhead. Any appeal submitted, must be postmarked no later than 60 calendar days from the date of this letter. Please include your reasons for reconsideration and attach a copy of this letter.

Sincerely,

Jeannie Layson
Director of Communications

Dear Ms. Thompson,

This letter constitutes a request under the Freedom of Information Act ("FOIA"), 5 U.S.C. § 552, and is submitted on behalf of the Electronic Privacy Information Center (EPIC).

We are seeking all agency records concerning agency contracts awarded between July 9, 2004 and the date of the receipt of this letter. The documents sought include, but are not limited to, documents regarding contracts, memoranda of understanding, and fee-for-service agreements in the employment of Brittain "Brit" Williams and Paul Craft by the U.S. Election Assistance Commission (EAC). We also seek documents regarding contracts, memoranda of understanding, fee-for-service agreements, and employment of other current or former members of EAC's Technical Guidelines Development Committee (TGDC).

For purposes of FOIA fee assessments, we request that EPIC be placed in the category of "news media" requester. The U.S. District Court for the District of Columbia has determined that EPIC qualifies for "news media," fee status, EPIC v. Department of Defense, 241 F.Supp.2d 5 (D.D.C. 2003). We also request a waiver of all processing fees, as release of this information will contribute significantly to the public's understanding of the activities and operation of the government.

Thank you for your consideration of this FOIA request. As the FOIA regulations provide, I look forward to your response within 20 working days. Should you require additional information, please contact me at 202-483-1140 x 111 or by e-mail at coney@epic.org.

Sincerely,

Dear Ms. Thompson,

This letter constitutes a request under the Freedom of Information Act ("FOIA"), 5 U.S.C. § 552, and is submitted on behalf of the Electronic Privacy Information Center (EPIC).

We are seeking the following records concerning the performance of the Election Assistance Commission's (EAC) agency contract number EAC-0544 awarded under no-bid circumstances to Kennecaw State University. The documents sought include:

- Database of Comments filed with the EAC on the Voluntary Voting System Guidelines found in the EAC's Voluntary Voting System Guidelines Tracking & Management System (see attachments). If possible, we request that you provide this on CD-Rom.
- The individuals or organizations and their comments on the Voluntary Voting System Guideline and the records related to the assignment of reference numbers as listed in the "Tracking Management System." (See attachment A).
- Records that define or explain the meaning of the "Accept/Reject" designation in the "Section Comments Sorted by Section Number" document provided by the agency under a FOIA request. (See attachment B).

For purposes of FOIA fee assessments, we request that EPIC be placed in the category of "news media" requester. ## EAC 06-003

Personal Services Contract for Intermittent Expert Services

Background

The Help America Vote Act of 2002 (HAVA) (42 U.S.C. §15301, et seq.), requires the U.S. Election Assistance Commission (EAC) to provide for the testing, certification, decertification, and recertification of voting systems. This mandate requires the Commission to create and manage a certification program for voting technologies. Moreover, HAVA requires the Commission to develop a program for accrediting independent, non-Federal testing laboratories. These accredited laboratories will test voting systems in accordance with the applicable Voluntary Voting Systems Guidelines and create a report which vendors will provide to the EAC for use in its system certification program.

Consistent with the HAVA requirements, above, the Commission is required to create a program that certifies voting systems. This program will be the first of its kind in the Federal government. The creation of this program is highly technical and specialized. Its development requires a high-level understanding of various technologies, standard setting, election administration and the certification process and procedure. Given these requirements, the EAC seeks an expert to assist the agency in creating its certification program.

Nature of the Appointment

The EAC enters into this contract pursuant to its authority to contract for consultants and experts under 5 U.S.C. §3109 (See 42 U.S.C. §15324(b)). As such, this contract is for personal services and creates a limited employment relationship. (See 5 C.F.R. §304). The initial appointment under this agreement shall be for the intermittent employment of an expert as defined by 5 C.F.R. §304.102(d) and (e). The expert (hereinafter "contractor") shall work as required by the EAC, without a regularly scheduled tour of duty. Under no circumstances may contractor work more than 858 hours during the one year term of this agreement (5 C.F.R. §304.103(c)(2)(i)).

Supervision and Management.

The EAC Manager and Contracting Officer's Representative (COR) for this effort is EAC Research Specialist Brian Hancock. Mr. Hancock will provide taskings, and authorize, supervise, review and approve all work and performance. He will also approve all labor hours on invoices and travel vouchers submitted for compensation under this agreement.

Period of Appointment.

The appointment under this contract is temporary and shall be for a period of one year.

020548

The contract period shall begin the first Sunday after the date of award. The contract may be extended and contractor reappointed for an additional year upon agreement of both parties. (See 5 C.F.R. §304.103(c)).

Compensation

The consultant shall be paid at a rate of $135 per hour. Contractor shall perform the services prescribed by this agreement as directed by the COR on an intermittent basis. However, in any event, the contractor shall not work more than [33 hours] in either of the 2 two week periods that make up each four week pay period. Further, as aforementioned, the contractor may not work more than 858 hours within the one year appointment. The dates of performance are flexible but shall be based upon the needs of the project and the EAC. COR shall provide contractor notice and authorization when performance under this agreement is required.

The consultant shall not incur overtime and is not eligible for premium pay under subchapter V of chapter 55 of title 5, United States Code. (5 C.F.R. §304.106(b)). The contractor, as an intermittent appointee, is also not entitled to sick or annual leave. Contractor will not receive compensation for Federal holidays when no work is performed. (5 C.F.R. §304.106(b)). The contractor shall not receive automatic adjustments of pay based upon 5 U.S.C. §5303. Contractor's pay rate may be increased at the sole discretion of the Contracting Officer, consistent with Federal regulations. Contractor may be reimbursed for other costs, such as local travel, consistent with this agreement if approved by the COR and submitted in writing via invoice.

Travel

The contractor may be required to travel on a periodic, as needed basis, throughout the duration of their appointment. All travel must be pre-approved by the EAC COR. The contractor will be reimbursed for hotel and ground transportation costs, proper incidental expenses, and per diem while on official, pre-approved EAC travel. Compensation for travel shall be made in accordance with the rates set forth in the Federal Travel Regulation.

Release of Information

As a result of the limited employment relationship created by this agreement, and pursuant to this agreement, you are required to follow all Federal laws and regulations as they relate to the release of agency documents and information. All research, information, documents and any other intellectual property (including but not limited to policies, procedures, manuals, and other work created at the request or otherwise while laboring for the EAC) shall be owned exclusively by the EAC, including copyright. All such work product shall be turned over to the EAC upon completion of your appointment term or as directed by the EAC. The EAC shall have exclusive rights over this material. You may not release government information or documents without the express written permission of the EAC.

Compensation Procedures

Compensation shall be made for work done (labor hours) by submitting invoices. (Model Invoice Attached). Invoices shall be submitted every four weeks from the date of award. A week shall be from Sunday to Saturday. The first pay period shall begin the Sunday after the date of award. As such, there will be 13 invoice periods. Invoices must be submitted every 4 weeks when compensable work under this contract has been performed. The COR will provide the contractor with an invoice schedule, identifying each of the 13 invoice periods. Invoices shall be delivered to the COR for review and approval. Each invoice shall:

- (1) Identify each day (by date) that work was performed and the number of labor hours performed that day. Briefly describe the nature of the work performed for that day;
- (2) State the total number of labor hours that have been expended under the agreement for the invoice period;
- (3) State the total number of hours worked for each of the two week periods that make up the total invoice time;
- (4) Provide a cumulative total of hours worked during the entire contract performance period (one year);
- (5) Submit, as a separate line item, all reimbursable travel costs for approval. The submission must provide dates of travel, receipts and other information as required by the Federal Travel Regulation.
- (6) Include the contractor's signature, affirming that information contained in the invoice is accurate.

Duty Location

Contractor's duty station shall be his/her home or place of business. The contractor has access to and shall supply common office equipment to include telecommunications, internet access, a computer, office supplies, facsimile machine and common workplace software (including Microsoft Word, Project and Excel). All other resources will be provided by the EAC as needed and at its discretion.

Notices

Any notice, given by any of the parties hereunder, shall be sufficient only if in writing and delivered in person or sent by telegraph, telegram, registered, or regular mail as follows:

To EAC: 1225 New York Avenue, Suite 1100, Washington, DC 20005, Attention: Contracting Officer Representative, Brian Hancock.

To Contractor: At EAC and at the Contractor's address shown on the Cover Page of this contract or to such other address as either of such parties shall designate by notice given as herein required. Notices hereunder shall be effective in accordance with this clause or on the effective date of the notice whichever is later.

Areas of Responsibility (Statement of Work)

Generally, contractor will provide EAC with technical advice and products based upon his or her expertise and experience with similar conformity assessment programs towards the goal of implementing the EAC Voting System Testing and Certification Program following, as closely as possible, all applicable ISO guidelines as adapted to the unique needs and resources of the EAC.

The contractor will work with EAC staff to identify and develop all necessary components of a voting system Certification and Testing Program. This program is expected to include the following components: Application procedure and processes; test plan review procedures and policy; testing report review procedures and policy; policies regarding qualified test review personnel; Manufacturer (Vendor) Qualification policies; Detailed procedures and processes for appeals, formal interpretations and the granting or revocation of certifications; and Procedures for expedited testing of component parts of a previously certified voting system. Contractor will be responsible for identifying any additional polices or procedures the certification program may require.

Contractor is also responsible for assisting EAC staff in the development of materials necessary for the successful implementation of the program. These materials must include all necessary applications, forms, letters, certification notices, tracking documents and any other documents deemed necessary to allow the EAC to effectively manage and implement all phases of this program.

Terms and Conditions

The following additional terms and conditions shall apply to this personal services contract:

a. Federal Acquisition Regulation Clauses Incorporated by Reference:

This contract incorporates the following clauses by reference with the same force and effect as if they were given in full text. Upon request, the Contracting Officer will make their full text available. These clauses may be obtained on the internet at <http://farsite.hill.af.mil/>.

- 52.203-7      Anti-Kickback Procedures (JUL 1995)
- 52.203-12    Limitation on Payments to Influence Certain Federal Transactions (Sept 2005)
- 52.215-2      Audit and Records -- Negotiation (Jun 1999)
- 52.224-1      Privacy Act Notification (APR 1984)

52.224-2	Privacy Act (APR 1984)
52.232-17	Interest (JUN 1996)
52.246-25	Limitation of Liability-Services (FEB 1997)
52.252-4	Alterations in Contract (APR 1984)

b. Federal Acquisition Regulation Clauses in Full Text:

Contract Termination (FAR 52.249-12)

The Government may terminate this contract at any time upon at least 15 days' written notice by the Contracting Officer to the Contractor. The Contractor, with the written consent of the Contracting Officer, may terminate this contract upon at least 15 days' written notice to the Contracting Officer. (End of Clause)

Site Visit (FAR 52.237-1)

Offerors or quoters are urged and expected to inspect the site where services are to be performed and to satisfy themselves regarding all general and local conditions that may affect the cost of contract performance, to the extent that the information is reasonably obtainable. In no event shall failure to inspect the site constitute grounds for a claim after contract award. (End of Clause)

Protection of Government Buildings, Equipment, and Vegetation (FAR 52.237-2)

The Contractor shall use reasonable care to avoid damaging existing buildings, equipment, and vegetation on the Government installation. If the Contractor's failure to use reasonable care causes damage to any of this property, the Contractor shall replace or repair the damage at no expense to the Government as the Contracting Officer directs. If the Contractor fails or refuses to make such repair or replacement, the Contractor shall be liable for the cost, which may be deducted from the contract price. (End of Clause)

Covenant Against Contingent Fees (FAR 52.203-5)

(a) The Contractor warrants that no person or agency has been employed or retained to solicit or obtain this contract upon an agreement or understanding for a contingent fee, except a bona fide employee or agency. For breach or violation of this warranty, the Government shall have the right to annul this contract without liability or, in its discretion, to deduct from the contract price or consideration, or otherwise recover, the full amount of the contingent fee.

(b) "Bona fide agency," as used in this clause, means an established commercial or selling agency, maintained by a contractor for the purpose of securing business, that neither exerts nor proposes to exert improper influence to solicit or obtain Government contracts nor holds itself out as being able to obtain any Government contract or contracts through improper influence.

"Bona fide employee," as used in this clause, means a person, employed by a contractor and subject to the contractor's supervision and control as to time, place, and manner of performance, who neither exerts nor proposes to exert improper influence to solicit or obtain Government contracts nor holds itself out as being able to obtain any Government contract or contracts through improper influence.

"Contingent Fee," as used in this clause, means any commission, percentage, brokerage, or other fee that is contingent upon the success that a person or concern has in securing a Government contract.

"Improper influence," as used in this clause, means any influence that induces or tends to induce a Government employee or officer to give consideration or to act regarding a Government contract on any basis other than the merits of the matter.
(End of Clause)

Disputes (FAR 52.233-1), Alternate I

(a) This contract is subject to the Contract Disputes Act of 1978, as amended (41 U.S.C. 601-613).

(b) Except as provided in the Act, all disputes arising under or relating to this contract shall be resolved under this clause.

(c) "Claim," as used in this clause, means a written demand or written assertion by one of the contracting parties seeking, as a matter of right, the payment of money in a sum certain, the adjustment or interpretation of contract terms, or other relief arising under or relating to this contract. However, a written demand or written assertion by the Contractor seeking the payment of money exceeding $100,000 is not a claim under the Act until certified. A voucher, invoice, or other routine request for payment that is not in dispute when submitted is not a claim under the Act. The submission may be converted to a claim under the Act, by complying with the submission and certification requirements of this clause, if it is disputed either as to liability or amount or is not acted upon in a reasonable time.

(d) (1) A claim by the Contractor shall be made in writing and, unless otherwise stated in this contract, submitted within 6 years after accrual of the claim to the Contracting Officer for a written decision. A claim by the Government against the Contractor shall be subject to a written decision by the Contracting Officer.

(i) The contractor shall provide the certification specified in paragraph (d)(2)(iii) of this clause when submitting any claim exceeding $100,000.

(ii) The certification requirement does not apply to issues in controversy that have not been submitted as all or part of a claim.

(iii) The certification shall state as follows: "I certify that the claim is made in good faith; that the supporting data are accurate and complete to the best of my knowledge and belief; that the amount requested accurately reflects the contract adjustment for which the Contractor believes the Government is liable; and that I am duly authorized to certify the claim on behalf of the Contractor."

(3) The certification may be executed by any person duly authorized to bind the Contractor with respect to the claim.

(e) For Contractor claims of $100,000 or less, the Contracting Officer must, if requested in writing by the Contractor, render a decision within 60 days of the request. For Contractor-certified claims over $100,000, the Contracting Officer must, within 60 days, decide the claim or notify the Contractor of the date by which the decision will be made.

(f) The Contracting Officer's decision shall be final unless the Contractor appeals or files a suit as provided in the Act.

(g) If the claim by the Contractor is submitted to the Contracting Officer or a claim by the Government is presented to the Contractor, the parties, by mutual consent, may agree to use alternative dispute resolution (ADR). If the Contractor refuses an offer for ADR, the Contractor shall inform the Contracting Officer, in writing, of the Contractor's specific reasons for rejecting the offer.

(h) The Government shall pay interest on the amount found due and unpaid from

(1) the date that the Contracting Officer receives the claim (certified, if required); or

(2) the date that payment otherwise would be due, if that date is later, until the date of payment.

With regard to claims having defective certifications, as defined in FAR 33.201, interest shall be paid from the date that the Contracting Officer initially receives the claim. Simple interest on claims shall be paid at the rate, fixed by the Secretary of the Treasury as provided in the Act, which is applicable to the period during which the Contracting Officer receives the claim and then at the rate applicable for each 6-month period as fixed by the Treasury Secretary during the pendency of the claim.

- (i) The Contractor shall proceed diligently with performance of this contract, pending final resolution of any request for relief, claim, appeal, or action arising under or relating to the contract, and comply with any decision of the Contracting Officer. (End of Clause)

Availability of Funds for the Next Fiscal Year

Funds are not presently available for performance under this contract beyond September 30, 2006. The Government's obligation for performance of this contract beyond that date is contingent upon the availability of appropriated funds from which payment for contract purposes can be made. No legal liability on the part of the Government for any payment may arise for performance under this contract beyond September 30, 2006, until funds are made available to the Contracting Officer for performance and until the Contractor receives notice of availability, to be confirmed in writing by the Contracting Officer. TALLY VOTE MEMORANDUM

September 15, 2005

TO: EAC Commissioners

FROM:  Tom Wilkey, Executive Director
U.S. Election Assistance Commission

SUBJECT: Election Management Guidelines Contracts

BACKGROUND

On June 29 the Election Assistance Commission published its proposed 2005 Voluntary Voting System Guidelines for public comment. These guidelines update and augment the 2002 Voting Systems Standards. The first set of standards for voting machines was promulgated in 1990. While there have been three editions so far of guidelines for voting equipment, there is no companion document that covers the election administration and management aspects of the registration and voting process. It is well known that deficiencies in procedures can have just as much impact on the enfranchisement of voters and the outcome of elections as the functioning of the voting machines.

For many years, the Voting Systems Board of the National Association of State Election Directors (NASED) has been calling for the development of election management guidelines to complement the technical standards. EAC and NASED have agreed to cooperatively undertake this effort over the course of the next two to three years to create a comprehensive set of guidelines for use by local and state election officials. The approach will be to develop a comprehensive set of topics, and then to develop materials on a modular basis so that products can be distributed to the election community as they are completed. We have targeted the 2008 election cycle for completion of the effort.

To get this process underway, EAC is entering into three contracts: one with NASED for the purpose of providing administrative support for the project; one with Ms. Connie Schmidt, a former county election administrator now consulting on election administration issues, to serve as a project Co-Manager; and one with Dr. Britain Williams, member of the NASED Voting Systems Board and voting systems certification consultant to the States of Georgia, Maryland, Virginia, and Pennsylvania, to serve as a project Co-Manager. The period of performance for this initial set of contracts is from September 2005 through December 2006. Prior to this date, an assessment of the work effort remaining to be completed will be performed and follow-on contracts scoped appropriately.

ROLES AND RESPONSIBILITIES

NASED will assemble a Management Guidelines Working Group of experienced state and local election officials to provide subject matter expertise to carry out this effort. EAC is contracting with NASED to provide overall direction and management oversight for this project in coordination with the EAC. NASED will also provide administrative support to the Working Group and to the two Co-Managers of the project, and to reimburse travel and other authorized for Working Group participants. The NASED funding may also be used for technical writing services and minor research activities that might be required to support the project.

RECOMMENDATION

Approve the award of contracts EAC 05-56, EAC 05-57, and EAC 05-58 to Ms. Connie Schmidt, Dr. Britain Williams, and NASED respectively. The amount of each Co-Manager contract is $126,000. The amount of the NASED contract is $100,000. Copies of these contracts are attached along with the resumes of Ms. Schmidt and Dr. Williams.

MEMORANDUM FOR THE RECORD

Date: November 17, 2005

From: Gracia Hillman, Chair
On Behalf of the Commission

Re: Ratification of Personal Services Contract with Dr. Britain Williams (EAC Contract No. 05-57)

The purpose of this memorandum is to document the ratification of the above referenced personal services agreement. Ratification is the process proscribed to approve, by an official with the authority to do so, an agreement that was not binding on an agency because the Government representative who made it lacked authority to enter into the agreement on behalf of the government (unauthorized commitment). (FAR 1.602-3(a)). While personal services agreements are based upon EAC's authority to contract for consultants per 5 U.S.C. §3109 (See 42 U.S.C. §15324(b)) and not the Federal Acquisition Regulation (FAR), the FAR's ratification provisions provide useful guidance for the action and its documentation.

Background. Information was brought to the attention of the Commission late in the week of October 10. This information suggested that communication of award for the above referenced agreement may not have been made by an individual with authority to bind the government. As such, the agreement may be viewed as an unauthorized commitment. The above referenced personal services agreement was to obtain project management services to plan for the development and create election management guidelines. For many years, the Voting Systems Board of the National Association of State Election Directors (NASSED) has been calling for the development of election management guidelines to complement the technical standards. EAC and NASSED have agreed to cooperatively undertake this effort over the course of the next two to three years to create a comprehensive set of guidelines for use by local and state election officials.

The Commission has considered Dr. Britain William's qualifications and found him to be uniquely qualified through experience and education. (Attachment "1", Resume; and Attachment "2", Administrative Appointment Memorandum). The original agreement between the parties is evidence by the original statement of work and e-mails between the contractor and EAC employees (Attachment "3", Statement of Work and e-mails). The decision to award the contract was made by full vote of the EAC

Commissioners on September 19, 2005 (Attachment "4", Tally Vote Certification and Memorandum).

Award was communicated by an EAC employee immediately following the Commission's vote to award the contract. (Attachment "5", Statement from Brian Hancock). The award was announced by the Commission on the record at a public meeting on September 27, 2005. Work began on the contract following award notification. This was evidenced by a kickoff meeting between EAC employees and the contractor which took place on September 22, 2005. (Attachment "6", Conference Call Notes). Also, the contractor coordinated with NASED Voting Systems Board members to identify state and local election officials qualified to serve on a working group. The consultant has similarly begun work to develop an outline of topics for the management guidelines. (Attachment "5", Statement from Brian Hancock). Ultimately, ratification of this agreement will result in the Commission receiving all of the deliverables identified in the Statement of Work.

Funding was available in fiscal year 2005 (FY 05) for the services at issue. These FY 05 funds remain available. The funds were in fact obligated to the agreement, in the amount of $126,000.00 on September 21, 2005. This was done under the belief that a legal obligation had been created. The agreement approved for award by the Commissioners had a total estimated cost of $126,000.00.

Requirements. FAR 1.602-3 (b) and (c) set federal ratification policy and requirements. These sections note:

- (1) Agencies should take action to prevent the need for ratification actions. Ratification procedures should not be used in a manner that encourages unauthorized commitments being made by government personnel. (FAR 1.602-3(b)(1)).
- (2) The head of an agency's contracting activity, unless the authority is designated higher, may ratify an unauthorized agreement. This authority may be delegated with limitations. (FAR 1.602-3(b)(2) & (3)).
- (3) Agencies should process unauthorized commitments consistent with FAR 1.602-3. Such actions should not be forwarded to the General Accounting Office for resolution unless they are subject to a Contracts Dispute Act Claim or are not otherwise ratifiable under the subsection. (FAR 1.602-3(b)(4)-(5) & (d)).
- (4) Consistent with FAR 1.602-3(c)(1)-(7), ratification authority may be exercised only when:
  - a. Supplies or services have been provided to and accepted by the Government, or the Government otherwise has obtained or will obtain a benefit resulting from performance of the unauthorized commitment;
  - b. The ratifying official has the authority to enter into a contractual commitment;

020563

- c. The resulting contract would otherwise have been proper if made by an appropriate contracting officer;
- d. The contracting officer reviewing the unauthorized commitment determines the price to be fair and reasonable;
- e. The contracting officer recommends payment and legal counsel concurs in the recommendation, unless agency procedures expressly do not require such concurrence; and
- f. Funds are available and were available at the time the unauthorized commitment was made.

Analysis. The commitment at issue began as a routine contracting effort. EAC is an agency specifically authorized by statute to enter into personal services contracts under 5 U.S.C. §3109. See HAVA Section 204(b). Issues regarding the agreement's unauthorized nature arose near the end of the award process. While the contract authority (Commissioners) properly took action to make an award determination, they relied on EAC employees to communicate this fact to the contractor. In doing so, the Commission failed to realize that it is the communication of acceptance and award by the appropriate person that serves to obligate the government. EAC personnel seem to have viewed the Commissioners' recorded vote as granting them the authority to communicate award in a manner that would obligate the agency. The bottom line is that the EAC employee believed his efforts to notify the contractor of award obligated the EAC by accepting the contractor's proposal. Based upon this, the contractor began performance on the agreement and the EAC has and will receive benefit.

Looking specifically at the requirements for ratification noted in FAR 1.602-3(c) and the facts outlined, above, the Commission finds:

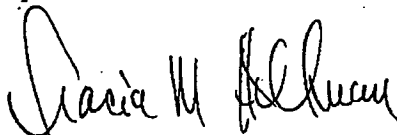

- a. Services Accepted or Benefit Received. Services under this agreement have been accepted by the government. Moreover the government has and will obtain needed benefit from the services provided and upon completion of the unauthorized agreement.
- b. Contract Authority. The undersigned, as the chair of the EAC, has the authority to contract on behalf of the agency. Furthermore, the Chair's signature represents the decision of the full Commission to take this ratification action. This is documented by the attached Tally Vote. (Attachment "7", Tally Vote). EAC's four Commissioners have the legal authority to contract and otherwise bind the agency per the specific authority of the Help America Vote Act (42 U.S.C. §15325(e)) and, generally, as agency heads (see FAR 1.601).
- c. Contract Otherwise Proper. This agreement, having previously been initiated, processed, and awarded by full vote of the Commission was proper, but for the unauthorized communication of award made by an individual without authority to bind the agency. As stated previously, EAC is specifically authorized by statute to enter into personal services contracts. HAVA Section 204(b). This agreement falls within the statute and regulations governing personal services contracts. See specifically 5 U.S.C. 3109 and 5 CFR Part 304.

- d. Price Fair and Reasonable. The rate at which this contractor is providing services is within the amount allowable under 5 CFR Part 304.105. In addition, the rate provided in the agreement is lower than his regular rate of billing. (Attachment "2", Administrative Appointment Memorandum).
- e. Payment of Funds Recommended. After consultation with the General Counsel, the Commission recommends payment of funds.
- f. Funds Available. Consistent with the facts noted above, the Commission finds that funds are available and were available at the time of the unauthorized commitment.

Prevention. Unfortunately, there are a number of agreements which have suffered from the same deficiencies as discussed above. FAR 1.602(b)(1) makes it clear that agencies should take steps to prevent the need for ratifications and avoid using the process in a way that would encourage unauthorized commitments. The EAC must determine why these unauthorized commitments occurred and how to prevent them in the future. An initial review of EAC's contract process showed deficiencies in (1) the contracting procedure, (2) training of employees on contracting process and procedure, (3) coordination with the General Counsel's office, and (4) communication amongst contracting officers and staff that resulted in an unauthorized commitment. No new contracting should occur until issues surrounding the process have been resolved. EAC is in the process of negotiating with another government agency to handle its procurement process, thereby relieving the EAC staff of the responsibility of processing these procurements.

Contract # EAC 05-57 - Project Management Services to Assist EAC and NASED with the Development of Election Management Guidelines

Background

On June 29 the Election Assistance Commission published its proposed 2005 Voluntary Voting System Guidelines for public comment. These guidelines update and augment the 2002 Voting Systems Standards. The first set of standards for voting machines was promulgated in 1990. While there have been three editions so far of guidelines for voting equipment, there is no companion document that covers the election administration and management aspects of the registration and voting process. It is well known that deficiencies in procedures can have just as much impact on the enfranchisement of voters and the outcome of elections as the functioning of the voting machines.

For many years, the Voting Systems Board of the National Association of State Election Directors (NASED) has been calling for the development of election management guidelines to complement the technical standards. EAC and NASED have agreed to cooperatively undertake this effort over the course of the next two to three years to create a comprehensive set of guidelines for use by local and state election officials.

Roles and Responsibilities

Project management of the Election Management Guidelines effort will be shared by two Co-Managers. It is the responsibility of these individuals to devise a division of labor so that it is clear which areas each Co-Manager will have lead responsibility for, and the workload is approximately evenly divided. NASED will assemble a Working Group of experienced state and local election officials to provide subject matter expertise and work under the direction of the Co-Managers. NASED will provide administrative support services for the Co-Managers and the Working Group. NASED will cover reimbursement for travel and other authorized expenses for the Working Group members. The expenses of the Co-Managers will be paid through their individual contracts. The following tasks will be performed by the Co-Managers.

Tasks

1. Develop a comprehensive outline of topics. Drawing on their own knowledge and experience, and in consultation with the NASED Management Guidelines Working Group, the Co-Managers will develop a comprehensive outline for the Management Guidelines document. This outline should appropriately integrate with the 2005 EAC Voluntary Voting System Guidelines. This outline shall be coordinated with the NASED Executive Committee and the approved outline provided to the EAC.

2. Prioritize topics and create work plan. The Co-Managers will prioritize the topics based on degree of perceived existing deficiencies, anticipated high return in administration improvement, and other relevant criteria. The NASED Executive Committee will recommend criteria for use in prioritizing topics. In particular EAC suggests that topics that could be completed in time for use in the 2006 elections be given a top priority rating.

Following approval of the prioritized list by EAC and the NASED Executive Committee, the Co-Managers will create a work plan, including a timeline for the development of guidelines for each topic. While this effort is expected to take several years to complete, it is EAC's intention to proceed with the work on a modular basis, so that products on particular topics can be distributed to the election community as soon as they are completed. The work plan should be structured to accommodate this approach. The work plan should be provided to EAC following NASED Executive Committee review.

3. Manage the guidelines development effort. Following approval of the work plan by EAC and the NASED Executive Committee, the Co-Managers shall make work assignments to members of the Working Group and oversee the development of guidelines for each of the identified topics. It is anticipated that this work will draw heavily on documented best practices and procedures already in use in election jurisdictions around the country. The Co-Managers can request NASED to draw on their project funds to cover expenses to convene Working Group meetings and teleconferences; reimburse Working Group members for expenses associated with meetings, conduct limited research efforts, acquire technical writing services to assist with documentation, and other supporting services as required.

4. Report status of work effort to EAC Executive Director and NASED Executive Committee. The Co-Managers shall provide a monthly progress report that briefly describes the work performed, identifies issues and their resolution, indicates progress against the timeline, and reports on funds utilized. Periodically, the Co-Managers and the Working Group will be expected to meet with the Commission and the NASED Executive Committee to brief their activities and progress. There is also a requirement to make periodic presentations to the EAC Board of Advisors and Standards Board.

Period of Performance

The period of performance for this initial work effort is from the date of award until December 31, 2006. It is EAC's view that it will require a longer period to complete a comprehensive set of management guidelines. A program review will be conducted three months before the end date of this contract to evaluate the progress made in this initial work effort along with an assessment of the work remaining. It is anticipated that a follow-on contract will be awarded after this review, when more information is available to scope the completion of the effort.

Schedule of Deliverables

NOTES FROM CONFERENCE CALL - September 22, 2005

EAC VOTING SYSTEMS ADMINISTRATIVE MANAGEMENT GUIDELINES

Attendance: Brian Hancock, Carol Paquette, Linda Lamone, Connie Schmidt

Carol indicated that final contracts will be sent out next week. Any questions, please contact Brian.

The EAC's timeline extends to 2008 for this project. The current contract is through December 2006. The program will be reviewed around October 2006. They will look at what work has been accomplished at that point and what remains and then new contracts for completion of the management guidelines will be discussed.

The goal is completion of the guidelines prior to the 2008 election.

First step is the appointment of the working group members. That group will develop an outline of topics. From that list, any "burning" issues for 2006 will be developed first. The priority is best practices or guidelines for 2006 elections.

Final product will probably be completed in chapters. If there is a relationship to the Voting Systems Guidelines, it should be noted.

The existing Voting Systems Guidelines have an appendix with miscellaneous best practices regarding accessibility and security. They would like all best practices taken from the VSG relating to election administration and placed within the administrative management guideline document.

The project work document includes dollars for NASED to provide administrative support to the project co-managers and the working group.

There is a need to develop a budget for the NASED dollars as it must be allocated for travel expenses for the working group, administrative support and any necessary research projects.

Tom Wilkey will be briefing the TGDC members on this project at their upcoming meeting in Boulder.

Connie and Brit will pull together a draft outline for the first working group meeting. Linda will communicate with Sandy for confirmation of working group members. Potential meeting dates discussed were 10/13-14; 10/20-21; or 10/27-28. The meeting will last 1 ½ days. Brian will email the availability of the EAC office as the meeting location.

Re: Contract with Dr. Britain Williams (EAC Contract No. 05-57) and Connie Schmidt (EAC Contract No. 05-56): Election Management Guidelines Project

My name is Brian Hancock and I serve as an Election Research Manager at the Election Assistance Commission (EAC). I manage the above referenced project. In the summer of 2005, the Commission determined that the creation of Election Management Guidelines was an agency priority. The management guidelines are needed to compliment the Voluntary Voting System Guidelines that were in development. For many years, the Voting Systems Board of the National Association of State Election Directors (NASED) has been calling for the development of election management guidelines to complement the technical standards. EAC and NASED have agreed to cooperatively undertake this effort over the course of the next two to three years to create a comprehensive set of guidelines for use by local and state election officials. EAC management determined that two consultants with relevant education and experience would be needed to manage the project. The individuals would report to me as the research manager overseeing the project.

Dr. Britain Williams and Ms. Connie Schmidt were soon identified as project managers due to their excellent qualifications, experience and desire to be a part of the project. A contract was drafted and agreed to Dr. Williams and Ms. Schmidt. The Commission voted to appoint the two as personal Services Contractors on September 16, 2005. Following the Commissioner's vote and pursuant to instruction, I contacted Dr. Williams and Ms. Schmidt to inform them that they had been awarded the contract.

The two began work on the project immediately. We held a kick-off meeting on September 22, 2005 to discuss the project, set short-term goals and assign duties. Ms. Schmidt documented the meeting and sent copies to all parties via email. Further, Dr. Williams and Ms. Schmidt coordinated with NASED Voting Systems Board members to identify state and local election officials potentially qualified to serve on a working group. The consultants have also begun work to develop and outline of topics for the management guidelines.

As an alternative to offering a prompt payment discount in conjunction with the offer, offerors awarded contracts may include prompt payment discounts on individual invoices.

U.S. ELECTION ASSISTANCE COMMISSION
ADMINISTRATIVE DETERMINATION: SELECTION OF PERSONAL
SERVICES CONTRACTORS AND THEIR RATE OF PAY
(Contracts EAC 05-56 & 57)

Background

On June 29, 2005, the Election Assistance Commission (EAC) published its proposed 2005 Voluntary Voting System Guidelines for public comment. These guidelines update and augment the 2002 Voting Systems Standards. The first set of standards for voting machines was promulgated in 1990. While there have been three editions of guidelines for voting equipment in the past 15 years, there is no companion document that covers the election administration and management aspects of the registration and voting process. It is well known that deficiencies in procedures can have just as much impact on the enfranchisement of voters and the outcome of elections as the functioning of the voting machines.

For many years, the Voting Systems Board of the National Association of State Election Directors (NASED) has called for the development of a set of election management guidelines to complement the technical standards for voting equipment. The EAC has also identified this activity as a high priority agency requirement. Among the stated purposes in the preamble to the Help America Vote Act (HAVA) is "... to establish the Election Assistance Commission ... to establish minimum election administration standards for States and units of local government responsible for the administration of Federal elections ...". In addition, Subtitle C of the Act, "Studies and Other Activities to Promote Effective Administration of Federal Elections," charges the Commission with conducting a wide variety of studies having to do with the administration of elections.

Consequently, EAC and NASED have agreed to cooperatively undertake the development of a comprehensive set of election management guidelines that will be promulgated for use by local and state election officials. NASED will work with the EAC to identify qualified state and local election officials who are willing to serve on a working group. These individuals will provide technical expertise and share various state best practices with the EAC. To manage this project, the EAC needs two experienced consultants to serve as Co-Managers for the project.

Qualifications

In order for this work to have credibility and be accepted by the election community, it needs to be carried out by members of that community, who possess the requisite knowledge and experience. In addition, there is no established academic or commercial source of supply for this work. The administration of elections is very specialized subject matter, knowledge of which is mostly gained through on-the-job training. This management guidelines effort is the first attempt to comprehensively document best practices and procedures for this field of endeavor.

To manage this project, The EAC needs two consultants to serve as Co-Project Managers for the project: one to focus on procedures related to the use of voting equipment, and one to focus on procedures for all other aspects of election administration. The individuals identified by the Commission to meet these needs are Dr. Britain Williams and Ms. Connie Schmidt, respectively. These individuals possess the unique mix of professional services required to meet EAC's needs, including: subject matter expertise regarding state and local election practices and procedures; State and Federal laws, regulations, administrative guidelines, etc. governing election administration in the 55 jurisdictions covered by HAVA; election administration customs and practices; the development of election management best practices; knowledge of the proposed EAC Voluntary Voting Systems Guidelines, and project management experience. This work also requires a demonstrated ability to work effectively with federal, state and local election officials.

Ms. Schmidt instituted many nationally-recognized and award-winning innovations and best practices as Election Commissioner of Johnson County, Kansas. These include the 1998 Digital Government Award of Excellence, the 1999 NACO Achievement Award for its bi-state public/private partnership program to recruit election workers, 2001 NACO Achievement Award for Civic Education and Public Information, 2002 NACIO Superior Award for her Congressional testimony on national election reform, and several NACIO Meritorious Awards in 2004 for publications on a variety of election administration topics. She has chaired the Professional Education Program Certification Board for The Election Center and served as a member of the NASED Voting Systems Standards Board. In December 2004 she received the National Association of Secretaries of State Medallion Award for outstanding service to American democracy. Her focus will be election management practices other than those associated with voting systems.

Dr. Williams has served on many national-level committees and boards including the Technical Guidelines Development Committee for the Voluntary Voting System Guidelines and the NASED Voting Systems Board. He chairs the ITA (test lab) Technical Subcommittee of the latter. From 1984 to the present he has worked as a consultant to the State of Georgia Secretary of State, the State Election Director, and local election officials to conduct certification and acceptance testing of electronic voting systems. He played a central role in establishing the State of Georgia's process for voting system acquisition, acceptance, operations and maintenance, which evolved into the Center for Election Systems, the only institution of its kind in the country. His focus will be the election management practices associated with the use of voting systems.

Determination that Pay Rate is Fair and Reasonable

Each of the Co-Managers will be compensated at an hourly rate of $120 and reimbursed for travel and other appropriate expenses. This is the rate at which Ms. Schmidt has recently been paid for comparable work on two projects for the State of Maryland. This is a discounted rate from Dr. Williams' established rate of $150 per hour. These hourly rates are in line with the rates being paid by EAC for consultants with comparable levels of experience and education.

Conclusion

Dr. Williams and Ms. Schmidt are well and uniquely qualified to serve as EAC consultants on the Election Management Guidelines Project. Further, their labor rate is fair and reasonable.

Contract # EAC 05-57 - Project Management Services to Plan for the Development and Create Election Management Guidelines

Background

On June 29 the Election Assistance Commission published its proposed 2005 Voluntary Voting System Guidelines for public comment. These guidelines update and augment the 2002 Voting Systems Standards. The first set of standards for voting machines were promulgated in 1990. While there have been three editions so far of guidelines for voting equipment, there is no companion document that covers the election administration and management aspects of the registration and voting process. It is well known that deficiencies in procedures can have just as much impact on the enfranchisement of voters and the outcome of elections as the functioning of the voting machines.

For many years, the Voting Systems Board of the National Association of State Election Directors (NASED) has been calling for the development of election management guidelines to complement the technical standards. EAC and NASED have agreed to cooperatively undertake this effort over the course of the next two to three years to create a comprehensive set of guidelines for use by local and state election officials. The purpose of the personal services contract is to obtain a project manager with significant experience in election administration to oversee the process of developing guidelines on Federal election management. This consultant will be required to manage the process and develop the guidelines in cooperation with another consultant (co-manager) and a working group of election officials from NASED.

Nature of the Appointment

The EAC enters into this contract pursuant to its authority to contract for consultants under 5 U.S.C. §3109 (See 42 U.S.C. §15324(b)). As such, this contract is for personal services and creates a limited employment relationship. (See 5 C.F.R. §304). As a result of this unique relationship, and pursuant to this agreement, you are required to follow all Federal laws and regulations as they relate to the release of agency documents and information. All research, information, documents and any other intellectual property (including but not limited to policies, procedures, manuals, and other work created at the request or otherwise while laboring for the EAC) shall be owned exclusively by the EAC, including copyright. All such work product shall be turned over to the EAC upon completion of your appointment term or as directed by the EAC. The EAC shall have exclusive rights over this material. You may not release government information or documents without the express permission of the EAC.

Supervision and Management.

The EAC Manager for this effort is Brian Hancock, EAC Research Specialist. Mr. Hancock will provide taskings, and supervise, review and approve all work and performance. He will also approve all labor hours on invoices and travel vouchers

Areas of Responsibility

Consultant will share project management of the Election Management Guidelines effort with another consultant selected by the EAC. The consultant will be responsible for working with and sharing responsibility with this co-manager. The consultant will also be required to work with a working group of election officials. NASED will be responsible, under separate agreement with the EAC, to assemble working groups of experienced state and local election officials as required to provide EAC subject matter expertise. The consultants shall work with NASED to create a working group(s), lead the group(s), collect and document its work product and use this work product to create the Management Guidelines. Consultants will be responsible for:

1. Developing a comprehensive outline of topics. Drawing on consultant's own knowledge and experience, and in consultation with the NASED Working Group, develop a comprehensive subject matter outline for the Election Management Guidelines document. This outline should appropriately integrate with the 2005 EAC Voluntary Voting System Guidelines.

2. Prioritizing topics and creating a work plan. The consultants will prioritize the topics based on degree of perceived existing deficiencies, anticipated high return in administration improvement, and other relevant criteria. Topics that could be completed in time for use in the 2006 elections should be given a top priority rating.

Based upon the priorities developed, consultants will create a work plan, including a timeline for the development of guidelines for each topic. This work plan and timeline are essential products as they will set forth the long-term plan for the completion of the entire guidelines project. As such, the work plan and timeline are expected to project efforts well into the future. Given the long term nature of this process, it is EAC's intention to focus efforts on subject matter modules so that products on particular topics can be completed piecemeal and be distributed to the election community as soon as they are completed. The work plan will be structured to accommodate this approach.

3. Developing draft guidelines. Following approval of the work plan, the Consultants/EAC shall coordinate with NASED to convene a subject matter Working Group. The EAC can request NASED to convene Working Group meetings and teleconferences and conduct limited research efforts. The Consultants shall manage, lead and task these working groups. Ultimately, the Consultants shall be responsible for creating draft guideline sections for subject matters identified in the working plan. These important drafts shall be presented to the EAC for review and adoption as guidance to state election officials. It is anticipated that this work will draw heavily on documented best practices and procedures already in use in election jurisdictions around the country.

4. Creating a final work plan and report. An import objective in this agreement is the creation of a final, practical work plan that may be used by the EAC as a long-term tool to complete its Election Management Guidelines. Given this fact, prior to the end of the submitted for compensation under this agreement.

Period of Appointment, Compensation and Travel.

The period of appointment under this contract shall be one year. The appointment shall constitute intermittent appointment (without a regularly scheduled tour of duty) per 5 C.F.R. §340.401(b). The consultant shall not incur overtime. The consultant shall not receive automatic adjustments of pay based upon 5 U.S.C. 5303. The consultant is not eligible for sick and annual leave, nor compensation for work performed on federal holidays. The consultant shall be paid at a rate of $120 per hour. The consultant is expected to work as needed during the one year appointment period, however, the consultant shall not work more than 37 hours in any given two week period. Further, the consultant may not work more than 1,040 hours within the one year appointment. The dates of performance are flexible but shall be based upon the needs of the project and the EAC.

Consultant's duty station shall be his/her home or place of business. The consultant has access to and shall supply common office equipment to include telecommunications, internet access, a computer, office supplies, facsimile machine and common workplace software (including Microsoft Word, Project and Excel). Other resources will be provided by the EAC as needed and at its discretion.

The consultant is required to travel on a periodic, as needed basis, throughout the duration of their appointment. Travel and compensation shall be in accordance with Federal Travel Regulations. All travel must be pre-approved by the EAC per Federal Travel Regulations and EAC policy. The consultant will be reimbursed, at the Federal government rates, for hotel and ground transportation costs, proper incidental expenses, and per diem while on official, pre-approved EAC travel.

Compensation Procedures

Compensation shall be made for work done (labor hours) by submitting invoices. Invoices shall be submitted every four weeks from the date of award. A week shall be from Sunday to Saturday. The first pay period shall begin the Sunday prior to the date of award. As such, there will be 14 invoice periods. Invoices must be submitted every 4 weeks even if no work was performed. Invoices shall state the number of labor hours that have been expended under the agreement. The invoice must show the number of hours worked for each of the two week periods that make up the total invoice time. It must also note the total number of days on which the work was done. As noted above, the contractor may not invoice more than 37 labor hours per two week period. Furthermore, invoices shall report a cumulative total of hours worked during the contract performance period (one year). Invoices shall be delivered to Mr. Brian Hancock for review and approval, U.S. Election Assistance Commission, 1225 New York Avenue, N.W., Suite 1100, Washington DC 20005. Compensation for travel shall be submitted by travel voucher consistent with Federal Travel Regulation and EAC requirements.

agreement, consultant will be tasked with creating a report and a final version of the work plan. Using their experiences over the last year, consultants will amend the initial work plan and timeline to reflect realities inherent in the project. The goals are to provide a plan and timeline that are realistic and as accurate as possible. The final report will provide guidance to the EAC regarding the most effective and efficient processes and practices to use in researching and developing Guidelines in the future. The report will recommend a Guidelines development process. Ultimately, the plan, timeline and report will be used by the EAC to set long-term project goals and allocate staff and resources.

I have made arrangements with Bert to send this to Tom via Federal Express. I have asked that all documents be returned to you upon approval and signature for processing the needed financial paperwork to fund this agreement.

Thank you for your assistance. If you have any questions, please let me know.

ADMINISTRATIVE DETERMINATION: SELECTION OF PERSONAL SERVICES
CONTRACTORS AND THEIR RATE OF PAY
(Contract 06-03, H. Stephen Berger)

Background

Section 231 of HAVA requires EAC to provide for the testing, certification, decertification and recertification of voting system hardware and software by accredited test laboratories. To carry out this mandate, EAC must define the laboratory accreditation process that will follow receipt of NIST recommendation for accreditation, and the EAC certification process. The system certification process should include the following elements: 1) submission and technical review of both voting system test plans and test reports, 2) qualification, application and training requirements for technical reviewers, 3) evaluation criteria for test plans and test reports, 4) forms and documentation requirements, 5) procedures for interpretation and clarification of the voluntary voting system guidelines, 6) procedures for the resolution of test lab and vendor disagreements on the interpretation and application of the voting system guidelines. Concurrent with assuming these responsibilities, EAC will also be responsible for appropriate record keeping and information dissemination related to these programs.

Position Description and Qualifications

The appointment related to this determination shall be for the intermittent employment of a contracted expert (contractor). The contractor will review existing EAC drafts of work processes, evaluation criteria, documentation requirements and other materials to become familiar with the current status of the work. The contractor will review technical issues identified by EAC staff related to the testing and certification program and provide recommendations for resolution. The contractor will call upon past experience with conformity assessment programs in other industries and provide an analysis of alternative methodologies and criteria and make recommendations regarding the appropriate process for application to the EAC certification model. Contractor will also assist EAC staff in completion of procedures and associated materials based on the appropriate methodology.

To complete development of the EAC testing and certification program, the project can be broken down into several discreet phases in 2006.

Phase 1 will include the development of documents and written procedures addressing manufacturer (vendor) registration, and application and evaluation criteria for technical reviewers as well as the development of training scenarios for these reviewers.

Phase 2 will include final drafting of all procedures, forms and documentation related to the actual voting system certification, decertification and recertification process, to include options for program transparency and overall public information and education initiatives.

Phase 3 will address the development of an appeal process and an interpretation and petition process related to the testing and certification program. This phase should also develop processes and procedures to address changes (both normal and expedited) to previously certified voting systems.

To accomplish these goals, the contractor must have prior experience dealing with government conformity assessment programs, and knowledge of standards, standards setting bodies and the practical applications of those standards when testing a specific product. More specifically, the contractor must have an intimate working knowledge of the FEC's 2002 Voluntary Voting Systems Standards and the EAC's recently adopted 2005 Voluntary Voting System Guidelines. The contractor should also have extensive knowledge of election administration in the U. S. and the interplay of voting systems in the larger election process.

Selection Process

As stated above, the needed expertise is unique in that the contractor must have experience and expertise in standard setting and testing as well as demonstrated knowledge of election systems and the election process. While there are a number of persons experienced in standards setting and testing, there is only one uniquely qualified individual who has experience and expertise in applying that experience to testing and certification of election systems for use in this nation's election process.

After review and research of available and qualified individuals, H. Stephen Berger was deemed by EAC as singularly qualified to assist EAC with completing and implementing the Voting System Testing and certification program required by the HAVA because of his unique combination of experience with standards setting and testing, knowledge of the election process, experience with election system standards and testing, and other related experience and technical skills.

Mr. Berger has over 20 years of experience with product development, technology planning and conformity assessment programs. Mr. Berger's resume is attached for reference. That document shows that as director for Field Sensing Products for EMCO, Mr. Berger worked with the test department and accomplished improving throughput of that program by five times, with no increase in personnel. This was accomplished by extensive automation and the invention of new, patented test technology. While working as a Senior Engineer in Wireless Terminals Compliance and as Project Manager for Standards and Regulations for Siemens Corporation, Mr. Berger had extensive experience interacting with all aspects of the conformance assessment program developed by the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) relating to the testing of various wireless communications devices.

Mr. Berger also has unique and extensive experience with election systems and the election process. Mr. Berger is a member of the IEEE Standards Board and chair of the IEEE EMC Society Standards Development Committee and of the IEEE Project 1583 standards for voting equipment. From 2000 to 2002, Mr. Berger assisted the Federal Election Commission (FEC) in the development of the 2002 Voluntary Voting System Standards as a member of IEEE, and currently serves on the EAC Technical Guidelines Development Committee which guided NIST and EAC in the development of the 2005 Voluntary Voting System Guidelines. Mr. Berger has the unique experience of working on the EAC certification program. In 2005, he worked to assist the EAC in the initial conception and initial phases of development of the voting system testing and certification program.

Determination that Pay Rate is Fair and Reasonable

The pay rate of $135 per hour is fair and reasonable given Mr. Berger's experience, expertise and unique qualifications. This rate is below the rate generally charged in the private sector for experts with Mr. Berger's background and technical expertise. Similarly qualified individuals routinely charge between $125 and $175 per hour for similar services as required by EAC. Furthermore, the rate contemplated for this contract is a 10% reduction in Mr. Berger's regular hourly rate.

Determination of Funds Availability

The proposed contract would span two federal fiscal years, FY06 and FY07. After review of the FY06 budget, it has been determined that $78,000 is available in FY06 to fund the proposed contract. Furthermore, the proposed contract will be made subject to the availability of funding in FY07. The funding needed in FY07 to fulfill obligations under the proposed contract is $38,000.

Conclusion

Given the reasons listed above, H. Stephen Berger is the one individual in the United States that can provide the EAC with the necessary skill sets to complete the task of developing the EAC lab accreditation and voting system testing and certification program in an expedited and cost effective manner.

Subject Contract with Stephen Berger to complete implementation of EAC testing and certification program

Tom,
You will shortly receive documentation which would allow us to enter into a contract with Stephen Berger. We need to enter into this contract with Mr. Berger so EAC can use his expert assistance to expeditiously complete the implementation of our voting system testing and certification program.

As you are likely aware, Mr. Berger is uniquely qualified for this task given his background in working with the FCC testing and certification program for wireless phones, as well as for his wealth of experience with the IEEE 1583 voting standards project, the FEC's 2002 Voting system Standards project, and through his role as a TGDC member in the development of our recently released 2005 VVSG. As you are also aware, Mr. Berger assisted the EAC in FY 2005 during drafting of the outlines and objectives of our testing and certification program.

Funding is available in FY 2006 to cover the cost of this contract. For FY 2006, labor and travel costs will be approximately $77,780. Subject to the availability of funds in FY 2007, the remainder of Mr. Berger's labor and travel during our next fiscal year would be approximately $37,140.

Given the above information, I recommend that we go forward and enter into this contractual agreement with Stephen Berger.

Subject Draft EAC contract

Steve,

The attached contract should be signed by Tom tomorrow. Just wanted to give you a heads-up since we have changed our contracting procedures (mostly internal changes) significantly from last year. The major change from your end will be that we are contracting with you as an individual expert and not TEM Consulting as a whole. Your hourly rate is the same as that established last year, and, of course, the task is essentially the same.

Please review this as you have time and let me know if you have any questions. Thanks.

See you soon.

Steve,

Just a quick note to let you know that the contract is now in our finance office and will be forwarded to you via fax, with a hard copy to follow in the mail. Also, if you have a brief outline of what you plan to say at the EAC Meeting on Thursday, our General Counsel would like a copy for the Commissioner Briefing Books as soon as possible. This does not have to be extensive or exhaustive. You can simply email this to me when you have a moment. Thanks. See you on Wednesday.

Subject Teleconference for Kickoff of Management Guidelines Contract

Linda, Connie, Brit, Sandy,

Would you all be available sometime Thursday morning for a relatively brief teleconference to officially kick-off the contract for the management guidelines work. We need to have this conversation as early as possible before the end of the fiscal year, and with the TDGC Plenary Meeting next week, time is limited.

Please let me know if you can do a conference around mid-morning, say 10:00am?

Myself, Carol and perhaps Tom will be here on the EAC end of the phone.

Thanks.

Dear Ms. Pynchon:

This letter is in response to your Freedom of Information Act (FOIA) request received by the U. S. Election Assistance Commission (EAC) on April 11, 2007. The request sought "copies of all letters and/or emails to or from the state of Florida regarding what is available to the state in 2007 through 2008 and beyond for funding for voting systems or voting system components, including but not limited to any voting equipment for disabled voters. These inquiry letters may have been received from the state of Florida in 2006 and/or 2007."

The responsive records are attached. For your information, I have also attached a copy of a letter from EAC to the State of Florida regarding HAVA funds usage that was sent after your request.

The EAC has decided to waive the processing fees for your request. If you interpret any portion of this response as an adverse action, you will have an opportunity to appeal it to the Election Assistance Commission. Your appeal must be in writing and sent to the address noted on the above letterhead. Any appeal submitted, must be postmarked no later than 60 calendar days from the date of EAC's final response letter. Please include your reasons for reconsideration and attach a copy of this and subsequent EAC responses.

From funds in Specific Appropriation 28711, $11,600,000 shall be distributed by the Department of State to county supervisors of elections for the purchase of Direct Recording Equipment (DRE) or other state approved equipment that meets the standards for disability requirements which is accessible to persons with disabilities to ensure that each county has one accessible voting system for each polling place. The funds are to be distributed according to the number of machines that are accessible for persons with disabilities that are needed in order for each county to have one per polling place. No supervisor of elections shall receive any funds until the county supervisor of elections certifies to the Department of State: 1) the number of precincts in the county; 2) the number of polling places in the county; 3) the number of voting machines the county has that meet the disability requirement; 4) the county's plan for purchasing the DRE's; and 5) the date that the county anticipates being in compliance.

The Department of State will determine the number of DRE's needed in each county based on the certifications provided by the supervisors of elections. Any county that receives funds from Specific Appropriation 28711 that is not in compliance with the accessibility requirements in Section 301(a)(3) Title III of the Help America Vote Act by January 1, 2006, shall be required to return those funds to the State.

Both pages in the PDF that shows the legislative budget request appear to be the same. Are the pages different or was the same page copied twice?

Amy and Barbara,

Do you have any additional documentation for the issues identified during your state single audit. I have a copy of your response letter to the state auditor dated June 15, 2006 but many of the items are planned actions. Do you have supporting documentation to show you've completed those things? I am trying to write our audit resolution report and would prefer it show as much completed as possible rather than using the report to ask for this info. Let me know. Thanks.

Barbara,

Sorry for the delay but I was at the NASS and NASED conference over the weekend and then we had some bad weather that kept me from coming in. In regards to question #2, this is a purchase that is solely related to the statewide voter registration and therefore does not require pre-approval from the EAC. Just make sure to keep the proper records for audit purposes. Hope this helps. Thanks.

Subject Guidance Regarding Use of HAVA Funds

Edgardo,

The Florida Department of State is requesting guidance regarding the use of HAVA funds for several items:

1. The computer equipment used to operate Florida's statewide voter registration system is currently housed in a state-owned facility that is in the process of being sold. As a result, the Department is moving its computer operations to a private facility.

Following our conversation this morning, the Department has determined that State funds will be used to pay for the expenses associated with moving all of the equipment (including the statewide voter registration system equipment) to the new location.

However, after the Department has completed its relocation of the computer room to another facility, it will be necessary to make rental payments to the owner of the building. Is it possible for the Department to use HAVA funds to pay a portion of the rent for the space occupied by computer equipment used to support the statewide voter registration system?

2. The Department needs to purchase additional memory in order to provide an identical back-up computer for the statewide voter registration system in case of a disaster. We have received quotes from three contractors on the State Purchasing Contract with the lowest quote being from

Hewlett Packard at $81,760. We are requesting EAC approval to use HAVA Section 251 funds for this purchase.

3. During the summer of 2006 the Department requested guidance from the EAC regarding the use of HAVA funds for annual and/or sick leave payments to employees filling HAVA-funded positions who terminated employment with the State. Could you check on the status of a response regarding this issue. If you need additional information, please let us know and we'll forward the original questions.

This was great information. This is the same issue I am working on in relation to the single audit. Just so you know, this means you will get the answer from me, but then it will also be addressed in an audit resolution report. That resolution report will cover this issue and the other issues identified during the single audit. Since EAC oversees HAVA funds, we are responsible for resolving issues identified during audits conducted by our Inspector General and also single audits conducted by each state. I'll keep you posted as we move forward in that process. Let me know if you have any questions. Thanks.

Subject: Leave Payments to Terminating Employees

Peggy,

The Florida Department of State is requesting guidance from the EAC regarding leave payments to employees who have resigned from the Department of State and terminated employment in state government. Upon termination from the Department, these individuals have/will be paid for annual leave hours that were accrued during their tenure as state employees. During their employment with the Department of State, each employee was assigned to a position that worked exclusively on HAVA-related activities and was funded with HAVA dollars.

One individual was employed by the Department of State for eight months. However, he had been in state government for several years and transferred to the Department of State from another state agency. During that time he accrued 386 hours of annual leave. He accrued an additional 83 hours while employed at the Department of State. Upon termination from the Department, he was paid for 470 annual leave hours.

The other employee has been employed by the Department of State since mid-September 2003 and has worked exclusively in a HAVA-funded position during this period. He will be eligible for annual leave payments upon termination from state government at the end of June 2006. All of the annual leave hours were earned while he was working on HAVA activities.

In reviewing the language in federal OMB Circular A-87, it appears that it will be necessary for the Department of State to use state funds rather than HAVA funds for the leave payments to each of these individuals. However, since one individual was employed exclusively in a HAVA-funded position and earned the leave during this time, is it possible to use HAVA funds to pay for the accrued annual leave that will be paid to the individual upon termination from state government?

The situations referenced above relate to accrued annual leave. However, the same questions will apply when an employee filling a HAVA-funded position terminates from state government and is eligible to receive payment for sick leave.

We appreciate your assistance in determining the appropriate funding source when processing leave payments to individuals who worked in a HAVA-funded position at the time of termination from state government.

Edgardo,

It is the same question that I posed before regarding moving to optical scan systems and voter verifiable paper audit records. This also includes using ballot on demand and Automark. Jennifer Kennedy (Deputy Secretary of State) spoke with Tom Wilkey on Tuesday and I spoke with him on Tuesday as well. From what I understand, the decision that you previously gave me stands. However, we need something more formal in writing. As you know, we are in legislative session and this is a request not only from us, but from both of our legislative houses. I would really appreciate getting it as soon as possible.

Thank you again for all your help on this. I know you guys are busy. Please let me know if there is anything I can do to help.

Amy,

Sorry for the longer response on this email. Its been a pretty busy day.

With question 1, I forgot that Florida did file a certification under HAVA section 251(b)(2)(A). This means you are correct, Florida can use any remaining requirements payments for the improvement of administration of elections for federal office. No additional certification is needed. VVPAR would fall under this category. Section 101 funds can be used for this purpose without any certification.

With #2, you are correct. Replacement of newly purchased equipment that is HAVA compliant and in good working order does not appear to meet the test of reasonableness for using federal funds. Our initial take on the automark system is that it would fall into this category because you would be replacing the current DREs with a new system.

Again, this is our general take on this without having reviewed any detailed information about Florida's particular situation. Let me know if you need any more info. Thanks.

Sorry – one more issue. There is some consideration of using an “AutoMARK” system instead of the VVPAR. I would assume this would follow along the same lines as the considerations for the VVPAR. Let me know if you need more information on that before responding.

Importance: High

Edgardo,

I wanted to summarize our earlier conversation to make sure I am clear on how to proceed on this issue.

1. VVPAR (Voter verifiable paper audit record)

These can be paid for from HAVA funding under certain circumstances although this is not a requirement in HAVA and does not meet Title 3 requirements.

Section 251 funding can be used for Title 3 activities or for improving the administration of elections for federal office. Under this guideline, Florida can do the following:

- a. Certify that we have met the requirements of Title 3 and use the remaining 251 funds for improving federal elections.
- b. Or if we have not met the requirements for Title 3, we can certify that we will not use more than the minimum payment (est. 11.6m) for “non-Title 3” activities.

As a state, we did certify in August, 2006 that we have met the requirements for Title 3, so we would be in position a. (above). I would assume that we could then use the Section 251 funds to provide voter verifiable paper audit record devices for touchscreens under the argument that it is to improve federal elections.

Section 101 funding can be used to improve administration of elections for federal office. If Florida decided to use this funding, we would not have to certify to the EAC.

2. Optical Scan

If the touchscreens that are being replaced were purchased with HAVA funding, then further HAVA funding may not be used for this purpose. If the touchscreens were purchased from state funding, then HAVA funding could be used for this purpose. I would assume we would follow the same guidelines in #1 concerning both the 251 and 101 funding.

And, of course, we are free to use state funding (or funding from the purchase of the systems) to upgrade as long as we remain in compliance with federal and state guidelines.

Thank you (and Julie) for taking the time to speak with me today. I appreciate the time and quick response. I look forward to hearing back from you.

Amy,

Sorry for the longer response on this email. Its been a pretty busy day. With question 1, I forgot that Florida did file a certification under HAVA section 251(b)(2)(A). This means you are correct, Florida can use any remaining requirements payments for the improvement of administration of elections for federal office. No additional certification is needed. VVPAR would fall under this category. Section 101 funds can be used for this purpose without any certification. With #2, you are correct. Replacement of newly purchased equipment that is HAVA compliant and in good working order does not appear to meet the test of reasonableness for using federal funds. Our initial take on the automark system is that it would fall into this category because you would be replacing the current DREs with a new system. Again, this is our general take on this without having reviewed any detailed information about Florida's particular situation. Let me know if you need any more info. Thanks.

Sorry – one more issue. There is some consideration of using an “AutoMARK” system instead of the VVPAR. I would assume this would follow along the same lines as the considerations for the VVPAR. Let me know if you need more information on that before responding.

Edgardo,

I wanted to summarize our earlier conversation to make sure I am clear on how to proceed on this issue.

Mr. West,

You requested information this morning via telephone on whether Florida could use its remaining HAVA $251 funds to replace DREs previously purchased with HAVA funds with optical scan voting systems. Since you have requested an answer by this afternoon to assist in your legislative session and a specific answer to your question would require us to collect additional information and would take additional time, I am including a response sent to Washington State regarding a similar question. Please review this and see if it is sufficient for what you need. I have also included an explanation of acceptable uses of HAVA funds as well as other federal rules and regulations that are applicable to the use of HAVA funds. I have highlighted the sections most closely related to your request. Please let me know if you have any additional questions or if you need further clarification. Thank you.

Sources and Uses of HAVA Funds

There are three sources of funding provided by HAVA for use to improve the administration of federal elections and to meet the requirements of Title III of HAVA (specifically to implement provisional voting, to improve voting technology, to develop and implement a statewide voter registration database, to provide information to voters, and to verify and identify voters according to the procedures set forth in HAVA). Those sources are Section 101, Section 102 and Section 251 funds.

The funds received by a state under Section 101 can be used for the following purposes:

- A. Complying with the requirements under title III.
- B. Improving the administration of elections for Federal office.
- C. Educating voters concerning voting procedures, voting rights, and voting technology.
- D. Training election officials, poll workers, and election volunteers.
- E. Developing the State plan for requirements payments to be submitted under part 1 of subtitle D of title II.
- F. Improving, acquiring, leasing, modifying, or replacing voting systems and technology and methods for casting and counting votes.
- G. Improving the accessibility and quantity of polling places, including providing physical access for individuals with disabilities, providing non-visual access for individuals with visual impairments, and providing assistance to Native Americans, Alaska Native citizens, and to individuals with limited proficiency in the English language.
- H. Establishing toll-free telephone hotlines that voters may use to report possible voting fraud and voting rights violations, to obtain general election information, and to access detailed automated information on their own voter registration status, specific polling place locations, and other relevant information.

Section 102 funds can be used ONLY for the purposes of replacing punch card and lever voting systems with voting systems that comply with Section 301(a) of HAVA.

Section 251 funds can be used to implement any of the Title III requirements, including purchasing compliant voting systems, implementing provisional voting, providing information to voters in the polling place, developing and implementing a statewide voter registration list, and identifying voters. In addition, states and local governments can use HAVA funds to improve the administration of elections for Federal office when one of two conditions is met: (1) the state has met the requirements of Title III; or (2) the state notifies EAC of its intention to use an amount not to exceed the amount of the minimum payment that the state either did or could have received under the Section 252 formula for that purpose.

The uses of Section 251 funds (and Section 101 funds, when used to meet the requirements of Title III) must be accounted for in the state's plan as originally submitted or later amended. Any material change in the use of 251 funds (and Section 101 funds as specified above) from the approved state plan will require the state to revise its plan and submit the revisions to the EAC for publication and approval.

Costs must be Allowable, Allocable and Reasonable

In addition to the restrictions on the uses of funds imposed by HAVA, when these funds were distributed by either the General Services

Administration (GSA) or the EAC, those funds were made subject to several circulars developed by the Office of Management and Budget, specifically OMB Circulars A-87 (governs the use of federal funds to purchase goods for state and local governments), A-102 (governs the management of federal funds for state and local governments), A-122 (governs the use of federal funds to purchase goods for non-profits) and A-133 (dealing with audits). These circulars further restrict the appropriate uses of Federal funds requiring generally that costs paid for by HAVA funds are allowable, allocable (directly or through an indirect cost rate), and reasonable.

Allowable Costs

A cost is allowable if it is necessary for the proper and efficient performance and administration of the federally sponsored program. Costs that fall within the specifically identified uses of HAVA funds in either Sections 101, 102 or Title III are allowable.

Allocable Costs

A state can allocate an expense by charging only a portion equal to the percentage of use for HAVA related purposes to the HAVA grant. This can be accomplished by either using only that percentage of HAVA fund per unit cost or by seeking reimbursement from the other departments within the state for their portion of the usage. The question of allocability arises generally in one of two circumstances. First, is the cost allocable to the program to which it is billed? Just because a cost is allowable under one or more funding programs of HAVA do not mean that it is allocable to each and every program. For example, if an expense is not directly related to meeting any of the Title III requirements, it is allocable only to Section 101 funds and Section 251 funds pursuant to the provisions of Section 251(b) that allow for the use of Title II funds for the improvement of the administration of elections for federal office only up to the minimum payment amount. Second, is the cost allocable to benefit a Federal election? Most of the uses identified in HAVA require the funds to be used to benefit a Federal election. Thus, costs that strictly benefit a state or local election are not allocable to the HAVA funding programs.

Indirect Costs

In some circumstances, the expense may be an indirect one that can be covered by an indirect cost rate. In that instance, the state may submit an indirect cost rate proposal in which it identifies and supplies information regarding direct and indirect costs of operation. Circular A-87 and ASMB C-10, Cost Principles and Procedures for Developing Cost Allocation Plans and Indirect Cost Allocation Plans and Indirect Cost Rates for Agreements with the Federal Government, provide guidance on negotiating indirect costs rates.

An indirect cost rate provides a state with the basis for allocating administrative costs that are inextricably linked to other services provided by the Secretary of State such that they cannot easily be segregated into those costs that directly benefit the HAVA funding program and those that do not. For example, the cost of printers and copy machines that are used for both Federal and State election activities and that are below the State's threshold for capitalized equipment may be expensed and included in the indirect cost pool. On the other hand, if you include an asset in the fixed capital assets section of your balance sheet and depreciate the asset, you should consider the asset as a capital expenditure and include only depreciation expense in the pool. Click here to see a power point presentation on indirect costs presented by KPMG on behalf of the EAC.

Reasonable Costs

A state must do some assessment as to whether the costs are reasonable. This is done by determining that the cost is justified based upon factors such as the frequency of use, leasing versus purchasing, and actual cost for the good or service.

Excerpt from response to Washington State, sent August 10, 2006:

"The question of the Snohomish County audio units brings up several issues. The issue as I understand it is that Snohomish County bought some accessible voting systems with HAVA funds that do not meet the 2002 requirements. Although it is possible, it is also unlikely that a voting system could be compliant with HAVA Section 301(a) and not meet the 2002 FEC Voting System Standards (particularly in regards to the tested error rate). Please see EAC Advisory 2005-004 for more information on helping to determine whether a particular system meets the standards of Section 301(a).

If the county purchased equipment which was not compliant with HAVA section 301(a), then HAVA funds could not be used to purchase these systems. Any use of HAVA funds for the purpose of purchasing voting equipment that is not compliant with 301(a) is a misuse of HAVA funds and should be reimbursed to the state Election Fund. While Snohomish County did take initiative to purchase equipment early, it turns out that this equipment is not usable. If this is the case, then HAVA funds can be used for the purchase of replacement voting systems.

If the county has already purchased a voting system which is compliant with Section 301(a) and are simply replacing the system because they are not happy with it or feel they could get something better, then this cannot be paid for using HAVA funds. Replacement of newly purchased equipment that is HAVA compliant and in good working order does not appear to meet the test of reasonableness for using federal funds.

Purchasing voting systems is an acceptable use of HAVA funds. You must determine which of the above scenarios Snohomish County falls into in order to decide which system HAVA funds will be used for. The other system should be paid for with non-HAVA funds. In either scenario, HAVA funds cannot be used to purchase both voting systems."

Allocable Costs

A state can allocate an expense by charging only a portion equal to the percentage of use for HAVA related purposes to the HAVA grant. This can be accomplished by either using only that percentage of HAVA fund per unit cost or by seeking reimbursement from the other departments within the state for their portion of the usage. The question of allocability arises generally in one of two circumstances. First, is the cost allocable to the program to which it is billed? Just because a cost is allowable under one or more funding programs of HAVA do not mean that it is allocable to each and every program. For example, if an expense is not directly related to meeting any of the Title III requirements, it is allocable only to Section 101 funds and Section 251 funds pursuant to the provisions of Section 251(b) that allow for the use of Title II funds for the improvement of the administration of elections for federal office only up to the minimum payment amount. Second, is the cost allocable to benefit a Federal election? Most of the uses identified in HAVA require the funds to be used to benefit a Federal election. Thus, costs that strictly benefit a state or local election are not allocable to the HAVA funding programs.

Indirect Costs

In some circumstances, the expense may be an indirect one that can be covered by an indirect cost rate. In that instance, the state may submit an indirect cost rate proposal in which it identifies and supplies information regarding direct and indirect costs of operation. Circular A-87 and ASMB C-10, Cost Principles and Procedures for Developing Cost Allocation Plans and Indirect Cost Allocation Plans and Indirect Cost Rates for Agreements with the Federal Government, provide guidance on negotiating indirect costs rates.

An indirect cost rate provides a state with the basis for allocating administrative costs that are inextricably linked to other services provided by the Secretary of State such that they cannot easily be segregated into those costs that directly benefit the HAVA funding program and those that do not. For example, the cost of printers and copy machines that are used for both Federal and State election activities and that are below the State's threshold for capitalized equipment may be expensed and included in the indirect cost pool. On the other hand, if you include an asset in the fixed capital assets section of your balance sheet and depreciate the asset, you should consider the asset as a capital expenditure and include only depreciation expense in the pool. Click here to see a power point presentation on indirect costs presented by KPMG on behalf of the EAC.

Reasonable Costs

A state must do some assessment as to whether the costs are reasonable. This is done by determining that the cost is justified based upon factors such as the frequency of use, leasing versus purchasing, and actual cost for the good or service.

Excerpt from response to Washington State, sent August 10, 2006:

"The question of the Snohomish County audio units brings up several issues. The issue as I understand it is that Snohomish County bought some accessible voting systems with HAVA funds that do not meet the 2002 requirements. Although it is possible, it is also unlikely that a voting system could be compliant with HAVA Section 301(a) and not meet the 2002 FEC Voting System Standards (particularly in regards to the tested error rate). Please see EAC Advisory 2005-004 for more information on helping to determine whether a particular system meets the standards of Section 301(a).

If the county purchased equipment which was not compliant with HAVA section 301(a), then HAVA funds could not be used to purchase these systems. Any use of HAVA funds for the purpose of purchasing voting equipment that is not compliant with 301(a) is a misuse of HAVA funds and should be reimbursed to the state Election Fund. While Snohomish County did take initiative to purchase equipment early, it turns out that this equipment is not usable. If this is the case, then HAVA funds can be used for the purchase of replacement voting systems.

If the county has already purchased a voting system which is compliant with Section 301(a) and are simply replacing the system because they are not happy with it or feel they could get something better, then this cannot be paid for using HAVA funds. Replacement of newly purchased equipment that is HAVA compliant and in good working order does not appear to meet the test of reasonableness for using federal funds.

Purchasing voting systems is an acceptable use of HAVA funds. You must determine which of the above scenarios Snohomish County falls into in order to decide which system HAVA funds will be used for. The other system should be paid for with non-HAVA funds. In either scenario, HAVA funds cannot be used to purchase both voting systems."

Thank you. I guess we are all a little confused. We had originally thought we could use some funding for the optical scan part of the legislation but not for the vvpats. Based on this response it would seem that we could not use any of the funding for this legislation.

 Subject: Response: Using HAVA funds to replace voting equipment

Mr. West,

You requested information this morning via telephone on whether Florida could use its remaining HAVA $251 funds to replace DREs previously purchased with HAVA funds with optical scan voting systems. Since you have requested an answer by this afternoon to assist in your legislative session and a specific answer to your question would require us to collect additional information and would take additional time, I am including a response sent to Washington State regarding a similar question. Please review this and see if it is sufficient for what you need. I have also included an explanation of acceptable uses of HAVA funds as well as other federal rules and regulations that are applicable to the use of HAVA funds. I have highlighted the sections most closely related to your request. Please let me know if you have any additional questions or if you need further clarification. Thank you.

Sources and Uses of HAVA Funds

There are three sources of funding provided by HAVA for use to improve the administration of federal elections and to meet the requirements of Title III of HAVA (specifically to implement provisional voting, to improve voting technology, to develop and implement a statewide voter registration database, to provide information to voters, and to verify and identify voters according to the procedures set forth in HAVA).

020662

Those sources are Section 101, Section 102 and Section 251 funds.

The funds received by a state under Section 101 can be used for the following purposes:

- A. Complying with the requirements under title III.
- B. Improving the administration of elections for Federal office.
- C. Educating voters concerning voting procedures, voting rights, and voting technology.
- D. Training election officials, poll workers, and election volunteers.
- E. Developing the State plan for requirements payments to be submitted under part 1 of subtitle D of title II.
- F. Improving, acquiring, leasing, modifying, or replacing voting systems and technology and methods for casting and counting votes.
- G. Improving the accessibility and quantity of polling places, including providing physical access for individuals with disabilities, providing non-visual access for individuals with visual impairments, and providing assistance to Native Americans, Alaska Native citizens, and to individuals with limited proficiency in the English language.
- H. Establishing toll-free telephone hotlines that voters may use to report possible voting fraud and voting rights violations, to obtain general election information, and to access detailed automated information on their own voter registration status, specific polling place locations, and other relevant information.

Section 102 funds can be used ONLY for the purposes of replacing punch card and lever voting systems with voting systems that comply with Section 301(a) of HAVA.

Section 251 funds can be used to implement any of the Title III requirements, including purchasing compliant voting systems, implementing provisional voting, providing information to voters in the polling place, developing and implementing a statewide voter registration list, and identifying voters. In addition, states and local governments can use HAVA funds to improve the administration of elections for Federal office when one of two conditions is met: (1) the state has met the requirements of Title III; or (2) the state notifies EAC of its intention to use an amount not to exceed the amount of the minimum payment that the state either did or could have received under the Section 252 formula for that purpose.

The uses of Section 251 funds (and Section 101 funds, when used to meet the requirements of Title III) must be accounted for in the state's plan as originally submitted or later amended. Any material change in the use of 251 funds (and Section 101 funds as specified above) from the approved state plan will require the state to revise its plan and submit the revisions to the EAC for publication and approval.

Costs must be Allowable, Allocable and Reasonable

In addition to the restrictions on the uses of funds imposed by HAVA, when these funds were distributed by either the General Services Administration (GSA) or the EAC, those funds were made subject to several circulars developed by the Office of Management and Budget, specifically OMB Circulars A-87 (governs the use of federal funds to purchase goods for state and local governments), A-102 (governs the management of federal funds for state and local governments), A-122 (governs the use of federal funds to purchase goods for non-profits) and A-133 (dealing with audits). These circulars further restrict the appropriate uses of Federal funds requiring generally that costs paid for by HAVA funds are allowable, allocable (directly or through an indirect cost rate), and reasonable.

Allowable Costs

A cost is allowable if it is necessary for the proper and efficient performance and administration of the federally sponsored program. Costs that fall within the specifically identified uses of HAVA funds in either Sections 101, 102 or Title III are allowable.

Allocable Costs

A state can allocate an expense by charging only a portion equal to the percentage of use for HAVA related purposes to the HAVA grant. This can be accomplished by either using only that percentage of HAVA fund per unit cost or by seeking reimbursement from the other departments within the state for their portion of the usage. Subject HAVA Funding for Voter Verifiable Paper Audit Records

History:

 This message has been replied to.

Mr. Cortes,

Florida is requesting guidance on whether HAVA Section 251 funds can be used to purchase optical scan voting systems to replace existing touchscreen voting systems that are compliant with HAVA Section 301(a).

Prior to passage of the Help America Vote Act, during the 2001 Legislative Session, the Florida Legislature passed the Florida Election Reform Act of 2001, Chapter 2001-40, Laws of Florida. The legislation included an appropriation of funds to be distributed to counties for voting systems assistance.

The funds were distributed to counties in equal installments over a two year period to assist with purchasing voting systems to replace lever and punch cards machines as well as paper ballot voting systems. Florida distributed $24,093,750 to assist counties with purchasing new voting systems.

At the time that counties were replacing voting systems to comply with changes to Florida law, fifteen counties opted to purchase touchscreen voting systems and the remaining counties either purchased or already had precinct-based optical scan voting systems.

We are currently in the 2007 Legislative Session. The Governor has some proposed legislation that would provide the following:

1. A precinct-based optical scan in all precincts.
2. One touchscreen with voter verifiable paper audit record in each precinct (ADA)
3. Allow for counties to either use an optical scan or touchscreen (retrofitted) for use for early voting.

In reviewing this legislation, the question has been asked as to what HAVA funds, if any, we can use to pay for these changes. Although I know we've been working off the FAQ and advice you've given other states, I thought it was important to ask based on our circumstances as to what we can and cannot fund with HAVA funds.

I realize this is late notice, but we do need an answer sooner rather than later. If you need to call to discuss further, please feel free to do so. My direct line is 850.245.6285 and my cell is 850.294.5298. I apologize for the urgency but as we move through session, it has become an issue that we need to be able to answer definitively. I look forward to hearing from you.

Thank you.

Edgardo,

What are the restrictions on the use of the interest from the HAVA money and were do I find those rules. Can we use the interest to replace Florida DRE's with optical scan?

Mr. West,

You requested information this morning via telephone on whether Florida could use its remaining HAVA §251 funds to replace DREs previously purchased with HAVA funds with optical scan voting systems. Since you have requested an answer by this afternoon to assist in your legislative session and a specific answer to your question would require us to collect additional information and would take additional time, I am including a response sent to Washington State regarding a similar question. Sources and Uses of HAVA Funds

There are three sources of funding provided by HAVA for use to improve the administration of federal elections and to meet the requirements of Title III of HAVA (specifically to implement provisional voting, to improve voting technology, to develop and implement a statewide voter

- F. Improving, acquiring, leasing, modifying, or replacing voting systems and technology and methods for casting and counting votes.
- G. Improving the accessibility and quantity of polling places, including providing physical access for individuals with disabilities, providing non-visual access for individuals with visual impairments, and providing assistance to Native Americans, Alaska Native citizens, and to individuals with limited proficiency in the English language.
- H. Establishing toll-free telephone hotlines that voters may use to report possible voting fraud and voting rights violations, to obtain general election information, and to access detailed automated information on their own voter registration status, specific polling place locations, and other relevant information.

Section 102 funds can be used ONLY for the purposes of replacing punch card and lever voting systems with voting systems that comply with Section 301(a) of HAVA.

Section 251 funds can be used to implement any of the Title III requirements, including purchasing compliant voting systems, implementing provisional voting, providing information to voters in the polling place, developing and implementing a statewide voter registration list, and identifying voters. In addition, states and local governments can use HAVA funds to improve the administration of elections for Federal office when one of two conditions is met: (1) the state has met the requirements of Title III; or (2) the state notifies EAC of its intention to use an amount not to exceed the amount of the minimum payment that the state either did or could have received under the Section 252 formula for that purpose.

These circulars further restrict the appropriate uses of Federal funds requiring generally that costs paid for by HAVA funds are allowable, allocable (directly or through an indirect cost rate), and reasonable.
